FIRST LATIN BOOK.

PART I.

ACCIDENCE AND SYNTAX.

FIRST LATIN BOOK.

LESSON I.

THE VERB.

1. Latin verbs are divided into four classes, called conjugations.
2. The first conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ā before the present infinitive ending -re: as, āmā-rē, to love.
3. The second conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re: as, mōnē-rē, to advise.
4. The third conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re: as, rēgē-rē, to rule.
5. The fourth conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ī before the present infinitive ending -re: as, audī-rē, to hear.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following verbs and state the conjugation to which each belongs :—

āmā-re, to love.
dēlē-re, to destroy.
pūnī-re, to punish.
tēgē-re, to cover.
vēnī-re, to come.
sērē-re, to sow.

vestī-re, to clothe.
tēnē-re, to hold.
quaerē-re, to ask.
tīmē-re, to fear.
laudā-re, to praise.
dūcē-re, to lead.

LESSON II.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

1. The first conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ā before the present infinitive ending -re: as, amā-re, to love.

2. The part of amā-re that is left after dropping the ending -re, is called the present stem. Thus: amā-re, to love; present stem, amā-.

3. The present indicative active of the first conjugation is as follows:—

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
1. Pers., amo , I love .	1. Pers., amā-mus , we love .
2. “ ama-s , thou lovest .	2. “ amā-tis , you love .
3. “ ama-t , he (she, it) loves .	3. “ ama-nt , they love .

Note 1. The Latin verb expresses person and number by endings.*

Note 2. The forms of the present indicative represent the indefinite, progressive, and emphatic forms of the English present. Thus: amo is either, I love (indefinite), I am loving (progressive), or, I do love (emphatic).

Note 3. Ama-s, is you love (sing.); ama-tis, you love (plural).

EXERCISE.

Learn, and inflect like amo, the following verbs:—

porto, portā-re, to carry.
laudo, laudā-re, to praise.
āro, ārā-re, to plough.
vōco, vōcā-re, to call.

dōno, dōnā-re, to give.
clāmo, clāmā-re, to shout.
pugno, pugnā-re, to fight.
spēro, spērā-re, to hope.

*These endings were perhaps originally pronouns. Thus:—amo=ama-o-m: i. e., ama, pres. stem (love); -o, connecting-vowel; and -m, I (seen in Latin me, and English me).

Translate into English :—

1. Laudo. 2. Arant. 3. Vocātis. 4. Pugnamus. 5. Donas.
6. Portat. 7. Pugnas. 8. Vocant. 9. Laudas. 10. Speratis. 11.
Aramus. 12. Sperant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. I fight. 2. You plough. 3. They praise. 4. We are carrying. 5. He calls. 6. You give. 7. They hope. 8. We praise.
9. He carries. 10. They give. 11. We plough. 12. He fights.
13. You call (sing.)

LESSON III.

THE NOUN.

1. Latin nouns have two numbers and three persons. They have, however, six cases: the Nominative, Genitive, Dative, Accusative, Vocative, and Ablative.

2. The Nominative case is the form the noun has when it is the subject of a sentence.

3. The Genitive is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English possessive or possessive with of.

4. The Dative is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English indirect object with the prepositions to or for.

5. The Accusative is the form the noun has when it is the direct object of a verb, or governed by a preposition which takes the accusative.

6. The Vocative is the form the noun has when it expresses the meaning of the English Nominative of address.

7. The Ablative is the form the noun has when it expresses the various relations indicated by the prepositions with, by, from, or in.

THE DECLENSIONS.—FIRST DECLENSION.

8. Latin nouns are divided into five classes, called declensions, which are distinguished from each other by the ending of the genitive singular.

9. In the first declension the genitive singular ends in -æ; in the second declension in -i; in the third declension in -is; in the fourth declension in -ūs; in the fifth declension in -ēi.

10. In the first declension the nominative ends in -a, -e, -as, or -es.

Note. Nouns in -a and -e are feminine; those in -as and -es are masculine. But words in -a, denoting male beings, are masculine: as, nauta, a sailor; agricōla, a farmer.

11. Nouns in -a of the first declension are thus declined:—

Mensa, a table.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. mensā, a table.	mens-æ, tables.
GEN. mens-æ, of a table.	mens-ārum, of tables.
DAT. mens-æ, to or for a table.	mens-is, to or for tables.
ACC. mens-am, a table.	mens-as, tables.
VOC. mens-ā, O table.	mens-æ, O tables.
ABL. mens-ā, with, by, from, or in a table.	mens-is, with, by, from or in tables.

Note. Latin has no article; therefore, mensa may mean table, a table, or the table.

12. Most nouns of the first declension end in the nominative singular in -a. These are all declined like mensa, by dropping the -a and adding the case-endings of mensa. Thus: Umbra, a shade; gen., umbr-æ; dat., umbr-æ, and so on.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following nouns and decline each like mensa :

āqua (gen., āqu-æ), water.	rōsa (gen., rōs-æ), a rose.
victōria (gen., victorī-æ), victory.	lūna (gen., lūn-æ), the moon.
pūella (gen., pūell-æ), a girl.	nauta (gen., naut-æ), a sailor.
umbrā (gen., umbr-æ), a shade.	āgricōla (gen., āgricōl-æ), a farmer.
insūla (gen., insūl-æ), an island.	stella (gen., stell-æ), a star.

Translate into English :—

1. Stella. 2. Insŭlae. 3. Lunārum. 4. Puellis. 5. Aquae. 6. Nautārum. 7. Agricolis. 8. Umbrā. 9. Victoriae. 10. Puella. 11. Rosarum. 12. Lunas. 13. Agricolae. 14. Nautae.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Of stars. 2. With roses. 3. Of a sailor. 4. Of farmers. 5. With water. 6. Of girls. 7. For a farmer. 8. Of the moon. 9. With victories. 10. O girl. 11. To a rose. 12. With a rose. 13. Of a girl. 14. O star.

LESSON IV.

SUBJECT AND OBJECT.

1. The subject of a finite verb is put in the Nominative : as, Agricōla ārat, the farmer ploughs. Here, agricola is the subject of the verb ārat and is in the Nominative case.

2. The verb agrees with the subject Nominative in number and person : as, Agricola arat, the farmer ploughs; here, agricola is third person singular, and arat agrees with the subject agricola. Agricolae arant, the farmers plough; agricolae is third person plural, and arant agrees with agricolae.

3. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the Accusative : as, Puella rosam laudat, the girl praises the rose; here, rosam is accusative singular governed by laudat. Puella rosas laudat, the girl praises the roses; here, rosas is accusative plural governed by laudat.

4. The indirect object of a transitive verb is put in the dative : as, Puer epistolam puellae donat, the boy gives a letter to the girl (or gives the girl a letter); here, puellae is the indirect object and is in the dative case.

EXERCISE.

Learn and decline the following nouns ; learn, and inflect in the present, the following verbs :—

regīna, a queen.	patria, one's native land.
puella, a girl.	cant-o, āre, sing.
epistōla, a letter.	expect-o, āre, expect, look for.
pēcūniā, money.	orn-o, āre, adorn.
terra, the earth, land.	postūl-o, āre, demand.

Translate into English :—

1. Puella rosam laudat.
2. Agricolae pecuniam postulant.
3. Puellae epistolam expectant.
4. Regina umbram amat.
5. Puella pecuniam donat.
6. Puellae umbram amant.
7. Agricolae terram arant.
8. Nautae lunam expectant.
9. Aquam agricolis donāmus.
10. Nautae patriam amant.
11. Nautae victoriam expectant.
12. Puella reginae cantat.
13. Agricolae cantant.
14. Epistolas reginae laudant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. He is calling the farmer.
2. The farmer ploughs the land.
3. You are praising the victory of the sailors.
4. He gives a rose to the girl.
5. The queen praises the letter of the girl.
6. The farmers love the shade.
7. The sailors are demanding money.
8. We adorn the tables of the queen.
9. The farmer is expecting a letter.
10. The farmers are carrying water.
11. Girls love the shade.
12. The sailors give the girls a crown.
13. The girls praise the roses of the farmer.
14. They give the sailors money.

LESSON V.

FIRST DECLENSION.—(Continued.)

1. Nouns of the first declension in -e, -as, and -es are borrowed from the Greek. Their declension is given in the Appendix, and they may be learned at a later stage.

2. The following nouns in -a of the first declension have -ābus for -is in the dative and ablative plural:—Dea, a goddess; filia, a daughter; liberta, a freedwoman; mula, a she-mule: as, deābus, filiābus, libertābus, mulābus.

3. To, when it expresses motion to, is ad (with the acc.); and for, when it means in behalf of, is pro (with the abl.): as, Ad portam, to the gate; pro patriā, for one's country.

EXERCISE.

Learn the following words; decline and state the gender of all the nouns:—

amicitiā, friendship.

cōpiā, abundance, fertility.

porta, a gate.

cōrōnā, a crown.

Rōma, Rome.

pātriā, one's native land.

sapientia, wisdom.

Galliā, Gaul, France.

pinna, feather.

spect-o, āre, gaze at, see.

ad, prep. (with acc.), to, towards.

e (or ex), prep. (with abl.), from, out of.

in, prep., with acc., meaning into; with abl., in.

Translate into English:—

1. Puella portas Romae laudat. 2. Agricola copiam terrae laudant. 3. Pinnas puellis donatis. 4. Epistolas reginae ad Galliam portamus. 5. Nautae stellas expectant. 6. Mensas reginae ad portam portat. 7. Nautae coronas puellis donant. 8. Amicitiam puellarum laudo. 9. Nautae coronam laudant. 10. Puellarum pinnas laudas. 11. Agricola puellarum coronas laudat. 12. In Galliam epistolas nautae portant. 13. Reginarum filiae amicitiam nautarum laudant. 14. Pro patriā nautae pugnant.

Translate into Latin:—

1. We fight for our (omit) native land. 2. The farmers give crowns to the girls. 3. The sailors are bearing crowns to the gates of the queen. 4. The daughters of the farmer are gazing at the stars. 5. The farmer praises the crown of his (omit) daughter. 6. The farmers give a feather to the girl. 7. The farmer ploughs the land. 8. The sailors praise the fertility of the land. 9. They give roses to the daughters. 10. The sailor praises the wisdom of the farmer. 11. I carry a crown to the gate of the farmer. 12. The girls are carrying water to the gate. 13. We praise the fertility of the earth. 14. He carries crowns from the gate of the queen.

LESSON VI.

IMPERFECT AND FUTURE INDICATIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION.

1. The imperfect and the future of the indicative active of the first conjugation are formed by adding endings to the present stem. The imperfect indicative active of the first conjugation is inflected as follows :—

PLURAL.

- | | | |
|-----------|---|------------------------------------|
| 1. Pers., | āmā-bam, I was loving. | āmā-bāmus, we were loving. |
| 2. “ | āmā-bas, thou wast loving. | āmā-bātis, you were loving. |
| 3. “ | āmā-bat, he, (she, it) was loving. | āmā-bant, they were loving. |

2. The future indicative active of the first conjugation is inflected as follows :—

SINGULAR.

PLURAL.

- | | | |

LESSON XII.

LATIN GENDER.

1. Gender in Latin is determined (1) by the meaning of the noun (natural gender), (2) by the ending of the noun (grammatical gender).

2. General rules for determining the gender of a noun from the meaning are :—

(1). Names of male beings are masculine : as, puer, a boy; vir, a man; ĕquus, a horse; agricōla, a farmer.

(2). Names of females are feminine : as, puella, a girl.

(3). Names of rivers, winds, and mountains are masculine : as, Rhēnus, the Rhine; Eurus, the east wind; Olym̄pus, Mt. Olympus.

(4). Names of countries, towns, islands, gems, and trees are feminine : as, Aegyptus, Egypt; Cōrinthus, Corinth; Sāmus, Samos (an island); fāgus, a beech; margārita, a pearl.

(5). Indeclinable nouns are neuter : as, fas, right; nēfa, wrong; nīhil, nothing.

LESSON XIII.

ADJECTIVES in -US.

1. An adjective in Latin (whether attributive or predicative) agrees in gender, number, and case, with the noun it qualifies. Thus : Vir bōnus, a good man ; bōnus is nominative singular masculine, because vir is nominative singular masculine. Puella bōna, a good girl; bōna is nominative singular feminine, agreeing with puella. So also in Bellum longum, a long war, longum is nominative singular neuter and agrees with bellum.

2. Many adjectives (called adjectives in -us), have three forms in the nominative for expressing gender,—one in ūs, (for the masculine), one in -ā (for the feminine), and one in -um, (for the neuter). Forms in -us are declined like Domīnus; forms in -a, like Mensa; and forms in -um, like Bellum. Thus:—

Bōnus, good.

LESSON XVI.

IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES in -US and -ER.

1. The following adjectives in -us and -er have, in all genders, the genitive singular in -ius and the dative in -ī: Ālius, āliā, āliud, other; altēr, altēra, altērum, other of two; tōtus, tōta, tōtum, whole; nullus, nulla, nullum, none; ullus, ulla, ullum, any; neuter, neutra, neutrum, neither; sōlus, sōla, solum, alone; ūnus, ūna, ūnum, one; ūter, ūtra, ūtrum, which of two? They are thus declined :—

Unus, one.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	ūnūs,	ūnā,	ūnum.
GEN.	ūnius,	ūnius,	ūnius.

One man with his sons was walking in the fields.

LESSON XVII.

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES.

NE, NONNE, NUM.

1. Interrogative sentences in Latin (when not headed by an interrogative pronoun or adverb) are usually distinguished by one of the interrogative particles, -nē, nonnē, num. The order of words does not, as in English, mark an interrogative sentence.

2. The particle -ne (which is written after the first word in the sentence), asks for information : as, Amatne? does he love? The answer will be either, amat, he loves (i.e., Yes), or non amat, he does not love (i.e., No). The particle -ne is generally appended to the emphatic word (which is then put first) : as, Filiusne amat? does the son love? (i. e. = Is it the son that loves?)

3. Nonne expects the answer Yes : as, Nonne puer amat? does not the boy love? The answer expected is, amat, he loves (i.e., Yes). Nonne is generally the first word in the sentence.

4. Num expects the answer No: as, Num puer amat? does the boy love? The answer expected is, non amat, he does not love, (i.e., No). Num is generally the first word in the sentence.

Note.—Yes and No, in answer to questions, have no single equivalent in common use. They are usually expressed by repeating the verb, as seen above.

VOCABULARY.

mēdicīna, ae, medicine.

ēquus, -i, a horse.

arvum, -i, a ploughed field.

gēner, genēri, a son-in-law.

the beautiful roses into the building? 13. Did the boy excite the anger of the slave? 14. Will not the master praise the diligence of the pupils? Yes.

LESSON XVIII.

THIRD DECLENSION.

1. In the third declension, the genitive singular ends in -īs: as, princeps, a chief; gen., princip-īs.

2. The third declension is harder than the 1st or 2nd, because it is harder to get the part of the noun to which the case-endings are to be added. Examples of the common types of declension are given under the usual classification; but, to beginners, no rule is of much value but the following: Learn by heart the nom. and gen. of every noun of the 3rd decl. you meet. If the nom. and gen. are known, the noun is easily declined.

3. Nouns of the 3rd decl. are divided into two wide classes, according as the stem (i. e. the part of the word to which the endings are added) ends in a consonant or in -i. Rules will be given below for recognizing -i stems; and when these are known, all others will, of course, be consonant stems.

CONSONANT STEMS.

4. Consonant stems* are divided into four classes:—

- (1) Labial stems (i. e., stems ending in p, b, m).
- (2) Dental stems (i. e., “ “ “ t, d, s, n).
- (3) Lingual stems (i. e., “ “ “ r, l).
- (4) Guttural stems (i. e., “ “ “ c, g).

*The nominative of nouns of this class generally ends in -s, which, however, is dropped after l, n, r, s, or combines with the gutturals c, g, to form x (cs or gs=x): as, regs=rex, king; arcs=arx, citadel. T or d disappears before s: as, milit+s=milits=milis, or (with a change of vowel) miles, soldier. The nominative of neuter nouns is the same as the stem: as, fulgur, gen., fulgūr-is, lightning.

5. The first class of consonant stems includes stems ending in a labial (p, b, m).

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. princeps, a chief.	princip-ēs, chiefs.
GEN. princip-īs, of a chief.	princip-um, of chiefs.
DAT. princip-ī, to, or for, a chief.	princip-ibus, to, or for, chiefs.
ACC. princip-em, a chief.	princip-ēs, chiefs.
VOC. princeps, O chief.	princip-ēs, O chiefs.
ABL. princip-ē, with, by, or from a chief.	princip-ibus, with, by, or from, chiefs.

NOTE.—The nominative and vocative (singular and plural) are always alike in the 3rd declension.

Trabs (fem.), a beam.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. trabs, a beam.	trāb-ēs, beams.
GEN. trāb-is, of a beam.	trāb-um, of beams.
DAT. trāb-ī, to, or for, a beam.	trāb-ibus, to, or for beams.
ACC. trāb-em, a beam.	trāb-ēs, beams.
VOC. trabs, O beam.	trāb-ēs, O beams.
ABL. trāb-ē, with, by, from, or in a beam.	trāb-ibus, with, by, from, or in beams.

Hiems (fem.), winter.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. hiems, winter.	hiēm-ēs, winters.
GEN. hiēm-is, of winter.	hiēm-um, of winters.
DAT. hiēm-ī, to, or for winter.	hiēm-ibus, to, or for winters.
ACC. hiēm-em, winter.	hiēm-ēs, winters.
VOC. hiems, O winter.	hiēm-ēs, O winters.
ABL. hiēm-ē, with, by, from or in winter.	hiēm-ibus, with, by, from, or in winters.

NOTE.—Nouns of the 3rd declension are declined by dropping the -is of the genitive singular and adding to the part of the noun remaining the case-endings given above.

VOCABULARY.

Gallus, i, a Gaul.

verbum, i, a word

sāgittā, ae, an arrow.

lōco, lōcāre, lōcāvī, place, pitch.

ABL. corpōrē, with, by, from, or in a body.	corpōrībus, with, by, from, or in bodies.

Regio (F.), a district.

Virgo (F.), a maiden.

SINGULAR.	PLURAL.	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM. rēgīo,	rēgīōnēs.	virgo,	virgīnēs.
GEN. rēgīōnis,	rēgīōnum.	virgīnis,	virgīnum.
DAT. rēgīōnī,	rēgīōnībus.	virgīnī,	virgīnībus.
ACC. rēgīōnem,	rēgīōnēs.	virgīnem,	virgīnēs.
VOC. rēgīo,	rēgīōnēs.	virgo,	virgīnēs.
ABL. rēgīōnē,	rēgīōnībus.	virgīnē,	virgīnībus.¹

The dentals -t and -d are dropped in the nominative before -s. Thus: pēs = pedes; mīles = mīlites (with a change of vowel).

Between two vowels -s becomes -r. Thus: hōnos (later form honor) has the genitive hōnōris for hōnōsis; corpōris is for corpōsis.

The -s is sometimes dropped in the nominative and vocative, as in rēgīo, virgo. Nominatives in -o have also lost the final -n of the stem. Thus the stem of rēgīo is rēgīōn-.

VOCABULARY.

LESSON XXVI.

GENDER OF NOUNS OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.*

1. Most nouns of the third declension ending in -er, -or, -os, -es, (increasing in the genitive), -o (except -do, -go, -io) are masculine: as, carcer Romanus, a Roman prison; honor magnus, a great honor;

*Exceptions to the rules will be found in the Appendix.

flos albus, a white flower; paries altus, a high wall; sermo Latinus, the Latin language.

2. Most nouns of the third declension which end in -do, -go, -io, -as, -is, -aus, -x, -es (not increasing in the genitive), -s (preceded by a consonant), -ūs (in words of more than one syllable), are feminine: as, multitudo magna, a great multitude; imāgo cerēa, a wax image; orātio longa, a long speech; aestas callida, a warm summer; avis rara, a rare bird; laus parva, small praise; vox magna, a loud voice; clādes nostra, our defeat; plebs Romana, the Roman populace; virtūs divīna, divine valor.

3. Most nouns of the third declension which end in -c, -a, -t, -e, -l, -n, -ar, -ur, -ūs, ūs (in words of one syllable), are neuter: as, lac album white milk; pōēma longum, a long poem; cāput suum, his own head; mǎre magnum, a great sea; ānīmal fērum, a wild animal; limen altum, a high threshold; calcar acūtum, a sharp spur; fulgur clārum, a bright flash; tempūs antīquum, ancient time; iūs magnum, a great right.

EXERCISE.

State the gender of all nouns in the following list, giving the rule for each:—

nāvis, nāvis, a ship.

nix, nīvis, snow,

lītus, lītōris, a shore

ōnus, ōnēris, a load.

cāput, cāpītis, a head.

ōrātio, ōrātīōnis, a speech.

carmen, carmīnis, a song.

rādex, rādicis, a root.

ānīmal, ānīmālis, an animal.

mǎre, mǎris, sea.

turrīs, turrīs, a tower.

plēbs, plēbis, the populace.

aedīfīco, āre, āvi, to build.

curvus, a, um, winding.

āmoenus, a, um, beautiful (of scenery).

LESSON XXVII.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION.

1. Adjectives of the third declension are declined like nouns of the third declension. They are called adjectives of one, two, or three terminations respectively, according as they have one, two, or three forms in the nom. sing. for expressing gender.

2. Adjectives of the third declension in -er, are of three terminations, and are declined as follows :—

Ācer, sharp, severe.

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.

VOC.	ācēr	ācrīs	ācrē	ācrēs	ācrēs	ācriā
ABL.	ācrī	ācrī	ācrī	ācribūs	ācribūs	ācribus

Note.—All adjectives of the third declension in -er are declined like acer; all (except cēler, cēlōris, swift,) drop the -e before -r in the oblique cases (i. e., in all but the nom. and voc.) They are all -i-stems, and, therefore, have the abl. sing. in -ī, the gen. plur. in -īum, and the nom. plur. neuter in -īa.

3. Adjectives of two terminations in -is, -e are declined as follows:—

Mitis, mild.

	SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.

Note.—Adjectives in -is, -e, have always -ī in the abl. sing., -īum in the gen. plur., and -īa in the nom. and acc. neuter plur.

4. The comparative degree of the Latin adjective (which regularly ends in -ior for the masc. and fem., and -ius for the neut.) is an adjective of two terminations. It is thus declined:—

Mitior, milder

	SINGULAR.		PLURAL.
	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	mitior	mitius	mitiōrēs	mitiōrā

10. Many animals are not swift.
11. Caesar fought a cavalry battle near the sea.
12. Are not many old men mild?

LESSON XXVIII.

Many adjectives of the third declension have only one form in the nominative singular to express gender. These generally end in -s or -x. They are consonant stems, but follow in part the declension of -i stems, having -i or -e in the ablative singular; -ium in the genitive plural, and -ia in the neuter plural. Thus :—

Audax, bold.

Fēlix, fortunate.

Caesar called the soldiers of the tenth legion veterans (acc.) 15. We often gazed-at the rising lights of heaven.

LESSON XXIX.

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

1. Adjectives in Latin are compared, as in English, either by means of endings (terminational comparison), or by prefixing the adverbs māgis, more, and maxīme, most, to the positive (adverbial comparison).

2. Most adjectives are compared by means of the endings -ior (masc. and fem.), -ius (neut.), for the comparative, and -issimus (a, -um) for the superlative : as, Altus, high; altior, higher; altissimus, highest; grāvis, heavy, severe; gravior, gravissimus.

3. Most adjectives in -us (-a, -um), most adjectives in -is (-is, -e), and most adjectives of the third declension of one termination, are compared like altus. Thus :—

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
doctus, learned,	doctior,	doctissimus.
dulcis, sweet,	dulcior,	dulcissimus.
ātrox, dark,	atrōcior,	atrocissimus.

Note.—All these adjectives are compared by dropping the -i, or the -is, of the genitive singular of the positive, and adding -ior or -issimus to the part remaining.

4. Comparatives (except plus, p. 51) are all declined like mitior (p. 50); superlatives, like bonus (p. 20).

5. Than after a comparative is quam, which takes the same case after it as the corresponding word before it¹: as, Lupus est saevior quam canis, the wolf is fiercer than the dog. Lupum saeviozem quam canem aestimo, I consider the wolf fiercer than the dog. Quam, however, is frequently omitted, and then the noun following the comparative is put in the ablative: as, Lupus saevior cane est, the wolf is fiercer than the dog; lupum saeviozem cane aestimo, I consider the wolf fiercer than the dog.

Note.—Quam can only be omitted when the noun or pronoun before the comparative is in the nominative or accusative: as, Caesāri potius quam Balbo donabit, he will give to Caesar rather than to Balbus (here quam must be used).

VOCABULARY.

fortis, -is, -e, strong.	fīnis, finis (M.), end; pl., territories.
brēvis, is, -e, short.	lux, lūcis (F.), light.
sāpiens, sapientis, wise.	iūdex, iūdīcis, judge.
vēlox, velōcis, swift.	vīta, vitae, life.
āēr, aēris (M.), air.	festin-o, -āre, -āvi, hasten.
ventus, i, wind.	lōc-o, āre, āvi, place, pitch.

¹The word after quam, if the subject of a verb, will of course be in the nom.: as, He carries a heavier load than Balbus (carries), portat ōnus gravius quam Balbus (portat).

EXERCISE.

Compare all the adjectives in the above list. Decline together :
vir doctior, homo brevissimus, iudex sapiens, navis velox.

Translate into English :—

1. Leges inter Romanos gravissimae erant. 2. Omnium Gallorum fortissimi sunt. 3. Felicior est pater quam filius. 4. Iudex sapientior rege est. 5. On a high hill the soldiers pitched their camp. 13. The swiftest ships of the enemy are in the deep river. 14. Between the territories of the Gauls and Germans (gen.) there is a deeper river.

LESSON XXX.

ADJECTIVES OF IRREGULAR COMPARISON.

1. Adjectives in -er form their comparative regularly in -ior; but their superlative is formed by adding -rimus to the nominative singular masculine of the positive : as,

POSITIVĒ

ācer, *sharp*miser, *were*cēler, swifter

pulcher,

niger, black

LESSON XXXI.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON.—(Continued.)

blowing adjectives are irregular in the superlative:—

NOTE.—	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
rĭmus in tutward ,	extĕrĭor,	extrĕmus and extĭmus.
mātūrissĭmĕr,	infĕrĭor,	infĭmus and ĩmus.

LESSON XXXII.

ADVERBIAL COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES.

1. Adjectives in -us preceded by a vowel, usually form their comparative and superlative by means of the adverbs māgis, more, and maxīme, most, respectively : as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
īdōnēus, fit, suitable.	māgis īdōnēus,	maxīmē īdōnēus.
dūbīus, doubtful,	māgis dūbīus,	maxīmē dūbīus.

But adjectives in -quus, form the comparative and superlative regularly : as, antīquus, ancient, antiquior, antiquissimus.

2. Adjectives followed in English by to or for, are usually followed by a dative in Latin : as, Utīlis civitāti, useful to the state; aptus bello, fit for war; similis patri, like (to) the father.

3. Adjectives followed in English by of, are usually followed in Latin by the genitive: as, Avīdus laudis, greedy of praise; plenus militum, full of soldiers. Dignus (worthy), however, takes the abl.: as, Dignus poenā, worthy of punishment.

VOCABULARY.

amicus, -a, -um, friendly.	avidus, greedy, fond.
inimicus, -a, -um, unfriendly.	similis, -e, like (with the dat.)

⁴ Another form of numeral adverbs in -ens is in -ēs : quinquēs, sexīs.

4. Cardinal numerals are indeclinable except (1) ūnus, one; dūo, two; trēs, three; (2) the hundreds, beginning with dūcenti, two hundred; (3) the plural of mille, a thousand.

Unus, one, has already been declined (p. 27). Dūo and trēs are declined as follows :—

Duo, two.

	MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.
NOM.	dūo	dūae	dūo
GEN.	dūōrum	dūārum	dūōrum
DAT.	dūōbus	dūābus	dūōbus

GEN.	trīum	trīum
DAT.	trībus	trībus
ACC.	trēs (is)	trīā
VOC.	trēs	trīā
ABL.	trībus	trībus

5. Millē, a thousand, is indeclinable in the singular, but in the plural is declined as follows :—

NOM. milliā ,	GEN. millium ,	DAT. millibus ,
ACC. millia ,		ABL. millibus .

Note.—Mille, in the singular, may be either an adjective, or a noun with the word depending on it in the genitive : as, Mille hōmīnes or mille hōmīnum, a thousand men. In the plural it is always a noun : as, Decem millia hōmīnum, ten thousand men (=ten thousand of men).

6. Compound numbers like 21, 22, &c., when between 20 and 100, are written ūnus et viginti, duo et viginti, or viginti unus, viginti duo, &c.

Above one hundred, the greater number precedes (with or without et): as, dūcenti unus, or dūcenti et unus, two hundred and one.

7. The ordinals are declined like the singular of bonus (p. 20), and the distributives like the plural of bonus.

8. The distributive numerals are used :—

(a) To express our so many at a time, so many each, with a cardinal numeral : as, Pūēris bīnos libros dōnāvit, he gave the boys two books apiece.

(b) To express multiplication : as, Bīs bīna, twice two.

(c) With substantives that have a different meaning in the singular and plural, respectively : as, Bīna castra, two camps. (Castrum is a fort; dūo castra, would mean two forts. See Appendix).

EXTENT OF TIME AND SPACE.

9. Duration of time and extent of space are usually expressed by the accusative : as, Romulus septem et triginta annos regnavit, Romulus reigned thirty-seven years; nix quattuor pēdes alta, snow four feet deep. (Per, through, is added to the accusative of time to express precision.)

PARTITIVE GENITIVE.

10. The partitive genitive expresses the whole of which a part is taken : as, Pars militum, part of the soldiers; unus militum, one of the soldiers; decem millia passuum, ten thousand paces (=ten Roman miles).

EXERCISE.

Decline together : ūnus miles, dūae dōmūs, tria millia passuum, alter hōmo.

Translate into English (for vocabulary, see end of book) :—

Some of the soldiers fought against the Gauls for ten years. 14. The king reigned twelve years in the state.

LESSON XXXVII.

PASSIVE VOICE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION. (Continued.)

1. The perfect, pluperfect, and future-perfect of the indicative passive are formed from the perfect participle passive with sum, to be. Thus :

PERFECT.

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
1.	Pers., āmātus sum , I have been, or was, loved.	āmātī sūmus , we have been, or were, loved.
2.	“ āmātus es , thou hast been, or wast, loved.	āmātī estis , you have been, or were, loved.
3.	“ āmātus est , he has been, or was, loved.	āmātī sunt , they have been, or were, loved.

PLUPERFECT.

1.	“ āmātus eram , I had been loved.	āmātī erāmus , we had been loved.
2.	“ āmātus eras , thou hadst been loved.	āmātī erātis , you had been loved.
3.	“ āmātus erat , he had been loved.	āmātī erant they had been loved.

FUTURE PERFECT.

- | | | |
|-----------|--|--|
| 1. Pers., | āmātus ēro, I shall have been loved. | āmātī ērimus, we shall have been loved. |
| 2. “ | āmātus ēris, thou wilt have been loved. | āmātī ēritis, you will have been loved. |
| 3. “ | āmātus ērit, he will have been loved. | āmātī ērunt, they will have been loved. |

IMPERATIVE PRESENT.

2. The present imperative passive is inflected as follows:—

- | | | |
|-----------|------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 2. Pers., | āmāre, be thou loved. | āmāmīni, be ye loved. |
|-----------|------------------------------|------------------------------|

Note.—The perfect participle passive is regularly formed by adding -tus to the present stem: as, āmā-re, to love; present stem, ama-; perfect participle passive, āmā-tus. The perfect participle passive is inflected like the adjective bonus, and agrees with the noun to which it refers, in gender, number and case: as, Puer amatus est, the boy has been loved; amatus is nominative singular masculine, agreeing with puer. Puella amata est, the girl has been loved; amata is nominative singular feminine, agreeing with puella.

3. From the perfect participle passive, by the change of -us into -um, is formed the supine in -um. The supine in -um has the force of the English infinitive used to express purpose; but it is used only after verbs of motion: as, Puerum portavit ludos spectātum, he brought the boy to see the games (spectātum is the supine in -um after the verb of motion portavit.)

Note.—The present indicative, the present infinitive, the perfect indicative, and the supine, are called the principal parts of the verb. Thus: āmo, amāre, amāvi, amātum, are the principal parts of amo.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: porto, āro, dono, vōco, laudo.

Did not the Romans collect (compāro) three thousand cavalry and six thousand infantry in the spring?

LESSON XXXIX.

ADVERBS.

1. Adverbs are formed from adjectives in -us and -er of the first and second declensions, by changing the genitive singular of the adjective into ē. Thus :—

ADJECTIVE.	GENITIVE.	ADVERB.
cārus, dear,	cār-i,	cār-ē, dearly. dignus, worthy,	dign-i,	dign-ē, worthily.
pulcher, beautiful,	pulchr-i,	pulchr-ē, beautifully.
mīser, wretched,	mīsēr-i,	mīsēr-ē, wretchedly.

2. Adverbs are formed from adjectives of the third declension by changing the -is of the genitive singular into -iter, or—if the adjective ends in -ns—into -er. Thus :—

¹Omit that.

ADJECTIVE.	GENITIVE.	ADVERB.
fortis, brave ,	fort-is,	fort-iter, bravely .
grāvis, heavy ,	grāv-is,	grāv-iter, heavily .
ācer, sharp ,	ācr-is,	ācr-iter, sharply .
fērox, fierce ,	fērōc-is,	fērōc-iter, fiercely .
sāpiens, wise ,	sāpiēnt-is,	sāpiēnt-er, wisely .
prūdēns, prudent ,	prūdēnt-is,	prūdēnt-er, prudently .

3. Some adverbs have two forms, one in -e and one in -ter :

as,

ADJECTIVES.	ADVERBS.
dūrus, hard ,	dūr-ē, dūr-iter.
firmus, firm ,	firm-ē, firm-iter.
largus, bounteous ,	larg-ē, larg-iter.
hūmānus, courteous ,	hūmān-ē, hūmān-iter.
mīser, wretched ,	mīsēr-ē, mīsēr-iter.

4. The neuter accusative singular of many adjectives is used as an adverb : as,

ADJECTIVE.	ADVERB.
multus, much ,	multum.
fācīlis, easy ,	fācīlē.
rēcens, fresh ,	rēcens.
dulcis, sweet ,	dulcē.

5. The neuter singular comparative of the adjective is used as the comparative of the adverb. The superlative of the adverb is formed from the superlative of the adjective, by changing the genitive singular ending to -ē. Thus :

	POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
{	ADJ. cārus, dear ,	cārīor,	cārissīmus.
{	ADV. cārē,	cārīus,	cārissīmē.
{	ADJ. mīser, wretched ,	mīsērīor,	mīserrīmus.
{	ADV. mīsērē,	mīsērīus,	mīserrīmē.
{	ADJ. ācer, sharp ,	ācrīor,	ācerrīmus.
{	ADV. ācrīter,	ācrīus,	ācerrīmē.
{	ADJ. prūdēns, prudent ,	prūdēntīor,	prūdēntissīmus.
{	ADV. prūdēnter,	prūdēntīus,	prūdēntissīmē.

6. Some adverbs are formed irregularly from adjectives : as,

ADVERBS.

ADJECTIVE.	POSITIVE.	COMPAR.	SUPERL.
bōnus, good ,	bēne, well ,	mēlius,	optimē.
mālus, bad ,	māle, badly ,	pēius,	pessimē.
multus, much ,	multum, much ,	plūs,	plurimē or plurimum.
parvus, small, little ,	pārum, little ,	mīnus,	mīnimē.
magnus, great ,	magnōpēre, greatly ,	māgis,	maximē.

7. Some adverbs, not derived from adjectives, are compared : as,

POSITIVE.	COMPARATIVE.	SUPERLATIVE.
dīū, long ,	dīūtius,	dīūtissimē.
saepē, often ,	saepius,	saepissimē.

EXERCISE.

Form adverbs from the following adjectives, and compare both adjectives and adverbs : Cēler, swift; altus, high; aeger, sick; similis, like; libens, willing; audax, bold.

Decline together : aquila celeris, dies clarior, eques fortissimus, vita melior.

Translate into English :—

1. Romani multos annos contra Karthaginienses fortiter pugnaverunt. 2. Vere imperator unam legionem celeriter comparabit. 3. Una legio ab duce Romano aestate celerrime comparatur. 4. The road to the top of the mountain is very difficult. 14. Caesar posted (loco) the soldiers of the tenth legion on the right wing.

LESSON XL.

SECOND CONJUGATION.

Indicative and Imperative Active.

1. The second conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ē before the present infinitive ending -re: as,

mōnēo, I advise,

pres. inf., mōnē-re, to advise.

hābēo, I have,

pres. inf., hābē-re, to have.

2. The part that is left after dropping the ending -re, is called the present stem; and the present, imperfect and future indicative are formed from it, as in the first conjugation.

3. The perfect is sometimes formed, as in the first conjugation, by adding -vī to the present stem: as,

PRES. INDICATIVE.

PRES. INFINITIVE.

PRES. STEM.

PERFECT.

dēlēo, I destroy,

dēlē-re,

dēlē-

dēlēvī.

4. Most verbs, however, form the perfect by dropping the final -ē of the present stem and adding -ūī: as,

PRES. INDICATIVE.

PRES. INFINITIVE.

PRES. STEM.

PERFECT.

mōnēo, I advise,

mōnē-re,

mōnūī.

5. Some verbs drop the -ē of the present stem and add -si : as,

PRES. INDICATIVE.	PRES. INFINITIVE.	PRES. STEM.	PERFECT.
mānĕo, I remain,	mānĕ-re,	mānĕ-	man-si.
iūbĕo, I order,	iūbĕ-re,	iūbĕ-	ius-si (=iub-si).

6. The present imperative is got, as in the other conjugations, by dropping the -re of the infinitive : as,

PRESENT INDICATIVE.	PRESENT INFINITIVE.	PRESENT IMPERATIVE.
mōnĕo, I advise,	mōnĕ-re,	mōnĕ.
iūbĕo, I order,	iūbĕ-re,	iūbĕ.

7. The indicative and imperative active of mōnĕo are inflected as follows :—

Mōnĕo, I advise.

INDICATIVE.

RULES FOR EXPRESSING TIME.

1. A point of time is expressed by the ablative : as, Hieme noctes sunt longae, in winter the nights are long.

2. Within a point of time is expressed either by the simple ablative, or by the accusative with inter or intra : as, Paucis diebus, inter paucos dies, intra paucos dies, within a few days.

3. Many years after is, multis annis post; many years before is multis annis ante : as, Multis annis post urbs expugnata est, the city was taken many years after. (post is an adverb).

Note.—Post multos annos is also used for many years after and ante multos annos for many years before.

4. Duration of time is expressed by the accusative : as, Romulus septem et triginta regnavit annos, Romulus reigned for thirty-seven years.

5. Ago is expressed by abhinc followed by the words expressing time in the accusative or ablative : as, Abhinc decem dies (or abhinc decem diebus) Caesar castra mōvit, ten days ago Caesar moved his camp.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : prima lux, quaestor fortis, summus mons, dies sérēnus, duo pedes.

At the beginning of summer, the boy was seen in the fields daily. 13. The town was destroyed by the Roman commander ten years ago.

LESSON XLII.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

Indicative and Imperative Active.

1. The third conjugation includes all verbs that have the characteristic vowel -ĕ before the present infinitive ending -re. The present stem is obtained by dropping -rĕ; and from it the verb stem, which always ends in a consonant or -u, is obtained by dropping the characteristic -ĕ: as,

PRESENT INFINITIVE.	PRESENT STEM.	VERB STEM.
rĕgĕre, to rule,	rĕgĕ-	rĕg-
mĭnŭĕre, to lessen,	mĭnŭĕ-	mĭnŭ.

2. The perfect is formed regularly by adding -si to the verb stem: as,

PRES. INFIN.	PRES. STEM.	VERB STEM.	PERF. INDIC.
rēgēre	rēgĕ-	rĕg-	rexī (=rēgsi)

3. The future is formed by adding -am to the verb stem: as,

PRES. INFIN.	PRES. STEM.	VERB STEM.	FUT. INDIC.
rēgēre	rēgĕ-	rĕg-	rēg-am

4. The indicative and imperative active of rēgo, I rule, are inflected as follows:—

Rēgo, I rule.

RULES FOR EXPRESSING PLACE.

1. Place to which is regularly expressed by the accusative with a preposition, unless before the names of towns and small islands : as, Ad Galliam, ad urbem contendit, he hastens to Gaul, to the city. With the names of towns and small islands, place to which is regularly expressed by the accusative without a preposition : as, *Romam, Corinthum, Karthaginem, Aeginam, contendit, he hastens to Rome, Corinth, Karthage, Aegina.*¹ So also domum (home), rus (to the country), are used without a preposition : as, Domum, rus ambulat, he walks home, to the country.

2. Place from which is regularly expressed by the ablative with a preposition, unless before the names of towns and small islands : as, Ab Gallia, ab urbe contendit, he hastens, from Gaul, from the city. But with the names of towns and small islands, from is regularly expressed by the ablative without a preposition : as, Romā, Corintho, Karthagine, Aeginā contendit, he hastens from Rome, Corinth, Karthage, Aegina. So also domo, is from home; rure, from the country.

3. To express place in which, a preposition is required, unless with the names of towns and small islands : as, In Gallia, in urbe, vivit, he lives in Gaul, in the city. But to express place in which with the names of towns or small islands, the so-called *locative*² case is used. This case has the form of (a) the genitive, if the noun is of the first or second declension singular ; (b) the ablative, if the noun is of the third declension singular or if the noun is plural : as, Romae, at Rome; Corinthi, at Corinth; Karthagine, at Karthage; Athēnis, at Athens (Athenae, pl.); Delphis, at Delphi (Delphi, pl.); Curibus, at Cures (Cures, pl.)

² A case which became obsolete in the later language.

So, too, domi, at home; humi, on the ground; belli, in war; ruri, in the country; militiæ, on military service, abroad.

4. When urbs or oppidum is used in apposition to the name of a town, the preposition should be expressed : as, Ad urbem Rōmam contendit, he set out for the city of Rome ; ex urbe Romā properavit, he hastened from the city of Rome ; in urbe Roma vixit, he lived in the city of Rome. (Latin says : The city Rome for our city of Rome.)

EXERCISE.

Decline together : proximus collis, puer diligens, extrema aestas, domus parvā, primum ver, exercitus magnus, puella prudens.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesar copias suas ad proximum collem subduxit. 2. Romae consules a civibus quotannis creantur. 3. Dionysius pueros Corinthi abhinc multis annis docēbat. 4. Imperator ad Italiam extremā aestate contendit. 5. Vir erat non solum domi, sed etiam belli clarissimus. 6. Dux hostium fossam, duo millia passuum longam, ex castris ad flumen perduxit. 7. Vere multos dies ruri puer mansit. 8. Milites plurīmi ad Karthaginem, urbem omnium rerum plenam, aestate comparati sunt. 9. Primo vere Pompeius omnes copias hostium terrā marique superavit. 10. Plato multos annos Athenis vixit. 11. In Gallia citeriore decem diebus duae legiones a Caesare comparatae sunt. 12. Lacedaemon erat honestissimum domicilium senectūtis. 13. Aestate legatus decimam legionem Romae conscripsit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. At Ephesus there was a splendid temple of Diana. 2. He was even more distinguished at home than abroad. 3. At the end of summer two legions were collected (comparo) at Athens. 4. He walks within five hours from the city to his home. 5. The general led his army from Rome to Athens within four months. 6. Was not the boy advised by his teacher many days ago? 7. Was he living in the beginning of spring at Rome? 8. Romulus reigned in the city of Rome for thirty-seven years. 9. Pompey hastened from Brundisium in the beginning of night. 10. The top of the hill was held by Labienus, a brave lieutenant of Caesar. 11. The general in the middle of summer enrolled (conscribo) three legions at Lucca, a town of hither Gaul. 12. Within fifty days the pirates were defeated (supero) by Pompey. 13. The man was wounded in the battle by the darts of the enemy.

LESSON XLIII.

Formation of the Perfect Active and Supine Stems.

Note.—The principal parts of all verbs of the 3rd conjugation should, owing to their irregularity, be carefully committed to memory as they occur.

1. The perfect indicative active is regularly formed by adding -si, and the supine by adding -tum, to the verb stem: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
rēgo,	rēgēre,	rexī (=regsi),	rectur, (=regtum)

2. But some verbs have a reduplicated perfect: i. e., the first consonant of the word is prefixed with a vowel (generally -ē) added: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
cādo, I fall ,	cādēre,	cē-cīdī,	cāsum. (=cad-tum)

Note.—The stem vowel is often weakened as in this case (-ā passing to -ī).

3. Sometimes, too, the reduplication has been lost: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
fīdo, I cleave ,	fīdēre,	fīdī (=fī-fīdī)	fīssum.

4. The stem vowel is sometimes lengthened for the perfect: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
āgo, I do ,	āgēre,	ēgī,	actum.
lēgo, I choose ,	lēgēre	lēgī,	lectum.

5. Sometimes, to form the perfect, an -i is added to the verb stem: as,

PRES. IND.	PRES. INFIN.	PERF. INDIC.	SUPINE.
rūo, I rush,	rūēre,	rūī,	rūtum.
verto, I turn,	vertēre,	verti,	versum.

6. Learn the principal parts of :

Do not punish, O master, the best boy.

LESSON XLVII.

COGNATE ACCUSATIVE. ACCUSATIVE WITH PREPOSITIONS IN COMPOSITION.

1. Verbs are often followed by an accusative of kindred origin or meaning : as, Turpissimam vitam vivit, he lives a very base life; mirum somnium somniavit, he dreamt a wonderful dream;

proelium pugnāt, he fights a battle. This is called the cognate accusative.

2. Many intransitive verbs, especially those expressing motion and compounded with the preposition ad (to), circum (around), per (through), praeter (past), trans (across), or super (above), take an accusative after them: as, Cato rostra advolat, Cato flies to the hustings; equites Romani senatum circumstant, Roman knights surround the senate; murmur contionem pervāsīt, a murmur went through the assembly. (Here the accusative depends on the preposition. The sentences might have been expressed thus: Ad rostra Cato volat; equites Romani circum senatum stant; murmur per contionem vāsīt).

3. The transitive verbs, transduco (or traduco), I lead across, and transporto, I bear across, may take two accusatives in the active, one depending on the verb and the other on the preposition: as, Hannibal copias Ibērum traduxit, Hannibal led the forces across the Ebro; Caesar milites navibus flumen transportat, Caesar conveys his soldiers across the river in ships.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: media aestas, album lac, dura servitus, summum consilium, omnes boni cives.

1. Caesar omnes copias Rhenum mediā aestate traduxerat. 2. Tres iam partes copiarum Helvetii flumen traduxērunt. 3. Plerique frumenta non serunt; pellibus vestiti sunt. 4. Naves Romanae oram Siciliae praetervectae sunt. 5. Catilina cum sociis sceleratis senatum circumstat. 6. Cato primus sententiam in senatu rogatur. 7. Hannibal nonaginta millia hominum flumen Iberum transducit. 8. Num Galli multos annos durissimam servitutem servient? 9. Summum senatūs consilium ab Romanis appellatum est. 10. Mercator hieme mare navigabit. 11. Xerxes Hellespontum exercitum traduxit. 12. Ab omnibus bonis civibus auditus eram.

Translate into Latin:—

1. The Romans did not sail the sea in the middle of winter. 2. Did not the general with all his forces fly to the city? 3. The citizens stand round the temple of Jupiter. 4. The Germans led their forces across the Rhine. 5. Will he be contented with his lot? 6. Was not a large army led across the mountains into Gaul? 7. The enemy fought a fierce battle in the middle of the plain. 8. The man lived at Athens for many years, but he was brought up at Rome. 9. In early spring Hannibal will lead a large army across the Alps. 10. He was heard by the noblest men of our state. 11. The Romans were taught the art of war by necessity. 12. Did not Marius make a very long journey in the middle of summer?

LESSON XLVIII.

Verbs in -io.

1. A few verbs of the third conjugation form the present indicative in -io (active), -ior (passive), like verbs of the fourth conjugation except that -i is short (-ī) throughout the present : as,

iācio,	iācēre,	iēcī,	iactum, throw.
rāpio,	rāpēre,	rāpūi,	raptum, seize.

2. Many verbs that are intransitive in English are transitive in Latin, especially verbs of emotion, taste or smell: as, Sequāni Ariovisti crudelitatem horrēbant, the Sequani shuddered at the cruelty of Ariovistus; haec oratio antiquitatem olet, this speech smacks of antiquity; piscis mare sapit, the fish tastes of the sea.

3. An adjective or a verb may take an accusative to define its meaning: as, Puer caput vulneratur, the boy is wounded in the head; imperator dextram manum ictus est, the general was struck on the right hand. Here caput and manum define the meaning of the verbs vulneratur and ictus est. Such accusatives are called accusatives of specification or closer definition.

Was not the brave soldier wounded severely in the head by the dart of the enemy? 14. Were you throwing a spear?

LESSON XLIX.

THE PARTICIPLE.

1. The Latin participle has partly the nature of a verb, and partly that of an adjective. Hence the name (from pars and capio).

Like a verb, it has voice, tense, and number, and governs the same case as the verb from which it is derived; like the adjective, it has declension and gender, and agrees with nouns.

2. Transitive verbs have, in the active, a present and a future participle; and in the passive, a perfect and a future participle.

3. The present participle active always ends in the nominative in -ns, and is declined like oriens (p. 53); the future participle active ends in -tūrus, and is declined like bonus (p. 20).

ACTIVE VOICE.

PRESENT.

FUTURE.

1. Conj., āma-ns , loving .	āmā-tūrus , about to love .
2. “ mōne-ns , advising .	mōnī-tūrus , about to advise .
3. “ rēge-ns , ruling .	rec-tūrus , about to rule .
4. “ audīe-ns , hearing .	audī-tūrus , about to hear .

4. The present participle expresses an act that takes place simultaneously with that of the main verb: as, Caesar, ex urbe decēdens, legionem conscribit, Caesar, while leaving the city, enrolls a legion. (Here decēdens is nom. sing. masc., agreeing with Caesar.)

5. The present participle is often used with the case absolute which in Latin is the ablative, and not, as in English, the nominative: as, Coniuratio facta est, Tarquinio regnante, the conspiracy was formed in the reign of Tarquin (i.e., Tarquin reigning).

Note.—The future participle active often expresses intention: as, Urbem capturi sumus, we are about to take the city (= we intend).

Present stem	{	1. Conj., amā-tus , having been loved. and -tus .		2. “ mōnī-tus , having been advised (-ē of stem changed to -ī).
(In 3rd conj., verb stem	{	3. “ rec-tus , having been ruled (=reg-tus).
+tus.)		4. “ audī-tus , having been heard.

FUTURE PARTICIPLE PASSIVE

Present stem and -ndus.	}	1. Conj., ama-ndus, about to be loved.
		2. “ mone-ndus, about to be advised.
		3. “ rege-ndus, about to be ruled.
		4. “ audie-ndus, about to be heard (i changed to -ie in stem).

2. The perfect participle passive expresses an act completed before that of the verb to which it is joined: as, Homo, ab amico monitus, coniurationem fecit, the man, advised by his friend, formed a conspiracy. (Here the “advising” must precede the “forming of the conspiracy.”)

This participle is often used with an ablative absolute: as, Opère perfecto, suos reduxit, the work finished, he led back his men. But the ablative absolute should not be translated literally. Thus: opere perfecto is on (or after) finishing the work, or when he had finished the work.

3. Latin has no perfect participle active. Its place is supplied by (1) the ablative absolute with the perfect participle passive: as, Urbe captā, copias reduxit, having taken the city, he led back his forces (i.e., the city having been taken); (2) postquam with the perf. indic.: as, Postquam urbem cēpit, copias reduxit *after he took the city, he led back his forces*¹.

Note.—Two nouns, or an adjective and a noun, in the ablative absolute are used (as sum, I am, has no present participle) without a copula: as, Tullo rege, when Tullus was king; Caesāre consūle, in the consulship of Caesar; caelo serēno navigāmus, we sail when the sky is clear (=the sky being clear).

LESSON LI.

PERSONAL AND REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The pronoun of the first person, ĕgo, I, is inflected as follows :—

Ego, I.

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	ĕgo, I.	nōs, we.
GEN.	mĕi, of me.	nōstrum or nōstri, of us.
DAT.	mihī, to or for me.	nōbis, to or for us.
ACC.	mĕ, me.	nōs, us.
VOC.	Wanting.	Wanting.
ABL.	mĕ, with, from, or by me.	nōbis, with, from, or by us.

2. The pronoun of the second person, tū, thou, is inflected as follows :—

Tū, thou, you (sing.)

	SINGULAR.	PLURAL.
NOM.	tū, thou, you.	vōs, you or ye.
GEN.	tūi of thee or you.	vestrum or vestri, of you.
DAT.	tīhī, to or for thee or you	vōbis, to or for you.
ACC.	tĕ, thee, you.	vōs, you.
VOC.	tū, thou.	vōs, you.
ABL.	tĕ, with, from, by thee or you.	vōbis, with, by or from you.

Note.—The genitives nostrum and vestrum are always used partitively. (p. 69, 10) : as, Unus nostrum, one of us. Otherwise nostri and vestri are used : as, Mĕmor nostri, mindful of us.

3. The pronouns of the first and second persons are rarely expressed, except for emphasis or contrast : as, Ego laudo sed tu vitupĕras, I praise, but you blame (or, if the emphasis is to be brought out distinctly, It is I that praise, but you that blame.)

4. The personal pronouns of the third person are wanting, but are supplied by the demonstratives hic, ille, is, this, that (p. 117).

5. A reflexive pronoun is one that refers to the subject of a verb : as, Tĕ laudas, you praise yourself. (Here tĕ is a reflexive, referring to the subject of laudas.) The first and second personal pronouns are used as reflexives of the first and second persons : as, Ego me laudo, I praise myself; nos nos laudāmus, we praise ourselves; tu te laudas, you praise yourself; vos vos laudatis, you praise yourselves.

6. The reflexive pronoun of the third person is as follows :—

Sui, of himself.

NOM. Wanting.

GEN. sui, of himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

DAT. sibi, to himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

ACC. sē, himself, (herself, itself, themselves).

VOC. ———

ABL. sē, with, from, by himself (herself, itself, themselves).

Note.—Sese is often used for se in the accusative.

7. The forms of sui refer to the subject of the verb : as, Caesar se laudat, Caesar praises himself; milites se laudant, the soldiers praise themselves.

8. The preposition cum, with, when used with the ablative of a personal or reflexive pronoun, is written as a suffix : as, Mecum, tecum, secum, nobiscum, vobiscum, with me, you, etc.

VERBS GOVERNING A DATIVE

9. The dative is used in Latin with many verbs that in English govern the accusative. This is usual with verbs meaning to please, favor, trust, assist and their contraries ; also, believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, spare, pardon, be angry : as, Res omnibus hominibus placuit, the thing pleased all men; Fortūna fortibus favet, Fortune favors the brave; legibus pāruit consul, as consul he obeyed the laws.

Note.—The following, however, govern the accusative :—

Iuvo, adiuvo, I aid; delecto, I delight; laedo, offendo, I harm; iubeo, I order; vĕto, prohibeo, I forbid; rego, guberno, I rule, I direct : as, Libris me delecto, I delight myself with books; multa oculos laedunt, many things hurt the eyes.

Fido and confido, I trust, take the dative of the person and the ablative of the thing : as, Non tibi, sed exercitu meo confido, not you, but my army I trust.

10. Verbs compounded with bene, male, satis govern the dative : as, Optimo viro maledixit, he reviled a most excellent man; mihi nunquam satisfecit, he never satisfied me.

11. Latin puts a pronoun of the first person before one of the second, and one of the second before one of the third. A verb, therefore, referring to several subjects will be plural and agree with the first person rather than with the second, and with the second rather than with the third : as, Ego et tu valēmus, you and I are well (note the order of the Latin); tu et Tullia valētis, Tullia and you are well.

EXERCISE.

LESSON LII.

INFINITIVE MOOD.

1. Sum, I am, has three infinitive forms, viz., the present infin., esse, to be; the perfect infin., fūi-sse, to have been; and the future infin., fūtūrus esse, to be about to be (fū-tūrus=fut. part).

2. Transitive verbs usually have three infinitive forms in the active in Latin and three in the passive : viz., the present, perfect, and future infinitive.

ACTIVE INFINITIVES.

In the active voice the infinitive is thus formed :—

Perf. infin. = perf. stem + -sse.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1. \text{ \u0177m\u00e1vi-sse, to have loved.} \\ 2. \text{ m\u00f3nui-sse, to have advised.} \\ 3. \text{ rexi-sse, to have ruled.} \\ 4. \text{ aud\u00edvi sse, to have heard.} \end{array} \right.$
Future infin. = future part. act. + esse, to be.	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{\u0177m\u00e1t\u00fcrus esse, to be about to love.} \\ \text{m\u00f3n\u00ed\u00fcturus esse, to be about to advise.} \\ \text{rect\u00fcrus esse, to be about to rule.} \\ \text{aud\u00ed\u00fcturus esse, to be about to hear.} \end{array} \right.$

3. In the passive voice the infinitives are thus formed :—

PASSIVE INFINITIVES.

Present infinitive = present stem + ri (except in third conj. which adds -i to verb stem).	$\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1. \text{ \u0177m\u00e1-ri, to be loved.} \\ 2. \text{ m\u00f3n\u00e9-ri, to be advised.} \\ 3. \text{ r\u00e9g-i, to be ruled.} \\ 4. \text{ aud\u00ed-ri, to be heard.} \end{array} \right.$

Perf. infin. = perf. part. pass. + esse, to be.	{	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. āmātus esse, to have been loved. 2. mōnītus esse, to have been advised. 3. rectus esse, to have been ruled. 4. audītus esse, to have been heard.
Future infin. = supine + īri (pres. infin. passive of eo, I go).	{	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. āmātum īri, to be about to be loved. 2. mōnītum īri, to be about to be advised. 3. rectum īri, to be about to be ruled. 4. audītum īri, to be about to be heard.

4. A verb in the infinitive mood is often used as a noun in the neuter singular, and may be the subject or object of another verb : as, Laudari ab aliis gratum est, to be praised by others is a pleasant thing. (Here laudari is used as an indeclinable neuter noun, subject of est; and gratum agrees with it)

Note.—In this way abstract nouns in English are often rendered into Latin : as, fallere est semper turpe, deceit (i.e., to deceive) is always base; parentes amare est laudabile, filial affection is praiseworthy.

5. Many verbs take an infinitive to complete their meaning : as, Bellum gerere parat, he is preparing to carry on war; omnes discedere iubet, he orders all to depart.

EXERCISE.

desire to reach the top of the hill before daybreak. 6. Writing (inf.) letters to friends is a pleasant thing. 7. The senate forbade the soldiers to wage war beyond the province. 8. Why do you hesitate to read the book? 9. Teach me to seek wisdom. 10. It is often safer to run away than to fight. 11. It is pleasant to walk in the fields in spring. 12. We did not order the soldiers to obey the general.

LESSON LIII.

ACCUSATIVE WITH INFINITIVE.

1. The infinitive is often used with an accusative for a subject where English has a noun-clause introduced by that. This is the regular construction after verbs of knowing, thinking, saying, and the like, and with such expressions as it is manifest, it is certain, it is true: as, Sentimus ignem calêre, we know that fire is hot (literally=we know fire to be hot); hostes adesse dicit, he says that the enemy are near (literally=he says the enemy to be near); fratrem tuum esse fortem intellego, I understand that your brother is brave; certum est liberos a parentibus amari, it is certain that children are loved by their parents; manifestum est albam esse nivem, it is evident that snow is white. This construction is called the accusative with infinitive, and is one of the commonest in Latin.

2. The tense of the infinitive after a verb of saying or thinking in past time, is often a difficulty. Thus: He said that the boy was at Rome is, Puerum Romæ fuisse dixit, if the exact words of the speaker were, the boy was at Rome. But if the speaker's words were, the boy is at Rome, then, he said that the boy was at Rome is, Puerum Romæ esse dixit. The tense used by the speaker is the tense required for the infinitive.

3. The participles used in the future inf. act. and the perfect inf. pass. must agree in gender, number and case with the noun to which they refer: as, Dixit se ab omnibus amatum esse, he said that he had been loved by all; audio copias a Caesâre eductas esse, I hear that the forces have been led out by Caesar.

14. He thought that you were coming.

LESSON LIV.

INFINITIVE WITH VERBS OF HOPING.

1. Verbs signifying to hope, promise, undertake or swear, take in Latin the future infinitive and the accusative of the pronoun : as, Sperat se Romam venturum esse, he hopes to come to Rome (literally = he hopes that he will come to Rome); promitto me libros ad te missurum esse, I promise to send books to you; suscipis te bella gesturum esse, you undertake to carry on wars.

LESSON LV.

ACCUSATIVE WITH INFINITIVE.—(Continued).

The following are additional examples of the Accusative with Infinitive :—Dicit virum scribere, he says that the man is writing (=the man to be writing); dicit virum scripsisse, he says that the man was writing, wrote, or has written; dicit virum scripturum esse, he says that the man will write. But : Dixit virum scribere, he said that the man was writing (exact words of speaker : Vir scribit); dixit virum scripsisse, he said that the man was writing, wrote, or had written, (according as the exact words of the speaker were : Vir scribebat, vir scripsit, or vir scripserat); dixit virum scripturum esse, he said that the man would write (exact words of speaker : Vir scribet, the man will write).

After Cicero was expelled from Rome (part.), he sailed to Greece. 12. To lie is base ; to speak the truth is always praiseworthy.

LESSON LVI.

DEPONENT VERBS.

1. Many verbs are passive in form, but active in meaning. These are called deponent verbs (verba deponentia), because they lay aside (depōnere) their active form and their passive meaning: as, Mīror, I admire.

2. Deponents occur in all four conjugations. In the first, second and fourth conjugations they have the characteristic vowel of their conjugation before the pres. infinitive pass. ending -ri. In the third conjugation this infinitive is formed by adding -i to the verb stem: as,

1st Conj.,	mīrā-rī, to admire,	—conjugated like	ama-ri.
2nd “	vērē-ri, to fear,	“ “	mone-ri.
3rd “	sēqu-i, to follow,	“ “	reg-i.

It is very easy to obtain possession of the sovereignty of Gaul. 4. The boy followed the tracks of the bear to the foot of the tree. 5. Did you not employ guides for (gen.) the route? 6. The boy did not employ his time well. 7. After the death of his father, the man went to Athens. 8. When the city was taken, the wives and children of the conquered were all killed. 9. We shall follow our leader to the top of the hill. 10. We hope that the general will gain possession of the camp of the enemy. 11. He says that the Britons live on milk and flesh. 12. They hoped to gain possession of the town by treachery. 13. When his forces were drawn up (abl. abs.), he attacked the enemy vigorously.

LESSON LVIII.

DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. Besides is, ēa, id (this, that) which will be given in Lesson LX., there are in Latin three demonstrative pronouns: Hic, this near me; iste, that near you; ille, that near him (her or it.) They are declined as follows :—

Hic, this, i.e., this one near me (the speaker.)

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	hic	haec	hōc	hī	hae	haec
GEN.	hūius	hūius	hūius	hōrum	hārum	hōrum
DAT.	huic	huic	huic	his	his	his
ACC.	hunc	hanc	hōc	hōs	hās	haec
ABL.	hōc	hāc	hōc	his	his	his

Istō, that near you (the person spoken to.)

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	istō	istā	istud	istī	istae	istā
GEN.	istius	istius	istius	istōrum	istārum	istōrum
DAT.	istī	istī	istī	istis	istis	istis
ACC.	istum	istam	istud	istōs	istās	istā
ABL.	istō	istā	istō	istis	istis	istis

Illō, that near him (her, it—the person or thing spoken of).

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.	Mas.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	illō	illā	illud	illī	illae	illā
GEN.	illius	illius	illius	illōrum	illārum	illōrum
DAT.	illī	illī	illī	illis	illis	illis
ACC.	illum	illam	illud	illōs	illās	illā
ABL.	illō	illā	illō	illis	illis	illis

2. Hic is the demonstrative of the 1st person. It refers to the person or thing near me (the speaker): as, Hic liber, this book. So too, Haec patria, this land of ours; haec vita, this present life; his sex diebus, within the last six days.

3. Iste is the demonstrative of the 2nd person. It refers to the person addressed: as, Iste liber, that book near you; ista opinio, that opinion you hold; iste amicus, that friend of yours. It often has the idea of contempt.

4. Ille, that yonder, is the demonstrative of the 3rd person. It refers to a person or thing other than those present. It may express therefore:—

(a) The remote in time, as opposed to the present (which is expressed by hic): as, Illa antiquitas, that far-off past; illis diebus, in those bygone days.

(b) That well known, the celebrated: as, Illa Medēa, the far-famed Medēa; ille Caesar, the renowned Caesar

(c) An emphatic he, she, or it: as, Illos neglōgis, those (whom all men know) you disregard.

5. Hic and ille are often contrasted. They may be used :—

(a) Of two persons already mentioned. In this case hic relates to the nearer, the latter; ille, to the more remote, the former: as, Romulum Numa excēpit; hic pace, ille bello melior fuit, after Romulus came Numa; the latter excelled in peace, the former in war.

(b) For the one and the other: as, Neque hoc neque illud, neither the one nor the other; et hic et ille, both the one and the other (et.... et=both.... and).

(c) For some and others: as, Hi pacem, illi bellum cupiunt, some wish peace, others war.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: hic homo, illa mulier, iste vir, illud tempus, haec vita.

Translate into English :—

1. Estne hic homo amicus tuus? 2. Istum librum esse pulchrum dixit. 3. Illa antiquitas a multis laudata est. 4. Haec arma secum ex oppido portabunt. 5. Ob hanc rem Caesar Romam legatos misit. 6. Neque hic neque ille Romae erat. 7. De istis rebus ad te scribam. 8. Hoc proelio nuntiato, omnes legiones ad Galliam duxit. 9. Nonne puer nuntiavit epistolam ad patrem meum missam esse? 10. Cicero et Caesar viri illustres erant; hic bello melior erat, ille eloquentiā. 11. Nos diximus milites ad omnia haec pericula esse paratos. 12. Illo die hunc Athenis fuisse manifestum est. 13. His decem diebus ad illud oppidum pervēnimus.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Will not that man write me a letter about those affairs of yours? 2. This man is the best of all the citizens. 3. Are those your arms? 4. They said that that book of yours was the best of all. 5. That well-known Cicero was very eloquent. 6. Did he not say that he intended to set out for Gaul within six days? 7. Those soldiers devastated the lands of the enemy. 8. On account of this defeat we were forced to give up our arms. 9. Were those books written by you? 10. Caesar told his soldiers that he would devastate the land. 11. Neither the one nor the other was at Athens in this year. 12. I have not seen this man within the last four days. 13. Will not that woman be praised by all? 14. We all think that Caesar was greater than Pompey.

LESSON LIX.

DATIVE WITH VERBS COMPOUNDED WITH PREPOSITIONS.

1. Transitive verbs compounded with the prepositions ad, ante, con (for cum), in, inter, ob, (on, against), post, prae (before), sub (under), or sūper (above), often govern an accusative of the direct and a dative of the indirect object : as, Populus Romanus bellum Gallis intūlit, the Roman people made war on the Gauls.

Note.—In the passive the direct object of the active becomes the subject, while the indirect object is still retained : as, Bellum Gallis a populo Romano illātum est, war was made on the Gauls by the Roman people.

2. Intransitive verbs compounded with the above-mentioned prepositions, often govern the dative : as, Caesar exercitui praefuit, Caesar commanded the army; consiliis consulis obstat, he opposes the plans of the consul.

DATIVE OF POSSESSION.

3. The dative is used with the verb sum, I am, to express possession : as, Mihi est liber, I have a book (literally, there is a book to me.)

4. The compounds of sum (except possum, I can) govern the dative : as, Tibi adsum, I aid you.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : hic bonus homo, haec pulchra dies, illa legio, ista soror, istud tempus, illud mare, iste vir.

Translate into English :—

1. Ego et tuus amicus tibi in omnibus periculis adierimus.
2. Caesar Labienum hibernis praefecit.
3. Hic locus ab horto circiter passus sexcentos aberat.
4. Hi, nostros disiectos adorti, proelium renovaverunt.
5. Illi divinis rebus intersunt, sacrificia procurant, religiones interpretantur.
6. His omnibus Druidibus praeest unus qui summam habet auctoritatem.
7. Nostro adventu permoti, Britanni hunc toti bello imperioque praefecerant.
8. His rebus cognitis a captivis per fugisque, Caesar, praemisso equitatu, confestim legiones subsēqui iussit.
9. Ab his cognoscit non longe oppidum Cassivelauni abesse, silvis paludibusque munitum.
10. Legiones Latīnae longā societate militiam Romanam edoctae sunt.
11. Rebus male gestis, fortuna imperatori defuit.
12. Legati sese Caesari dedituros esse atque imperata facturos polliciti sunt.
13. Vere primo Caesari in Gallia ulteriore duae legiones erant.
14. Num verum est te primo vere Romae fuisse?

Translate into Latin :—

1. Was not the general present at the battle on that day?
 2. Some lack courage; others opportunity.
 3. Fortune often opposes the designs of these men.
 4. The Romans for many years carried on war against the Karthaginians.
 5. Labienus commands the soldiers of this legion.
 6. The women and children begged the Romans for peace.
 7. In the consulship of Caesar, war was declared against the Gauls.
 8. No man will prefer disgrace to honor.
 9. In ancient times the Karthaginians had many colonies, large fleets, and great wealth.
 10. These legions were drawn up in three lines in front of the camp.
 11. They had already led their forces through the territory of the Sequāni.
 12. The celebrated (p. 118, 4) Demosthenes is considered the greatest orator among the Greeks.
 13. After subduing Greece, the celebrated Alexander defeated large forces of the Persians at the river Granīcus.

ACC.	ipsum	ipsam	ipsum	ipsōs	ipsās	ipsā
ABL.	ipsō	ipsā	ipsō	ipsis	ipsis	ipsis

4. Is is a pronoun of reference, simply referring to some person or thing mentioned before: as, Apud Helvetios longe nobilissimus et ditissimus fuit Orgētōrix; is coniurationem nobilitatis fecit, among the Helvetians, Orgetorix was by far the noblest and most wealthy; he formed a conspiracy among the nobility. (Here is refers to Orgetorix.) It is often used as the personal pronoun of the 3rd person.

5. Idem, same, is often used to express our also, at the same time, at once: as, Cicero orator erat idemque philosophus. Cicero was an orator and, at the same time, a philosopher.

6. Ipse, self, may be added for emphasis to a noun, pronoun or numeral: as, Caesar ipse imperavit, Caesar himself commanded; tu ipse hoc fecisti, you yourself did this; se ipsum interfecit, he killed himself; ipse navem aedificavit, he built the ship by himself; triginta ipsi dies, exactly thirty days; adventu ipso hostes terruit, by his mere (very) arrival he frightened the enemy; ipse hoc vidi, I saw this with my own eyes.

Ipse is also added in the genitive singular or plural to a possessive pronoun to express own: as, Mea ipsius culpa, my own fault; sua ipsius domus, his own house; vestra ipsorum amicitia, your own friendship. (This gen. is in apposition with the gen. implied in the possessive.)

EXERCISE.

Decline together. ipsa oratio, is obses, idem vir, ipse imperator, eadem mulier, ipsum tempus, ea domus, ipse deus, ea filia.

Translate into English:—

1. Nos ipsi illum virum pugnantes vidimus. 2. Decem ipsis diebus oppidum expugnavit. 3. Hic vir deos immortales esse negat. 4. Pollicetur se iis arma daturum esse. 5. Tu ipse quattuor dies Karthagine mansisti. 6. Homo ipse dixit se paucis diebus venturum esse. 7. Eadem dona ad imperatorem missa sunt. 8. Homo servum suum vocavit et opus eius (his) laudavit. 9. Cicero fuit inter Romanos orator eloquentissimus; idem maximus philosophus fuit. 10. Dixerunt eundem virum multa bella in Italia gessisse. 11. Ipse vidi puerum ex urbe Roma excedentem. 12. Eodem die castra movit et copias ad flumen duxit. 13. Ipsa hac die Caesar Romae erat. 14. Caesar illud oppidum magno cum exercitu tribus diebus expugnavit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. On that very night the army took the town by storm. 2. Caesar himself said that he would lead the army. 3. Did you not see the same soldiers at Rome? 4. Were the soldiers of this legion on that day at Athens? 5. Those very towns will be taken by him. 6. By his mere order he liberated the man. 7. My own house was burned by the soldiers on that day. 8. For this reason he led his army out of the camp. 9. Those same men were always very friendly to the Romans. 10. He said that they had sent one legion against the Gauls. 11. That legion remained for three months in camp. 12. It is plain that they will not start for Rome within ten days. 13. He sent the same man from Athens to Italy.

LESSON LXI.

GENITIVE WITH SUM, I AM.

The genitive is used with the verb sum, I am, to express our belongs to: as, Haec domus est mei patris, this house belongs to my father. This genitive may be used to express our task, duty, custom, characteristic, mark, token: as, Iudicis est sequi verum, it is the duty of a judge to follow the truth (literally: to follow the truth is of, i.e., belongs to a judge); hoc est praeceptoris, this is the business of an instructor; sapientis est res adversas aequo animo ferre, it is the characteristic of a wise man to bear adversity with resignation (literally: with an even mind).

Note.—With possessive pronouns, this genitive is not used, but the neuter of the corresponding possessive adjective: as, Tuum (not tui) est vidēre, it is your duty to see.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: Is audax vir, eadem virgo, hoc ipsum tempus, illa bona mulier, ista domus, ea oratio antiqua.

Translate into English :—

1. Est Caesāris, obsidibus acceptis armisque omnibus ex oppido traditis, in deditionem hostes accipere. 2. Semper est huius militis imperatorī parere. 3. His rebus cognitis, Caesar Gallorum animos verbis confirmavit pollicitusque est se eam rem esse facturum. 4. Eodem die castra promovit et contra hostes contendit. 5. Castra hostium esse maxima dixit. 6. Manifestum est iudicis esse verum sequi. 7. Ex eo die dies continuos quinque Caesar pro castris suas copias produxit. 8. Haec eodem tempore Caesari nuntiata sunt. 9. Hoc responso dato, de provincia decessit. 10. Consulis est senatum in curiam vocare. 11. Meum est imperatori parere. 12. Ipse horā diei quartā cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus copias armatas conspexit. 13. Abhinc triginta ipsis annis, ille Corinthi mortuus est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. This man told Caesar that the Belgae had crossed the river on the same day. 2. It is the duty of a commander to fight bravely for his native land. 3. The commander himself within the last ten days has taken two cities. 4. At the same time ambassadors were sent by the general from the camp. 5. He placed a lieutenant over the legion, but he himself set out for Gaul. 6. Caesar said that he had sent forward all the cavalry at the third watch. 7. It is the characteristic of a soldier to obey his general in all things. 8. It is the duty of a wise man to obey the laws. 9. It is your duty to favor the good. 10. We saw that the attack of the enemy was checked by his mere arrival. 11. On the same day, Caesar collected the same forces as before and marched against the enemy. 12. He said that it was the part of the people to put the best man at the head of the army (use praeficio, appoint.)

LESSON LXII.

RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The relative pronoun refers to some noun or pronoun preceding called the antecedent. The relative in Latin is qui (M.), quae (F.), and quod (N.)

Qui, who.

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	qui	quæ	quod	quī	quæ	quæ
GEN.	cūius	cūius	cūius	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
DAT.	cūi	cūi	cūi	quībus	quībus	quībus
ACC.	quem	quam	quod	quōs	quās	quæ
ABL.	quō	quā	quō	quībus	quībus	quībus

2. Quisquis and quicumque, whoever, are called indefinite relatives, the suffix -cumque (or -cunque) added to the simple relative qui, forming an indefinite relative, just as -ever added to who, which, does in English. Quicumque is inflected like qui; quisquis is usually found only in the forms quisquis, quidquid or quicquid, quoquo.

AGREEMENT OF RELATIVE AND ANTECEDENT.

3. The relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender, number and person; but its case is determined by the verb of its own clause: as, Puer, qui magistrum amat, bonus est, the boy who loves his master is good; puer, quem magister amat, bonus est, the boy whom the master loves is good; ego, qui te laudavi, rex sum, I, who praised you, am king; ego, quem tu laudavisti, rex sum, I, whom you praised, am king.

Note 1.—The relative in the objective case, so often omitted in English, is never omitted in Latin: as, Hic est liber quem tu mihi dedisti, this is the book you gave me.

Note 2.—Cum, with, is appended to the relative, as to the personal pronouns: as, Quicum (= quocum), quācum, quibuscum (not cum quo, &c.)

EXERCISE.

Decline together: Quæ urbs, hoc flumen, prima lux, duæ legiones, filia mea, ille liber, illud oppidum, primum ver.

Translate into English:—

1. Urbs, quam vides, Roma est. 2. Tres legiones, quæ circum Aquileiam hiemabant, ex hibernis educit. 3. Milites, quorum virtus magna fuit, contra hostes a Caesare missi sunt. 4. Dixit se copias flumen primā luce esse transducturum. 5. Cum quattuor legionibus, quas secum habebat, in castra properavit. 6. Dux legiones, quarum virtute urbs servata erat, laudavit. 7. Quisquis contra hostem fortiter pugnabit, coronam auream habebit. 8. Puellae, quas te vidisse dixisti, filiae meae sunt. 9. Belgae proximi sunt Germanis, qui trans Rhenum incolunt, quibuscum saepe bellum gerunt. 10. Nonne dixisti hunc librum esse meum? 11. Milites, a quibus urbs expugnata erat, fortes fuerunt. 12. Eā re nuntiātā, Caesar legiones, quas secum habebat, praemisit. 13. Illis oppidis expugnatis, Caesar primo vere in fines hostium projectus est. 14. Vir, quicum venisti, hic est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. That house which you saw, is mine. 2. At daybreak, he led out of the camp two legions which he sent at once against the enemy. 3. He led into camp the troops, which he had assembled there. 4. They reported that the forces of the enemy had departed at the beginning of night. 5. He hastens to Rome with the legions which were then wintering at Massilia. 6. The tenth legion, which had often saved the state, was sent forward by Caesar. 7. Whoever said that he had seen me on that day, spoke falsely. 8. The city was taken by the soldiers whom he brought with him from Gaul. 9. To Caesar they sent ambassadors of whom the chief was Divīco. 10. I told him that this man had often led the soldiers to battle. 11. The Aeduans, whose fields had been laid waste almost in sight of the Roman army, sent ambassadors to Caesar. 12. I will give you the book you sent me yesterday. 13. The boy you praised is the best of all.

LESSON LXIII.

CORRELATIVES.

1. Many demonstrative pronouns, adjectives and adverbs in a principal clause have corresponding relative pronouns, adjectives or adverbs in a subordinate clause. These are called correlatives.

2. The following correlatives should be learned : Īdem...qui, the same as; talis...qualis, such as; tantus...quantus, as great as; tot...quot, as many as: as, Idem est qui semper fuit, he is the same as he always was; res eodem statu quo antea stat, the matter stands in the same position as before; talis est qualis semper fuit, he is of the same character as he always was; tantam voluptatem habeo quantam tu, I have as much pleasure as you; tot erant milites quot fluctus maris, the soldiers were as many as the waves of the sea.

3. The adverbs such, so (limiting adjectives or adverbs) are expressed by tam: as, Tam bonus homo, such a good man. As good as you, is tam bonus quam tu.

4. The following correlative adverbs should also be learned: Ibi...ubi, there...where; inde...unde, thence...whence; eo...quo, thither...whither; eā...quā, in that direction in which: as, Ubi natus est, ibi mortuus est, where he was born, there he died; unde profectus est, eodem properavit, he hastened to the spot from which he set out.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: quae res, qui dies, idem homo, haec mulier.

Translate into English:—

1. Ubi adolescens abhinc multis annis educatus est, ibi senex his paucis diebus mortuus est. 2. Tantas divitias non habet quantas paucis ante annis. 3. Eadem utilitatis quae honestatis est regula. 4. Nunquam tantam contionem vidi quanta nunc haec est. 5. Eodem naves, unde profectae sunt, properavērunt. 6. Nonne hodie tanti sunt fluctus quanti heri erant? 7. Hodie homines iidem sunt qui quondam erant. 8. Talis est qualis semper fuit. 9. Quā nocte Alexander Magnus natus est, eādem templum Dianae Ephesiae deflagavit. 10. Ubi Cicero natus est, ibi C. Marius. 11. Quā dux milites duxit, eā hostes iter fecerunt. 12. Eodem anno quo Caesar copias suas in Britanniam duxit, Vergilius togam virilem sumpsit.

Translate into Latin:—

1. He lived in the place in which (use idem qui) he was born. 2. The farmer has not so large a harvest as he had last year. 3. We shall never see such waves as we beheld yesterday. 4. Did you not read as many books as your sister? 5. Were not the Greeks the same in former times as they are now? 6. The same year in which the father died, the son left Italy. 7. We came to Rome on the same night as he set out for Greece. 8. They all reached the same spot as they had left a few days before. 9. The enemy followed our men by the same route as we had taken a few years before. 10. He killed as many soldiers as you. 11. He is not the same to-day as he was a year ago. 12. They remained in the same place in which they had pitched their camp a few days before. 13. The waves were such as we had never before seen.

LESSON LXIV.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

1. The interrogative pronouns quis, quæ, quid, and qui, quæ, quod, who? what? are used in asking questions. They are inflected as follows:—

Quis, who?

	SINGULAR.			PLURAL.
	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
NOM.	quis	quæ	quid	quī	quæ	quæ
GEN.	cūius	cūius	cūius	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
DAT.	cūī	cūī	cūī	quībus	quībus	quībus
ACC.	quem	quam	quid	quōs	quās	quæ
ABL.	quō	quā	quō	quībus	quībus	quībus

2. The interrogative pronoun qui, quæ, quod is inflected like the relative qui, quæ, quod (see p. 126).

3. Quis is generally used substantively and rarely as an adjective: as, Quis hominum hoc dubitat? what man doubts this? (i. e., who of men). Qui interrogative is used adjectively in agreement with its noun: as, Qui homo hoc fecit? what man did this? quod facinus fecit? what crime did he commit?

Note.—Quis and qui are often strengthened by the addition of -nam; quisnam, quinam are therefore emphatic interrogatives meaning who, pray? who, then?

4. Which of two? is uter, utra, utrum: as, Uter vestrūm? which of you two? (see p. 27).

5. In replying to a question, where we use the simple Yes or No, the Latins repeat the verb or some emphatic word: as, Vēnitne? did he come? Non vēnit, No; vēnit, Yes.

Note.—They also say, however, vero etiam, ita, certe, sane, for Yes; and non, minime, minime vero, for No.

6. Whether...or, in a double question, is usually utrum...an: as, Utrum vir lēgit an scribit? whether does the man read or write?

Note.—Or not, after whether, is annon in principal interrogative sentences: as, Utrum amat patriam annon? whether does he love his native land or not?

GENITIVE OF QUALITY.

7. A noun in the genitive (called the genitive of quality) is often added to another noun to denote a quality: as, Vir est summæ fortitudinis, he is a man of the highest courage; vir erat maximæ sapientiæ, he was a man of the greatest wisdom.

Note.—The noun in the genitive expressing quality has invariably an adjective with it. Thus, a man of wisdom is not vir sapientiæ but vir sapiens. But, where the corresponding adjective is wanting, praeditus, endowed with, may be used with the simple ablative: as, Homo virtūte praeditus, a man of (endowed with) valor.

8. The genitive of quality is chiefly used to denote number, amount, dimension, age, time: as, Septuaginta navium classis, a fleet of seventy ships; viginti pedum in altitudinem est agger, the embankment is twenty feet high (literally, is of twenty feet in height); puer tredecim annorum, a boy thirteen years of age.

Note.—Other constructions may be used for the genitive of quality: as, Viginti pedes altus est agger, the embankment is high twenty feet (acc. of extent of space); puer tredecim annos natus, a boy of thirteen years of age (i.e., a boy born thirteen years). So, too: Cicero trium et quadraginta annorum consul fuit, or Cicero, tres et quadraginta annos natus, consul fuit, Cicero at the age of forty-three was consul; mensa est trium pedum in latitudinem, or mensa est tres pedes lata, the table is three feet wide.

9. The ablative is used, like the genitive, to express quality, especially when external qualities of dress or appearance are mentioned : as, Homo magno capite, ore rubicundo, magnis pedibus, a man with a large head, red face, and big feet; Caesar erat excelsâ statūrâ, Caesar was of tall stature.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : qui homo bonus? quod facinus malum? qui vir prudens? quæ urbs pulchra?

Translate into English :—

1. Quid proximâ, quid superiore nocte egisti? 2. Uter consulum nobis amicus est? 3. Eodem tempore equites nostri levisque armorum pedites hostibus occurrebant. 4. Utram in partem flumen fluit? 5. Erat inter Labienum atque hostium castra difficili transitu flumen ripisque praeceptis. 6. Quod periculum eo die vitavisti? 7. Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vicies centum millium passuum. 8. Nonne nuntiatum est omnem peditatum et levis armorum Numidas pontem ab duce transductos esse? 9. Utrum patrem an patriam plus amat? 10. Quem Caesar hibernis eâ hieme praefecit? 11. Num Romanis classis viginti navium erat? 12. His rebus gestis, ex litteris Caesaris dierum viginti supplicatio a Senatu decreta est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Who gave a golden crown of great weight to this soldier? 2. Are not serpents of great size found in that island? 3. Whether was this boy born at Rome or at Karthage? 4. The Germans were said to be men of great strength. 5. Two generals were chosen by the Athenians, Pericles, a man of great valor, and Sophocles, a poet of undying fame. 6. Was not Cimon a man of great liberality? 7. You possess a man of remarkable modesty, well-known valor, and approved fidelity. 8. It is the characteristic of a foolish man to condemn the faults of others and to be blind to (non videre) his own. 9. Which of the two boys is more like his father? 10. Will not the Romans remain at Ravenna all winter? 11. By whom were the Romans conquered in battle? 12. Who was at home on that day? 13. Did he not come to Rome that night? Yes.

LESSON LXV.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

1. Pronouns that do not refer to any particular person or thing are called indefinite pronouns. The more common are :—

Quis, quæ or qua, quid or quod, any (especially after si, if, nisi, unless).

— Aliquis, aliquæ or aliqua, aliquod or aliquid, some one.

(Quisquam, quæquam, quicquam or quidquam, any one.

(Ullus, ulla, ullum, any (see p. 26), used as the adjectival form of quisquam.

Quidam, quaedam, quiddam or quoddam, a certain one.

— Quisque, quæque, quidque or quodque, each.

Unusquisque, unaquæque, unumquidque or unumquodque, each one, each individual.

— Uterque, utraque, utrumque, each of two, both.

Quivis, quævis, quidvis or quodvis, any one you like.

Quilibet, quælibet, quidlibet or quodlibet, any one you like.

Utervis, utravis, utrumvis, either of the two you like.

Uterlibet, utralibet, utrumlibet, either of the two you like.

Nemo, no one; nihil, nothing; nullus, nulla, nullum, none (p. 26).

2. In declining the above, the following rules may be observed :—

The forms in quis and qui are declined like interrogative quis and relative qui, but have qua or quæ in the fem. sing., and quid or quod in the neuter singular. Forms in quod are adjectival, those in quid substantival. Thus :—

Tempus aliquod, some time; temporis aliquid, some time (literally, something of time).

Unusquisque is declined in both parts and used in the singular only; uterque, utriusque, is declined in the first part only.

Nemo is declined like virgo (p. 34), but has nullius for the gen. and nullo or nullā for the abl.

Nihil is neuter and used only in the nominative and accusative sing.

3. Quisquam (adjectival, ullus) is used in sentences that contain a negative, in interrogative sentences implying a negative answer, or in comparative clauses : as, Nec quisquam me vidit, nor did anyone see me ; nec ullus homo me vidit, nor did any man see me ; num quisquam me vidit? did anyone see me? num ullus homo me vidit? did any man see me? fortior est quam quisquam vestrum, he is braver than any of you.

EXERCISE.

Decline together : unusquisque puer, uterque homo, mulier quaedam, miles aliquis, nullum animal.

Translate into English :—

1. Num quisquam Ciceronem eo tempore laudavit? 2. Ad puerum, cuius pater in bello interfectus est, aliquod donum mitte. 3. Homo quidam mihi dixit eum eo anno esse mortuum. 4. Uterque puer in schola erat. 5. Num ullum animal sine sensu est? 6. Nemo ei nuntiavit urbem ab hostibus esse captam. 7. Nuntiat unumquemque ab eo esse occisum. 8. Nihil temporis ab hoc puero amittitur. 9. Nemo omnium militum, qui legionis septimae sunt, a me laudabitur. 10. Nuntiat Gallos in sinistro cornu agminis locatos esse. 11. Putavisti utrumque puerum domo decessisse. 12. Duces quosdam praemisit, qui viam monstraverunt. 13. Omnes, in quibus aliquid dignitatis fuit, eō convēnerunt.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Some one has given a sword to each soldier. 2. Did any one say that these men were brave? 3. I heard that some Roman soldiers set out from the camp on that day. 4. A certain one told me that he had seen you on the top of the hill. 5. Both the consuls commanded an army in that year. 6. Each one of us was praised by the general. 7. Some one brought word to the camp that we had been defeated. 8. Will not some one lead us against the enemy? 9. Who will say that this general was not better than all other generals? 10. Choose any man you like (use quivis) for this war. 11. Did any one of the soldiers say that he was brave? 12. Both wars were carried on by the two generals in the same year.

LESSON LXVI.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.—(Continued).

DATIVE OF PURPOSE.

1. The dative is used to express purpose, intention, and destination: as, Malo est hominibus avaritia, avarice is an evil (literally, for an evil) to men; quinque cohortes castris praesidio reliquit, he left five cohorts to guard the camp (=for a guard to the camp). This is called the dative of purpose.

The following uses of this dative should be noted: Vēnit nobis auxilio, he came to aid us (i. e., for an aid); Pericles agros suos dono reipublicae dedit, Pericles gave his lands as a gift to the state; Gallis magno erat impedimento, it was a great hindrance to the Gauls.

2. The dative is often used in Latin instead of the English possessive: as, Omnes flentes Caesāri sese ad pedes proiēcerunt, all in tears threw themselves at Caesar's feet. This dative gives more prominence to the person mentioned: as, Hoc mihi minuit spem, this lessened my hope.

EXERCISE.

Decline together: pater meus, totus ille dies, is consul, idem beatus homo, vir quidam Romanus, eadem navis, quis nauta, homo quivis, Cicero ipse, orator clarissimus.

Translate into English:—

1. Hoc aliquis dicet, nec errabit. 2. Locus silvestris spem salutis aliquam praebebat. 3. Plerumque Gallis, prae magnitudine corporum suorum, brevitās nostra contemptui est. 4. Hic homo cuiusquam iniuriae sibi non conscius est. 5. Neque eorum moribus turpius quicquam habetur. 6. Consensu eorum omnium, pace factā, hunc sibi domicilio locum delegerant. 7. Quem locum nostri castris delegerunt? 8. His difficultatibus duae res erant subsidio, scientia atque usus militaris. 9. Caesar, principibus cuiusque civitatis ad se vocatis, magnam partem Galliae in officio tenuit. 10. Quisque eorum militum hoc die coronā aureā ab imperatore donatus est. 11. Haec culpa magno dedecori tibi fuit. 12. Labienus, castris hostium potitus, decimam legionem subsidio nostris misit.

13. Caesar pollicitus est eam rem sibi curae esse futuram.

Translate into Latin :—

1. The Romans learned some facts (res) from a deserter. 2. Nor have they any clothing¹, except skins. 3. Caesar had sent some soldiers of each legion to aid the allies. 4. There is timber² of every kind in Britain except beech and fir. 5. Each of the scouts came to the general and promised to aid him in the matter. 6. When he had learned these facts, he called to him some of the chiefs of the state. 7. Were there any of the chiefs present at the council of the Gauls? 8. He came to aid the Athenians in the war. 9. I have a book which, many years ago, you gave me as a present. 10. Who will not attribute this to you as a fault? 11. Civil wars have always been a great loss to a state. 12. In the consulship of Caesar this chief came with many followers to aid the Romans. 13. Of the two consuls, one fell in that battle, the other is still of great service to the state.

LESSON LXVII.

REVIEW EXERCISE ON THE PRONOUN.

Translate into English :—

1. Itaque ille legatum in Treviros, qui proximi flumini sunt, cum equitatu mittit. 2. Quibus rebus coacti, legatos ad eum de pace mittunt. 3. The ground (locus) which our men had selected as a place suitable for the camp, was of-this-character (hic). 7. Was not the poet Ovid born in the same year in which Cicero the orator died? 8. They said that the poet Ovid was born at Sulmo, a small town among the Peligni. 9. After the murder of Caesar (use abl. abs.) Brutus and Cassius fled to Asia. 10. Brutus and Cassius were defeated at Philippi by Marcus Antonius and Octavianus. 11. Cassius being informed of (de) the arrival of the enemy, led all his army across the bridge at daybreak. 12. He surrendered all his forces to the Roman commander, and gave up all the arms he had with him. 13. After learning these facts, he sent forward all the cavalry to the number of six thousand.

LESSON LXVIII.

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD.

1. The subjunctive mood of sum, I am, is inflected as follows:—

	PRESENT.		IMPERFECT.
	Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
1. Pers.,	sim	simus	essem	essēmus
2. “	sis	sitis	essēs	essētis
3. “	sit	sint	esset	essent
	PERFECT.		PLUPERFECT.
	Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
1. Pers.,	fūerim	fūerimus	fūissem	fūissēmus
2. “	fūeris	fūeritis	fūissēs	fūissētis
3. “	fūerit	fūerint	fūisset	fūissent

2. The subjunctive active of regular verbs of the four conjugations is inflected as follows :—

PRESENT.

	Singular.	Plural.	Singular.	Plural.
1. Pers.,	āmēm	āmēmus	mōnēam	mōnēāmus

3. “	rexīssēt	rexīssēt	audīvīssēt	audīvīssēt

3. The subjunctive, as opposed to the indicative (which represents the action of the verb as a fact), is said to represent the action of the verb as something only supposed. But this rule is of little practical value. The meanings and uses of the subjunctive must be carefully mastered in detail.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN SIMPLE SENTENCES.

4. The following are three main uses of the subjunctive in simple sentences :—

(a) In exhortations: as, Semper iidem simus, let us always be the same. The negative is nē: as, Ne hoc faciat, let him not do this.

(b) In commands, especially negative commands (with nē for not): as, Ne multa discas sed multum, do not learn many things but much.

Note.—Unless in general maxims like the above, the perfect is more usual here than the present: as, Ne id dixeris, do not say that.

(c) To express a wish: as, Beātus sis, may you be happy. When the wish may still be realized, the present or perfect is used; when the wish is vain and can not be realized, the imperfect or pluperfect. Utinam (O! that) usually introduces a wish: as, Adsit or utinam adsit, O! that he may be here; utinam adfuerit O! that he may have been here; utinam adesset, O! that he were here (now); utinam adfuisset, O! that he had been here (then). The negative in expressing a wish is usually nē: as, Nē vivam si scio, may I not live, if I know.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Discedant ab armis omnes qui in Italia sunt.
2. Valeant, valeant cives mei; sint incolumes, sint florentes, sint beati; stet haec urbs praeclara mihi que patria carissima.
3. Utinam P. Clodius non modo viveret, sed etiam praetor, consul, dictator esset.
4. Mali secernant se a bonis.
5. Non Romae, sed Karthagine hiemet.

10. Utinam vos omnes amici Caesaris essetis.
11. Exploratores nos de adventu hostium moneant.
12. Utinam domi eo die fuissem.
13. Filius patris sui vocem audiat.

Translate into Latin :—

1. O ! that we may take this town within a few days.
2. Would that we had been living at that time !
3. May we not be sailing the sea in the middle of winter !
4. O ! that we may conquer our enemies in this battle.
5. Let us hear our teacher.
6. Would that we had seized the citadel !
7. May we all love our parents who have taught us everything !
8. O ! that the enemy may be defeated.
9. May you dwell with us a long time in this city !
10. O ! that you may refrain from wrong-doing.
11. Do not expect to see me to-morrow.
12. Would that he had not seen me at Rome !
13. Do not ask the boy his name.

LESSON LXIX.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN SIMPLE SENTENCES.

The subjunctive is also used in simple sentences :—

(a) In questions of doubt, astonishment, or deliberation : as, Quid dicam? what shall I say? what am I to say? Quid dicerem? what should I have said? what was I to say? This is called the deliberative subjunctive. It is often introduced by an : as, An ego non venirem? ought I not to have come?

(b) To soften an assertion, or make a concession : as, Crēdas, you would believe ; crēdēres, you would have believed ; hoc dixerim, I would have said this ; aliquis dicat, some one may say.

LESSON LXXII.

DEFECTIVE VERBS—MEMINI, COEPI, ODI, NŌVI.

1. Verbs that are wanting in some of their parts are called defective verbs. The following are used only in the perfect and tenses derived from the perfect: mēmīni, I remember; coepi, I begin; ōdi, I hate; nōvi, I know. They are inflected as follows:—

INDICATIVE.

Perfect.	mēmīni, isti, &c.	coepi	ōdi	nōvi

PARTICIPLE.

Perfect Pass.	Wanting.	coeptus	ōsus	nōtus
Fut. Active.	Wanting.	coeptūrus	ōsūrus

2. Nōvi is properly the perfect of nosco (-gnosco in compounds), I begin to know.

3. Each of the above verbs has in the perfect, a present meaning, in the pluperfect, an imperfect meaning, and in the future perfect, a future meaning : as, Coepi, I begin ; coepēram, I began ; coepero, I shall begin. (Coepi, however, means both I begin and I began.)

4. Coepi (active form) is used when an active infinitive follows : as, Urbem aedificare coepit, he began to build the city ; while coeptus sum (passive form) is used when a passive infinitive follows : as, Urbs aedificari coepta est, the city began to be built.

5. Other defective verbs are : Aio, I say ; fari, to speak ; inquam, I say. These are given in the Appendix.

6. Inquam is used, like the English says he, in direct quotations : as, "Ego," inquit, "cras veniam," "I," he says, "shall come to-morrow." The nominative, if expressed, comes after inquam, inquit.

GENITIVE WITH VERBS.

7. The following verbs usually take a genitive after them :—Misēror, miseresco, (feel pity), meminī (remember), obliviscor (forget), reminiscor (remember) : as, Miserēre labōrum, pity sufferings ; huius diēi meminero, I shall remember this day.

Note.—Misēror, āri, ātus sum (express pity for), takes the accusative : as, Casum suum miseratur, he bewails his misfortune.

ABLATIVE AND GENITIVE OF PRICE.

ABLATIVE OF PRICE.

1. Price, with verbs of buying and selling, is expressed by the ablative when the price is definitely stated: as, Viginti talentis unam orationem vendidit Isocrates, Isocrates sold one speech for twenty talents; multo sanguine haec victoria nobis stat, this victory costs us much blood (literally, stands to us at much blood).

Note.—With verbs of exchange, the thing received in exchange is usually in the accusative and the thing given in exchange in the ablative: as, Exilium patriā mutāvit, he received exile in exchange for his native land (=he went into exile).

GENITIVE OF PRICE.

2. When the price for which a thing is bought or sold is not stated definitely, price is usually expressed by the genitive, especially with the words magni (at a great price), parvi (at a low price), pluris (at a greater price), mīnōris (at a less price), tanti (at so great a price), quanti (at as great a price): as, Hortos tanti quanti tu ēmit, he bought gardens at as high a price as you; frumentum pluris vendo, I sell corn at a higher price.

Note.—Do not use multi or maioris, but magni, pluris, for at a high price, at a higher price.

Translate into English :—

1. *Frumenti modius in Sicilia aestimatus est ternis sestertiis.*¹ 2. Illo die frumentum exercitui metiri coeperunt. 3. Utinam Romam mecum ire voluisset. 4. Cum finitimis civitatibus pacem facere quam bellum gerere mavult. 5. Num boni cives patriam suam auro vendere volent? 6. Minimi frumentum in his locis vendunt. 7. Noli putare pacem gemmis venalem esse. 8. Quis ab Aeduis frumentum hoc tempore postulare vult? 9. Utrum Romam ire an domi manere hodie vis? 10. Voluptatem virtus minimi aestimat. 11. Homines suā parvi pendere, aliena cupere solent 12. Haec civitas est magnae auctoritatis inter Gallos. 13. Eo die Romā ad Graeciam proficisci voluit. 14. Nulla pestis humano generi pluris stat quam irā.

2. Fio is used as the passive of facio, I make, which is regular except that it omits -e in the 2nd singular present imperative : as, *Fac, do thou; faciēte, do ye or you.*¹

3. Facio, when compounded with a preposition, changes -a to -i, and makes its passive regularly in -ficio : as, perficio (from perficio, finish), efficio (from efficio, effect).

In other cases, the -a remains unchanged, and the passive is -fio : as, satisfacio, satisfy ; pass., satisfio.

ABLATIVE OF SOURCE OR ORIGIN.

4. The English from, expressing source, is generally expressed by the ablative with the preposition a (or ab), e (or ex) : as, Hoc audiui e meo patre, I have heard this from my father. The English from, expressing origin, (except with the names of remote ancestors) is generally expressed by the ablative without a preposition : as, Ille optimis parentibus ortus est, that man is descended from very noble parents. But : Belgae a Germanis orti sunt, the Belgae are descended from the Germans.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : gigno, orior, nascor, ēdo, facio.

Fut. Pass., ēundus, a, um.

Note.—A common compound of ēo, is vĕnĕo [vĕnum, to sale (obsolete adverb), and eo], be sold. Principal parts: Vĕnĕo, vĕn-ire, vĕnī, vĕnītum.

ABLATIVE OF SEPARATION.

2. The English from, expressing separation, is—except with the names of towns and small islands—generally expressed by the ablative with the preposition a (ab), e (ex), or de: as, A rege Pyrrho ex Italia legati vĕnĕrunt, ambassadors came from king Pyrrhus in Italy (literally, from Italy). But, Romā profectus est, he set out from Rome (p. 85).

Note.—The preposition is generally omitted after:—

(1) Verbs meaning to desist from, relieve from, deprive of, need, be without, free from: as, Conātu destitit, he desisted from the attempt; lĕvā me hoc onĕre, relieve me from this burden; oculis se privavit, he deprived himself of eyes; non ĕgĕo medicinā, I want no medicine; homo culpā vacat, the man is without a fault.

(2) Adjectives signifying want, or freedom from: as, Animus liber curā, a mind free from care; puer est expers metu, the boy is free from fear; urbs est nudā praesidio, the city is destitute of defence.

LESSON LXXIX.

IMPERSONAL VERBS.

1. Verbs used only in the third person singular are called impersonal: as, ningit, it snows.

2. Impersonal verbs are conjugated like other verbs of the con-

¹To pass a law, ferre legem.

jugation to which they belong, but they are often defective in the supine and participle : as,

Constat, it is admitted.	Principal parts :	constat,	constāre,	constītit.
Līcet, it is allowed.	“ “	līcet,	līcēre,	līcūit.
Accīdit, it happens.	“ “	accīdit,	accīdēre,	accīdit.
Ēvēnit, it happens.	“ “	ēvēnit,	ēvēnīre,	ēvēnit.

3. Constat, līcet, accīdit, ēvēnit, are inflected as follows :—

INDICATIVE.

Present,	constat	līcet	accīdit	ēvēnit
Imperfect,	constābat	līcēbat	accīdēbat	ēvēnīēbat
Future,	constābit	līcēbit	accīdet	ēvēniet

SUBJUNCTIVE.

Present,	constet	līcēat	accīdat	ēvēnīat
Imperfect,	constaret	līcēret	accīderet	ēvēnīret
Perfect,	constītērit	līcūērit	accīderit	ēvēnērit
Pluperfect,	constītisset	līcūisset	accīdisset	ēvēnisset

INFINITIVE.

Present,	constāre	līcēre	accīdēre	ēvēnīre
Perfect,	constītisse	līcūisse	accīdisse	ēvēnisse
Future,	constātūrum esse	līcītūrum esse	—	ēvēntūrum esse

Note.—By after it is admitted is inter : as, Inter omnes constat, it is admitted by all, or all admit.

4. The English ought may be expressed by the impersonal oportet, oportēre, oportūit, it is needful : as, Te hoc facere oportet, you ought to do this; te hoc facere oportēbat or oportuit, you ought to have done this; te hoc facere oportēbit, you ought to do this (in the future).

Note.—Instead of the impersonal oportet with the accusative, the personal dēbeo, I owe, may be used : as, Hoc facere dēbes, you ought to do this; hoc facere debēbas or debūisti, you ought to have done this; hoc facere debēbis, you ought to do this (in the future).

5. The English may and might (expressing permission) are translated by licet, it is allowed, licēre, licūit: as, Mihi hoc facere licet, I may do this (literally, it is allowed to me to do this); tibi hoc facere licēbat or licuit, you might have done this; ei hoc facere licebit, he will be allowed to do this (in the future).

Note.—The tense of the infinitive after possum, licet, debeo, oportet, does not change in Latin as in English: as, Hoc facere potui, I could have done it.

6. A predicate adjective after esse (to be) governed by licet, agrees in gender, number and case with the noun or pronoun to which it refers: as, Aliis esse ignāvis licet, others may be cowards (literally, it is allowed to others to be cowards). So also with necesse esse (it is necessary), expēdit (it is expedient), libet (it is pleasing): as, Necesse est nobis esse fortibus, it is necessary for us to be brave; ei esse otioso non expēdit, it is not expedient for him to be at leisure; ei libebit esse amico, it will please him to be a friend.

EXERCISE.

1. Licet nobis bellum cum iis gerere. 2. Licebit iis nobiscum bella multa gerere. 3. Oportet me omnia fortiter ferre. 4. Eum ad mortem duci oportuit. 5. Nobis non expedit esse otiosis. 6. Romam eo tempore ire debuere. 7. Privati agri apud eos nihil est; neque longius anno remanere uno in loco licet. 8. Liberi eorum in servitatem abduci non debent. 9. Non tibi esse ignavo licebit. 10. Tibi Romae manere non libet. 11. Inter omnes constat Ciceronem eloquentissimum oratorem esse. 12. Helvetiis iter per provinciam Romanam facere non licuit. 13. Constat inter omnes Romam caput orbis terrarum fuisse.

Translate into Latin:—

1. You might have done this. 2. I could have remained at Rome all the winter. 3. We ought to bear the hardships of life bravely. 4. You ought, Catiline, long ago to have been put to death. 5. O! that it were expedient for me to be at leisure. 6. We were not permitted to attack the enemy. 7. Did not the Romans permit us to make a march through the province? 8. All admit that the moon is smaller than the earth. 9. Did not all admit that Homer was a greater poet than Vergil? 10. Ought not the general to have attacked the enemy? 11. It is admitted by all that Caesar will fight with the Gauls in the spring. 12. The sick man is not allowed to see his friends. 13. He ought to have seen his father on that day.

LESSON LXXX.

IMPERSONAL USE OF VERBS THAT GOVERN THE DATIVE.

1. Verbs that govern a dative in the active (p. 105), are used impersonally in the passive: as, Ego tibi impero, I command you; ego tibi credo, I believe you. But in the passive: Tibi imperatur, you are commanded (literally, it is commanded to you); tibi creditur, you are believed (not tu imperaris, tu credēris).

2. Intransitive verbs are often used in the passive impersonally: as, Ītur, people go (literally, it is gone); curritur, they run (literally, it is run); pugnatum est, a battle was fought.

Note 1.—With such verbs the agent is generally omitted; if it is expressed, it may be in the dative or in the ablative with a (or ab): as, Helvetiis (or ab Helvetiis) pugnatum est, a battle was fought by the Helvetii.

Note 2.—Such verbs are often best translated by substituting an appropriate noun as subject: as, Clamatum est, a shout was raised.

3. Some verbs that are impersonal in English are personal in Latin: as, Cicero eo anno consul fuisse videtur, it seems that Cicero was consul in that year; urbs Roma a Romulo esse condita dicitur, it is said that the city of Rome was founded by Romulus. So too, Putor, I am supposed; feror, I am said.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: credo, persuadeo, pareo, ignosco, parco, capio, curro, trado, venio.

Translate into English :—

1. Solon esse sapientissimus dictus est.
2. Homērus multis annis ante Vergilium vixisse traditus est.
3. Omnibus mulieribus liberisque parceretur.
4. Nonne tibi a magistro creditum est?
5. Num hoc oppidum ab hostibus eo anno captum esse dicitur?
6. Tibi a bonis non ignoscitur.
7. Imperatori a militibus non parebatur.
8. Omnibus ad portam curritur.
9. In eo loco multas horas acriter pugnatum est.
10. Duci a militibus decimae legionis non parebitur.
11. Mihi ab amico persuasum est.
12. Ille vir doctissimus fuisse dicitur.
13. Romam nobis vespere ventum est.

Translate into Latin :—

1. It was said that Cicero was the most eloquent of all the Romans.
2. You were believed by all the soldiers in the army.
3. They will be pardoned by the general.
4. I was easily persuaded by my friend.
5. It seems that he was the bravest of the soldiers.
6. It is related that Athens, the capital of Greece, was founded by Cecrops.
7. A battle was fought on the plain by the Romans.
8. All ran to the gates of the camp.
9. You were not obeyed by the boys.
10. It is said that Vergil lived at the same time as Horace.
11. Will not all the prisoners be pardoned by the general?
12. Will not the messenger be believed by all the soldiers?
13. Did it not seem that he was the most learned of the Romans?

LESSON LXXXI.

1. The construction of the following verbs expressing feeling should be noticed : Misēret (it excites pity), poenītet (it repents), pūdet (it shames), taedet (it wearies), pīget (it vexes). They are used with the accusative of the person affected and the genitive of the object causing the feeling : as, Eorum nos miseret, we pity them (literally, it excites one's pity of them) ; hos homines ignaviae suae pudet, these men are ashamed of their idleness; te stultitiae poenitet, you repent of your folly; me dubitationis huius taedet, I am weary of this hesitation.

2. Ōpus est and ūsus est, there is need, are generally used impersonally with the dative of the person to whom there is need and the ablative of the thing needed: as, Cibo mihi opus est, I have need of food (literally, there is need to me with food); viginti talentis tibi usus est, you have need of twenty talents.

3. The impersonals intērest and rēfert, it is of importance, have the genitive of the person to whom the matter is of importance: as, Clodii intererat Milōnem perire, it was of importance to Clodius that Milo should die. But if the person is expressed in English by a personal pronoun, the ablative singular feminine of the possessive pronoun is used in Latin: as, Id meā interest, this is of importance to me; hoc tuā intererat, this was of importance to you. The degree of importance is expressed either by an adverb (e.g., multum, magnopere, plurimum, etc.), or by a genitive of price (e.g., tanti, magni, parvi, etc.): as, Multum meā interest, it is of much importance to me; magni tuā intererat, it was of great importance to you.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: pudet, poenitet, miseret, taedet.

Translate into English:—

1. Nonne te stultitiae tuae pudet? 2. Nobis armis opus est. 3. Tui flagitii poenitere te oportet. 4. Omnium civium a consule servari intererat. 5. Magistratibus igitur nobis opus est, sine quorum prudentiā esse civitas non potest. 6. Vestrā intererat, commilitones, castris hostium potiri. 7. Hodie omnibus praesidio tuo opus est. 8. Magni meā interest te mihi adesse. 9. Hunc hominem sclerum poenitebit. 10. Nos illius viri miseret. 11. Ad salutem civitatis intererat nos quam maximas copias comparare. 12. Magni intererit tuā amicos quam plurimos habere. 13. Eius stultitiae me eo tempore puduit.

Translate into Latin:—

1. I am ashamed of his cowardice. 2. You have need of friends. 3. We ought all to be ashamed of our defeat. 4. It is of great importance that the city should be saved. 5. We have all need of friends without whose aid we cannot do good to others. 6. It is to their interest to help their friends in danger. 7. It is of the highest interest to you to aid your brother. 8. Did he not repent of his undertaking? 9. He said that it was his interest to remain at Rome. 10. You ought to collect as many soldiers as possible. 11. You ought to repent of your wicked deeds. 12. We are not ashamed of our forefathers. 13. He pitied the sorrows of the old man.

LESSON LXXXII.

VERBS WITH THE ACCUSATIVE AND GENITIVE.

Verbs of accusing, acquitting, condemning, reminding, and admonishing take, in the active, the accusative of the person and the genitive of the thing : as, Te impietātis absolvo, I acquit you of impiety; arguit me furti, he accuses me of theft; cives eum proditiōnis accusaverunt, the citizens accused him of treachery; iudices hunc furti condemnant, the jury condemn this man for theft; Catilina eos egestatis admonebat, Catiline reminded them of their needy condition; nos officii nostri admonuit, he reminded us of our duty.

Note.—In the passive, these constructions become respectively : Tu impietatis ab me absolvēris; furti ab eo arguor; is proditiōnis a civibus accusatus est, hic furti ab iudicibus condemnatur; ei egestatis a Catilina admonebantur; nos officii nostri ab eo admoniti sumus.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : dico, solvo, parco, cado, occido, licet.

Translate into English :—

1. Themistocles absens proditiōnis damnatus est. 2. Iudex eum iniuriarum absolvit. 3. Nonne omnes eum furti accusaverunt? 4. Me officii mei admonere licuit. 4. Nos omnes stultitiæ nostræ poenitere oportet. 5. Num puer ab iudice furti absolutus est? 6. Huius post mortem populum iudicii sui poenitebit. 7. Catilina coniurationis contra patriam ab Cicerone condemnatus est. 8. Opus est omnibus nobis sapientiā. 9. Alium (one) stultitiæ, alium sceleris admonet. 10. Magni nostrā interest milites quam plurimos comparare. 11. Quam plurimos occīdisse dixit. 12. Nonne omnibus liberis a militibus parceretur? 13. Tuo praesidio nobis usus erat.

Translate into Latin :—

1. They condemned the boy for theft. 2. They acquitted him of treachery. 3. Was he accused of cowardice? 4. He was unwilling to remind them of their folly. 5. Was Verres not accused of extortion by Cicero? 6. Did he pity the sorrows of the wretched man? 7. Cicero accused him of treachery. 8. We are all in need of foresight in danger. 9. It was of great importance that they should repent of their crimes. 10. Were not the wretched men spared by the soldiers? 11. It was said that he was acquitted of this charge by the judge. 12. We all needed your help on that day. 13. O! that he had repented of his folly.

LESSON LXXXIII.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS OF THE THIRD PERSON.

1. The usual word for he, she, it, they, &c., when they are expressed at all, is Is, eā, id, (p. 122, 4) : as, Is hostis esse dicebatur, he was said to be an enemy; id tibi affirmo I assure you of it; in eos officia confērunt, on them they bestow kindnesses.

2. When he, she, it, etc., are to be strongly emphasized they are expressed by hic, iste, ille (p. 118) : as, Hoc illud est, that is it; ille vitam in otio ēgit, he passed his life in idleness.

3. He, she, it, etc., referring to the subject of a verb, are expressed by the reflexive sui (p. 105) : as, Caesar dicit se id fēcisse, Caesar says that he (Caesar) did it (eum would mean someone else than Caesar); Caesar eum sibi legatum esse iubet, Caesar orders him to be legate to him (Caesar).

Note.—In a complex sentence, ipse is used to refer to the subject of a subordinate clause, if ambiguity would arise from the use of sui : as, Rogat cur de ipsis despērent, he asks them why they despair of themselves (de se would mean of him).

4. The forms of sui may, however, refer to the object of a verb, if no ambiguity results : as, Reliquos cogit se convertere, the rest he compels to turn (literally, to turn themselves).

5. His, her, its, their, are usually expressed by the genitive of is: as, Dixit se eorum amicum esse, he said that he was their friend. But his, her, etc., referring to the subject of a verb is expressed by suus: as, Domum suam vendit, he sells his house.

Note 1.—In a complex sentence the genitive of ipse is used for his, etc., to refer to the subject of a subordinate clause, if ambiguity would arise from the use of suus: as, Rogat cur se ipsorum inimicis tradere velint, he asks why they want to surrender him to their enemies.

Note 2.—The possessive is not expressed in Latin, if no ambiguity arises from its omission : as, Patri pārē, obey your father.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of : mitto, credo, parco, relinquo, curro, possum, mōveo, vīdeo, sentio, contemno.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesar ducem clarissimum contra se lectum esse credebat.
 2. Sentit animus se vi suā moveri. 3. Clamavit eum cecīdisse.
 4. Nonne eum flentem vidisti? 5. Credit eum semper nostri memorem esse. 6. Eos eorum copias educere iubet. 7. Rēge dimisso, Caesar copias suas in eius fines duxit. 8. Marcus et Quintus fratres fuērunt ; hic fortior, ille prudentior fuit. 9. Pueri et¹ senem et consilia eius contemnunt. 10. Oppido relicto, Caesar in eos iter fecit. 11. Dixit eum haec vidisse. 12. Nonne is sum qui id feci?

Translate into Latin :—

1. He threw himself upon them. 2. Having sent forward the cavalry, he led the infantry into their territory. 3. Caesar said that he would spare them. 4. Did he not think that they would help him? 5. He promised that he would make war upon their towns. 6. That prison could not hold them. 7. The old man says that he despises both himself and them. 8. Did he think that he was believed? 9. He knew that they were worthy of death. 10. He said that some rivers ran deep. 11. These people think that they are happy. 12. He has taken all their cities.

¹Et....et, both....and.

LESSON LXXXIV.

GERUND AND GERUNDIVE.

1. One form of the Latin verb remains to be discussed. This is the gerund.¹ The gerund is a verbal noun, corresponding to the English participial noun in -ing. It is inflected as follows:—

FIRST CONJUGATION.

GEN.	āmandī, of loving.
DAT.	āmandō, to or for loving.
ACC.	āmandum, loving.
ABL.	āmandō, with, by, from, or in loving

SECOND CONJUGATION.

mōnendī, of advising. mōnendō, to or for advising. mōnendum, advising. mōnendō, with, by, from or in advising.

THIRD CONJUGATION.

GEN.	rēgendī, of ruling.
DAT.	rēgendō, to or for ruling.
ACC.	rēgendum, ruling.
ABL.	rēgendō, with, by, from or in ruling.

FOURTH CONJUGATION.

audiendī, of hearing. audiendō, to or for hearing. audiendum, hearing. audiendō, with, by, from or in hearing.

2. The gerund has partly the nature of a noun and partly that of a verb. As a noun, it may be governed by another noun in the genitive, or by an adjective, or by a preposition. It resembles a verb in governing a case and in being limited by an adverb: as, Ius vocandi senatum, the right of summoning the senate. (Here the gerund is governed in the genitive by ius, and governs senatum in the accusative, because vocāre governs that case); docendo discimus, we learn by teaching; natus ad regendum, born for ruling; parcendo inimicis gloriam paravit, he won distinction by sparing his enemies.

Note.—The nominative of the gerund is supplied by the infinitive: as, Ambulare iucundum est, walking is delightful.

GERUNDIVE.

3. Instead of the gerund with an accusative, Latin often uses a peculiar construction of its own. Thus: Born for ruling men is not often expressed by natus ad viros regendum, but by natus ad viros

¹The word is derived from gero, carry, because, apparently, it expresses the action of the verb as being "carried on."

regendos, where regendos agrees with viros in gender, number, and case, and is called the gerundive. So too: In epistolis scribendis (in writing letters) is used for in scribendo epistolas and consilium urbis capiendæ (the plan for taking the city), for consilium capiendi urbem.

4. The gerundive has the form of the future part. passive. Thus :—

Present stem and -ndus.	{	1. Conj.,	āma-ndus, a, um.
		2. “	mōne-ndus, a, um.
		3. “	rēge-ndus, a, um.
		4. “	audīe-ndus.

5. The rule for turning the gerund into the gerundive is easily deduced from the above examples. It may be stated as follows : The direct object of the gerund is attracted into the case of the gerund, which is then made to agree with its object in gender and number.

6. The genitive of the gerund or of the gerundive is often used with causā, on account of, for the sake of, which is written after its case : as, Vestis est frigōris depellendi causā, dress is intended for keeping off cold.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Nonne is ad ludos spectandos profectus est? 2. Hic clipeus utilis corpori tegendo est. 3. Eloquentia legendis poetis augētur. 4. Summa voluptas ex discendo capitur. 5. Inīta sunt consilia urbis delendæ. 6. Milites frumentandi causā in fines hostium missi sunt. 7. Non oratum sed querendi causā iērunt. 8. Te duce, ad arma capienda parati sumus. 9. Nullum spatium ad se armandos dabatur. 10. Optimam occasionem nāvigandi habemus. 11. Breve tempus satis longum est ad bene vivendum. 12. Ea sunt usui ad armandas naves.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Water is good for drinking. 2. They formed the plan of killing the consul. 3. Was he not skilled in (gen.) guiding the state? 4. He spent much time in writing letters. 5. The horse is fit for carrying burdens. 6. You will have an opportunity of finishing the work. 7. He will send them into the territory of the enemy to collect corn (gerundive with causā). 8. Have they formed the plan of crossing the river? 9. I thought you had come for the purpose of (causā) seeing the city. 10. He said that they were coming for the purpose of making a bridge. 11. Were they ready to take up arms in the consulship of Caesar? 12. He said that he was going into the garden to see the flowers

LESSON LXXXV.

THE GERUND—(Continued).

Passive Periphrastic Conjugation.

1. The gerund and not the gerundive is to be used:—

(a) In the case of verbs that do not govern an accusative: as, Parcendo inimicis, by sparing enemies (not parcendis inimicis).

(b) Where euphony would be violated: as, Amicos vīdendi causā, for the sake of seeing friends (not amicorum videndorum).

(c) Where ambiguity results: as, Aliquid docendi causā, for the sake of teaching something (not alicuius, which would mean some one).

2. The gerundive is often used to express duty or necessity: as, Hostis tīendus, an enemy that ought to be, or must be, feared.

3. From this use of the gerundive, a whole conjugation—called the Passive Periphrastic Conjugation—is formed of the gerundive and the verb sum, I am. Thus:—

Present,	{ āmandus sum, I am to be loved. āmandus es, thou art to be loved, etc.
Imperfect,	{ āmandus eram, I was to be loved. āmandus eras, thou wast to be loved, etc.
Future,	{ āmandus ero, I shall have to be loved. āmandus eris, thou wilt have to be loved, etc. and so forth.

4. The agent is expressed in the passive periphrastic conjugation by the dative : as, Parentes nobis amandi sunt, our parents should be loved by us.

5. The passive periphrastic conjugation is generally used to translate the English should, ought, must (expressing duty or necessity) : as, Ex civitate pellendi sunt, they must be banished.

When the verb in English is active, the object becomes the subject in Latin, and the subject becomes the dative of the agent : as, Aqua mihi bibenda est, I must drink water (= water must be drunk by me).

6. Intransitive verbs and verbs that govern the genitive, the dative, or the ablative, must be used impersonally in the passive periphrastic conjugation : as, Nobis eundum est, we must go (= it must be gone by us) ; omnibus moriendum est, all must die ; inimicis a nobis parcendum est, we must spare our enemies ; utendum est iudicio a te, you must use your judgment.

Note.—When a verb does not govern the accusative, the agent (to avoid ambiguity) is expressed in the passive periphrastic conjugation by a (or ab) with the ablative. This appears from the last two examples.

7. With do (give), curo (take care of), trado (hand over), the gerundive is used to express purpose : as, Terram habitandam dat, he gives them the land to dwell in ; pontem faciendum curat, he has a bridge built.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Pārendum est legibus.
2. Haec Caesari miranda videntur.
3. Hostibus ad consilia capienda nihil spatii dandum esse existimabat.
4. Civibus a nobis subveniendum est.
5. Caesar ad dilectūs agendos profectus est.
6. Intellexit magnam partem equitatūs ab hostibus, aliquot diebus ante, praedandi causā trans flumen esse missam.
7. Ars civitatis gubernandae est difficillima.
8. In libris tuis legendis tres dies multā cum voluptate exēgi.
9. Catilina bellum suscepit reipublicae evertendae causā.
10. Ariovistus cum suis ad occupandum oppidum contendit.
11. Tempus bello gerendo idoneum non erat.
12. Ad galeas induendas tempus deīuit.
13. Vix iis rebus administrandis tempus dabatur.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Wisdom is increased by learning and thinking. 2. Caius obtained the consulship for the purpose of avenging his brother. 3. He won credit by aiding friends. 4. Caesar gave the signal for (say of) beginning the battle. 5. The Romans were desirous of carrying on war. 6. They undertook the work for the purpose of finishing it. 7. Caesar set out to Gaul to carry on war. 12. Do you think that he should be believed? 13. We must all obey the general.

LESSON LXXXVI.

ACTIVE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATION. SUPINE.

1. Besides the passive periphrastic conjugation in Latin, there is also an active one, expressing futurity or intention. It is formed from the verb sum and the future participle in -tūrus. Thus: Āmaturus sum, I am going (or intend) to love; āmaturus eram (or fui), I was going (or intended) to love; and so on through all forms. So too: Mōnīturus sum, I intend to advise; mōnīturus eram, I intended to advise.

SUPINES.

2. Latin verbs have two supines, one in -tum and one in -tu. They are formed by adding -tum and -tu to the present stem or to the present stem modified: as, āmātum, to love.

amātu, to be loved.

mōnītum, to advise.

monītu, to be advised.

rectum, to rule.

rectu, to be ruled.

auditum, to hear.

audītu, to be heard.

3. The supine in -tum is used to express purpose after verbs of motion. It governs the same case as the verb from which it is derived: as, Legatos mittunt rogatum auxilium, they send ambassadors to ask for aid; pabulatum milites emisit, he sent out soldiers to forage.

The supine in -tu is used after adjectives expressing difficulty, ease, credibility, pleasure, worth or the reverse, and after a few substantives, like fas (right), nefas (wrong), scēlus (wickedness): as, Difficile est dictu, it is difficult to be said, or it is difficult to say.

Note 1.—The supines are verbal nouns, one in the accusative and one in the ablative.

Note 2.—The supine in um with the pres. inf. pass. of eo, I go, is used to form the fut. inf. pass. of the verb. Thus: He said that he would be advised, dixit se monitum iri = he said that it is gone (i.e., people go) to advise him.

EXERCISE.

two days. 8. All should cultivate the art of speaking. 9. Nothing seemed to Xenophon so princely (regūlis) as the pursuit of cultivating the soil. 10. I intend now to speak of (de) choosing a commander for (ad) that war. 11. The Helvetii were fond of fighting with their neighbors. 12. We must all defend our country when attacked by an enemy (abl. abs.). 13. Spring is the time of year for sowing seed.

LESSON LXXXVII.

CLASSIFICATION OF CLAUSES.—INDIRECT QUESTION.

1. Dependent or subordinate clauses are called noun clauses, adjective clauses, or adverbial clauses, according as they perform the function of a noun, adjective, or adverb. Thus, in I know who he is, the clause who he is is a noun-clause, object of know; in I saw the man whom you mean, the clause whom you mean is an adjective clause, qualifying man; in He came that he might see the town, the clause that he might see the town is an adverbial clause of purpose, modifying came.

INDIRECT QUESTION.

2. A noun-clause headed by an interrogative pronoun, adjective, or adverb and used as the subject or object of a verb, takes its verb in the subjunctive. Such a clause is called an indirect (or dependent) question. Thus: Scio quis sit, I know who he is; quid faciat multum rēfert, it is of much importance what he does. (Here quis sit, and quid faciat, are indirect questions.)

3. The following are the more common interrogative pronouns, adjectives, and adverbs: Quis, who? uter, which of two? quantus, how great? qualis, what kind? quot, how many? ubi, where? unde, whence? quo, whither? cur (or quare), why? qui or (with adjs. and adverbs) quam, how? quemadmodum or quomodo, in what way? quantum, how much? quando, when? (quum is never interrogative), quoties, how often? quamdiu, how long?

4. Whether, if, at the head of an indirect question, is num: as, Dic mihi num vēnerit, tell me if he has come.

5. Whether . . . or, is utrum . . . an; but or not is neque in indirect questions (not annon, as in direct. P. 130, 6.): as, Multum interest utrum valeamus an aegri simus, it makes a great difference whether we are well or sick; videamus utrum aqua sit neque, let us see whether it is water or not.

Note.—After nescio or haud scio (I don't know), dubito (I doubt), incertum est (it is uncertain)—implying an affirmative—whether is an: as, Constantiam dico? Nescio an melius patientiam possim dicere, consistency, do I say? I don't know whether I can not better say long-suffering.

LESSON LXXXVIII.

CLASSIFICATION OF TENSES.—SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

Indirect Question—(Continued).

1. Latin tenses are divided into Primary and Secondary (or Historical), as follows :—

Primary Tenses.	{	Pres.,	āmat, he loves.
		Pres.-Perf.,	āmāvit, he has loved.
		Future,	āmābit, he will love.
		Future Perf.,	āmāvērit, he will have loved.
Secondary or Historical Tenses.	{	Imperf.,	āmābat, he was loving.
		Past Indef.,	āmāvit, he loved.
		Pluperf.,	āmāvērāt, he had loved.

Note.—The Latin perfect has the force of both a present-perfect (i.e., perf. with have) and a past indefinite. When it is a pres.-perf., it is a primary tense ; when a past indef., a secondary.

2. The above classification of Latin tenses is important, in view of the fact that the tense of the subjunctive in a dependent clause is primary when the tense of the main verb is primary, and secondary when the tense of the main verb is secondary. This is an important rule, and is called the rule for the Sequence of Tenses. It may be stated thus :—

RULE FOR THE SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

A primary tense in the principal clause, is followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause ; a secondary tense in the principal clause, is followed by a secondary tense in the dependent clause.

3. The following examples of the indirect question will illustrate the rule :—

A. PRIMARY TENSES IN BOTH PRINCIPAL AND DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

(1) Present in Principal clause.

Scio quid āgās, I know what you are doing (now) (dependent question, therefore verb in subj.)

Scio quid ēgēris, I know what you have done (in the past).

Scio quid actūrus sīs, I know what you are going to do (in the future ; i.e., what you will do).

Note.—The place of the fut. subj. act. (which is wanting), is supplied by the active periphrastic conjugation (p 174, 1).

(2) Present-Perfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvi quid āgās, I have learned what you are doing (now).

Cognōvi quid ēgēris, I have learned what you have done (in the past).

Cognōvi quid actūrus sīs, I have learned what you are going to do (in the future).

(3) Future in Principal clause.

Audiam quid āgās, I shall hear what you are doing (then).

Audiam quid ēgēris, I shall hear what you have done (in the past)

Audiam quid actūrus sīs, I shall hear what you are going to do (in the future).

(4) Future-Perfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvēro quid āgās, I shall have known what you are doing (then).

Cognōvēro quid ēgēris, I shall have known what you have done (in the past).

Cognōvēro quid actūrus sīs, I shall have known what you are going to do (in the future).

B. SECONDARY (OR HISTORICAL) TENSES IN PRINCIPAL AND DEPENDENT CLAUSES.

(1) Imperfect in Principal clause.

Sciēbam quid āgērēs, I knew (literally, was knowing) what you were doing (then).

Sciēbam quid ēgissēs, I knew what you had done (in the past).

Sciēbam quid actūrus essēs, I knew what you were going to do (in the future ; i.e., what you would do).

(2) Past Indefinite in Principal clause.

Cognōvi quid āgērēs, I learned what you were doing (then).

Cognōvi quid ēgissēs, I learned what you had done (in the past).

Cognōvi quid actūrus essēs, I learned what you were going to do (in the future).

(3) Pluperfect in Principal clause.

Cognōvĕram quid āgĕrĕs, I had learned what you were doing (then.)

Cognōvĕram quid ĕgissĕs, I had learned what you had done (in the past).

Cognōvĕram quid actūrus essĕs, I had learned what you were going to do (in the future).

12. The soldiers did not spare the inhabitants of that town.
13. He sold his house for ten talents.

LESSON LXXXIX.

IDIOMATIC USE OF THE INDIRECT QUESTION.

Noun-clauses Introduced by Quod and Ut.

1. An English abstract noun is often expressed in Latin by an indirect question : as, Dico tibi quale periculum sit, I tell you the nature of the danger; quot essent hostes rogavit, he asked the number of the enemy; quo eamus rogant, they ask our destination (=whither we are going).

NOUN-CLAUSE INTRODUCED BY QUOD.

2. Quod (meaning, because, the fact that), with the indicative often introduces a noun-clause in Latin : as, Magnum est hoc, quod victor victis pepercit, this is an important matter, the fact that when victorious he spared the vanquished.

NOUN-CLAUSE INTRODUCED BY UT.

3. Verbs of asking, commanding, striving, and effecting, take in English an infinitive but in Latin a noun-clause introduced by ut, that, with the subjunctive: as, Oro te ut hoc facias, I beg you to do this; nititur ut vincat, he strives to conquer.

If there is a not with the inf., nē (that not) is used for ut non: as, Puero imperavi ne domo exiret, I ordered the boy not to go from home (impf., in accordance with the rule for sequence, p. 178).

Note 1.—Iubeo, I order, however, and vēto, I forbid, take the infinitive : as, Iussi puerum domo non exire, I ordered the boy not to go from home; vetuit me hoc facere, he forbade me to do it.

Note 2.—Statuo, constituo, decerno, I determine, take the infinitive when the subject of the main verb and of the infinitive is the same : as, Statuit Caesar in Italiam redire, Caesar determined to return to Italy. In other cases, they take a noun-clause introduced by ut or ne: as, Statuit Caesar ut legiones suae in Italiam redirent, Caesar determined that his legions should return to Italy.

4. The following impersonal verbs are followed by a noun-clause introduced by ut: Contingit, evēnit, accīdit, and fit (it happens), restat (it remains), sēquītur (it follows), feri potest (it may happen): as, Accīdit ut nemo adesset, it happened that no one was present.

He determined to set out for Gaul that winter. 14. Beg them not to come. 15. The fact that you betrayed your country is enough.

LESSON XC.

ADVERBIAL CLAUSES.

Final Clauses Introduced by Ut (or Ne), and Quo.

1. An adverbial clause is one that takes the place of an adverb. Thus, in I eat that I may live, the clause introduced by that is an adverbial clause of purpose, limiting the action of the main verb. An adverbial clause of purpose is called a final clause (from finis, an end), because it expresses the end or object of the verb it limits.

2. Final clauses in Latin are usually introduced by ut, that, or ne, that . . . not, lest (both with the subjunctive): as, Edo ut vivam, I eat that I may live; hoc dico ne te laedam, I say this that I may not offend you (=to avoid offending you).

Note.—Ne in a final clause, may often translate the English “to avoid,” “to prevent.”

3. In final clauses the present subjunctive is used after primary tenses; the imperfect after secondary, in accordance with the Rule for Sequence (see p. 178). Thus: Multi laudant ut laudentur, many praise that they may be praised (pres. after a primary tense); multi laudabant ut laudarentur, many praised that they might be praised (imperfect after a secondary tense).

4. That no one, that no (adj.), that nothing, that never, in a final clause, are respectively ne quis, ne ullus, ne quid, ne unquam: as, Porta clausa est ne quis exiret, the gate was shut that no one might go out; clamant ne ullum verbum audiatur, they are shouting that no word may be heard; abii ne quid viderem, I went away that I might see nothing; hoc facite ne unquam vituperent, do this that they may never revile.

5. Instead of ut in a final clause, quo (= ut eo, that by this) with the subjunctive, is used when the clause has a comparative in it: as, Puto aliquid puero dandum esse quo sit studiosior, I think that something ought to be given to the boy that he may be more zealous; Caesar castella communit quo facilius Helvetios prohibere possit, Caesar erects forts that he may the more easily keep off the Helvetii.

5. We must raise a shout that we may be heard by him.
6. He praised us in order to be praised by us.
7. He killed himself that he might never see the country overthrown.
8. Do not buy what you do not need.
9. In a few days we shall return to see (use quo) the place better.
10. Did you not see with what pride he answered?
11. We must teach our children in order that they may be better citizens.
12. He wishes to return home in order to stand for the consulship.

LESSON XCI.

FINAL CLAUSES—(Continued).

Qui Final. Quominus and Quin. Neve.

1. The relative qui (called qui final) is often used with the subjunctive to express a purpose: as, Misit legatos qui pacem peterent, he sent ambassadors to sue for peace (qui=ut ei).

Note.—Relative adverbs, like ubi (where) and unde (whence), are used, like the relative pronoun, to express a purpose:

as, Domum ubi habitaret iēgit, he chose a house where he might dwell (ubi=ut ibi, that there).

2. After verbs of preventing, a final clause is often used, introduced by quominus (=by which the less=in order that not): as, Nihil obstat quominus scribas, nothing prevents you from writing (=by which you should the less write).

Note.—After verbs of preventing, quin (qui+ne=how not), may be used for quominus, if there is a negative or virtual¹ negative with the main verb: as, Vix inhibēri potuit quin saxa iacēret, he could scarcely be prevented from throwing stones.

3. After verbs of fearing, a final clause is used, introduced by ut or ne: as, Vērēor ne veniat, I am afraid he will come; vereor ut veniat, I am afraid he will not come.

Note.—Here ut and ne apparently change their meaning; ut is used for that not, and ne for that.

4. The English future after verbs of fearing, is expressed by the subjunctive—the present subjunctive, if after a primary tense, the imperfect if after a secondary: as, Timeo ut labōres sustīneas, I am afraid that you will not endure your labors; timēbam ne eā evēnīrent, I was afraid that these things would happen.

5. In English the infinitive is often used to denote a purpose, but in Latin it is never so used in good prose. Such an infinitive may be expressed in Latin in various ways.

Thus: He sent ambassadors to sue for peace, may be expressed as follows:—

Lēgātos misit ut pacem pētērent (ut final).

Legatos misit qui pacem pētērent (qui final).

Legatos misit ad pacem petendam (gerundive acc. with ad), or legatos misit pacis petendae causā (gerundive genitive with causā).

Legatos misit ad pacem petendum (gerund acc. with ad), or legatos misit pacem petendi causā (gerund genitive with causā).

Legatos misit pacem petitum (supine after verb of motion).

Legatos misit pacem petitūros (future part. active expressing a purpose).

¹A word like vix, scarcely, or a question expecting the answer No.

6. For et ne (following ut or a previous ne), nēve (or neū) is used: as, Hoc dico ut bono animo sit neve perturbetur. I say this that he may be of good courage and may not be disturbed; abibo ne eum videam neve audiam, I will go away that I may not see or hear him.

EXERCISE.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Caesar sends forward the soldiers of the tenth legion to seize the hill. 2. He ordered them not to go out of camp after sunset. 3. He begged him to spare the women and children. 4. He ordered them to open (laxare) the ranks that they might the more easily use their swords. 5. He was afraid that all the soldiers would desert him. 6. The Romans built forts to keep back the enemy. 7. They were afraid that they would be defeated. 8. I tell you this, that you may the more easily understand. 9. I do not know when they intend to set out. 10. He asked him not to bring a single soldier with him. 11. He persuaded them to set out with him. 12. Fearing that he would not be able to withstand the attack, he sent a despatch to Caesar. 13. He warned him to avoid all wrong-doing.

LESSON XCII.

ADVERBIAL CLAUSES OF RESULT.
UT CONSECUTIVE.

1. An adverbial clause is often used to express the result of what is described in the main clause. Such clauses are called consecutive clauses (consequor, overtake, attain). Thus, in the sentence, Such fear seized all, that the king himself fled, the clause introduced by that is a consecutive clause.

2. A consecutive clause is usually introduced by ut with the subjunctive (called ut-consecutive): as, Tantus timor omnes occupavit ut rex ipse fugerit, such fear seized all that the king himself fled; tam caecus fuit ut me non viderit, he was so blind that he did not see me.

Note 1.—The rule for the sequence of tenses (p. 178) does not apply in consecutive clauses. Of course the imperfect subjunctive will be used, but only if the meaning requires it. Thus: Tantus timor exercitum occupavit ut omnes perturbarentur, such fear seized the army that all were disturbed (incomplete continuous act).

Note 2.—That . . . not in a consecutive clause, is not ne (as in a final clause; p. 183), but ut non; so, too, ut nemo, ut nullus, ut nihil, are used for that no one, that no, and that nothing. See below.

3. Consecutive clauses are used after demonstrative words like talis, such; tantus, so great; sic, ita, tam, so; adeo, to such a degree: as, Talis erat ut nemo ei crederet, he was of such a character that no one believed him; tanta vis probitatis est ut eam in hoste diligamus, so great is the force of honesty that we love it even in an enemy; Tarquinius sic Servium diligebat ut is eius vulgo haberetur filius, Tarquin so loved Servius that the latter was commonly regarded as his son; Verres Siciliam per triennium ita vexavit ut ea restitui in antiquum statum nullo modo potuerit, Verres so harried Sicily for three years that it could not in any way be restored to its original condition; tam improbus fuit ut nihil eum unquam a scelere revocaverit, he was so wicked that nothing ever called him away from crime; hoc eum adeo terruit ut vix hodie prodire audeat, this so terrified him that he scarcely ventures (now) to go forth.

QUI CONSECUTIVE.

4. The relative qui (called qui-consecutive) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a consecutive clause : as, Non is sum qui hoc faciam, I am not the one to do it (qui=ut ego, that I).

5. Qui consecutive is used in the following constructions :—

(a) With certain indefinite expressions, like sunt qui (there are some who), reperiuntur qui (there are found who), nemo est qui (there is no one who), quis est qui? (who is there who?), nihil est quod (there is nothing that) : as, Sunt qui putent nihil sibi litteris opus esse, there are some who think that they have no need of literature ; nihil est quod dicere velim, there is nothing that I wish to say.

(b) After dignus (worthy), indignus (unworthy), and idoneus or aptus (fit) : as, Dignus est qui ametur, he is worthy to be loved (=he deserves to be).

(c) After quam with a comparative : as, Maior est quam cui resisti possit, he is too great to be resisted (=greater than to whom it can be resisted).

Note.—Possum, I can, is used impersonally, only when joined with a passive infinitive.

6. Instead of qui non, quin with the subjunctive is often used : as, Nemo est quin sciat, there is no one who does not know.

So too, after dubito (doubt), nego (deny), ignōro (be ignorant), when joined with a negative or virtual negative,¹ that is expressed by quin (=qui ne, how not) : as, Negari non potest quin turpe sit fidem fallere, it cannot be denied that it is dishonorable to break one's word ; non dubitat quin animus sit immortalis, he does not doubt that the soul is immortal ; num quis ignorat quin haec vera sint? is anyone ignorant that this is the truth?

Note.—Quis means any after si, nisi, ne, num, quo and quanto.

¹Words like vix, scarcely, and questions that expect the answer No.

There is no one but believes that he was guilty of treachery. 13. There were some in the army who were willing to betray their country for gold. 14. Their deeds are too great to be told.

XCIII.

THE CONDITIONAL SENTENCE.

1. A conditional sentence contains (a) a main clause, (b) an adverbial clause stating the condition on which the statement of the main clause is, or would be, true : as, If he says this, he is wrong. The clause containing the condition is called the if-clause.

2. The common types of the conditional sentence are as follows :—

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

	IF-CLAUSE.	MAIN CLAUSE.
Indicative in both Clauses.	1. Si quis hæc dicit, If anyone says this,	errat, he is wrong.
	Si quis hæc dixit, If anyone said this,	erravit, he was wrong.
Subjunctive in both Clauses.	2. Si quis hæc dicet (or dixerit), If any one says (literally, shall say or have said) this,	errabit. he will be wrong.
	3. Si quis hæc dicat, If anyone were to (or should) say this,	erret, he would be wrong.
	4. Si quis hæc diceret, If anyone were saying this (now),	erraret, he would be wrong.
	5. Si quis hæc dixisset, If anyone had said this (in the past)	erravisset, he would have been wrong.

Note.—Instead of the English present, referring to the future (as in type 2), Latin uses the future, or—if the action of the verb in the if-clause is over before that of the main verb begins—the future-perfect.

3. Unless, or if not with the force of unless, in an if-clause, is nisi or ni: as, Nisi arma sumpsisses, delētus esses, unless you had taken up arms, you would have been destroyed; nisi medicus adesset, puer morēretur, if the doctor were not here, the boy would be dying. But when if not can not be turned into unless, it is expressed by si non : as, Cur mihi nõces, si ego tibi non noceo? why do you harm me, if I do not harm you?

4. Any, after si or nisi, is quis : as, Si quis ita fecerit, poenas dabit, if anyone does so, he will be punished (literally, shall have done so).

5. Whether...or, introducing alternative conditions (i. e., with the force of if...or if), is expressed by sive (seu)...sive (seu) : as, Sive adfuisti sive abfuisti, nihil dico, whether you were present or absent, I say nothing.

Note.—Sive...sive must be carefully distinguished from utrum...an (p. 177, 5), introducing a dependent double question and used as the subject or object of a verb : as, Utrum velit an nolit rogo, I ask whether he is willing or unwilling.

6. But if, introducing a corrected condition is sin (= si + ne, if not) ; if not is si minus : as, Si rogas, respondeo; sin nihil rogas taceo if you ask, I answer; but if you don't ask, I hold my peace; si hæc fecerit, gaudebo; si minus, aequo animo feram, if he has done it, I shall be glad; if not, I shall bear it with patience.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Si roges, respondeam. 2. Si quid haberem, darem. 3. Si Metelli fidei diffisus essem, iudicem eum non retinuissem. 4. Nomen huius floris si scirem, eum pluris facerem. 5. Sive bene sive male facit, odio est. 6. Si ceteris satisfaciat, sibi satisfaciat. 7. Hoc si fecit, non ita acutus fuit. 8. Hoc si sciam, dicere non audeam. 9. Mihi si tu subvenies, gaudebo; si minus, non aegre feram. 10. Nisi auxilio venisses, de nobis actum esset. 11. Hoc si verum est, impetrabis; sin falsum, noli expectare. 12. Frater tuus si adesset, tibi plauderet.

1. If you had not applauded, he would have been ashamed. 2. If the harvest is large, the country will be rich. 3. If you should come to our aid, all would be well; if not, it will be all over with us. 4. If he were unwilling, we would not go. 5. Whether he reads or writes, he wastes no time. 6. If you were to ask me that, I should answer nothing. 7. If they had not detained me, I should have been here sooner. 8. If they put this man at the head of the army, the country will be safe. 9. If you should be willing, he would be unwilling. 10. If he had not been a man of courage, he would not have refused. 11. If he leads his army over the Rhine, it is all over with them. 12. If anyone should say so, he would not be listened to by anyone.

LESSON XCIV.

CLASSIFICATION OF CONDITIONAL SENTENCES.

Exception to the Rules.

1. The common types of the conditional sentence are easily learned with a little attention and practice. They are classified as follows :—

Conditional sentences are divided into three classes :

I. SIMPLE PRESENT AND PAST CONDITIONS.

This class will be easily recognized when the second and third classes are known. It includes all conditional sentences in which nothing is implied as to the fulfilment of the condition. It has the indicative in both clauses : as, Pecuniam sⁱ habet, dat, if he has money, he gives it; pecuniam si habuit, dedit, if he had money, he gave it.

Note.—Si rarely stands at the head of the sentence. Hence the common use of quodsi for si at the head of a si-clause.

II. FUTURE CONDITIONS.

This class includes conditional sentences in which the fulfilment of the condition is referred to the future. Of these there are two types :—

(a) Where the condition is regarded as likely to be fulfilled : as, Pecuniam si habebit, dabit, if he has (old English, shall have) money, he will give it.

Here the fut. indic. is used in both clauses. But the fut. perf. is used in the if-clause when the action of the verb of that clause is to be represented as over before that of the main verb begins: as, Hoc si fecerit, morietur, if he does this, he shall die (literally, shall have done).

(b) Where the condition is regarded as unlikely to be fulfilled. Such sentences have in English would or should in the main clause: as, Pecuniam si habeat, det, if he should have money, he would give it.

Here the present subjunctive is used in both clauses.

III. CONDITIONS CONTRARY TO FACT.

This class includes all conditional sentences in which the condition is represented as not fulfilled. Of these also there are two types:—

(a) Where the condition is referred to the present. These have in English the word now (expressed or understood) in both clauses: as, Pecuniam si habēret, daret, if he had money (now), he would give it.

Here the imperfect subjunctive is used in both clauses.

(b) Where the condition is referred to the past. This type has in English would have in the main clause: as, Pecuniam si habuisset, dedisset, if he had had money, he would have given it.

Here the pluperfect subjunctive is used in both clauses.

Note 1.—In sentences of Class III., the if-clause may refer to the past, while the main clause refers to the present, or vice versa: as, Illi si haec fecissent, viverent, if they had done this, they would now be alive.

Note 2.—The first type of Class III. is also used of past time to express continuous action: as, Haec si sentirent, sapientes essent, if they had held these views, they would have been wise.

2. One important exception to the regular rules for conditional sentences must be noted. It is as follows:—

The indicative, and not the subjunctive, is used in the main clause of the conditional sentence when the verb of that clause is—

(a) In the periphrastic conjugation active or passive (p. 172, 174).

(b) Possum, I can; debeo, I ought; oportet, it is needful: as, Ni litteras misisset, agros relicturi erant, if he had not sent the letter, they would have left their lands; consilia si processissent, interficiendus fuit, if the plans had succeeded, he would have been put to death; totus exercitus deleri potuit, si persecuti essent victores, the whole army might have been destroyed, if the victors had followed up.

3. Provided that is expressed by dum, by mōdo, or by dummodo, all with the subjunctive (with nē for non in negative clauses): as, Oderint dum metuant, let them hate provided that they fear; veniant dum ne maneant, let them come, provided that they do not remain.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English:—

1. Iterum si experiri volunt, ego iterum paratus sum decertare.
 2. Catilina si in urbe mansisset, nunquam nos rempublicam liberavissemus. 3. Helvetii si Allobrogibus satisfaciant, pacem cum iis faciam. 4. Servi mei si me metuerent, domum meam relinquendam esse putarem. 5. Manent ingenia senibus, modo permaneat industria. 6. Magno me metu liberabis, dummodo inter me atque te murus intersit. 7. Haec si tecum patria loquatur, impetrare debet. 8. Multi omnia recta atque honesta negligunt, dummodo potentiam consequantur. 9. Si certior factus essem in quo periculo esses, ad te advolassem. 10. Galli aequo animo omnes belli patiuntur iniurias, dummodo repellant periculum servitutis. 11. Neque hostem sustinere poterant, ni cohortes se obiecissent. 12. Nisi discedes, ego te hostem habebo. 13. Si te interfecero, ego gratiam multis faciam.

Translate into Latin:

1. I shall carry on war against the Gauls, provided I can collect two legions. 2. If you should conquer the enemy in battle, they would not obey you. 3. If that consul were living, he would keep off the attack of this enemy. 4. The power of Karthage would not have fallen so easily, if we had not conquered her with our fleet. 5. Provided he does not carry on war against that state, we will aid him with all our forces. 6. If he had been here, he would have helped me. 7. If they make an attack upon this town, they will take it. 8. If you do not give up the hostages, I shall regard you as enemies. 9. Provided you ward off this danger, we shall consider you a friend. 10. If you had wished to take this town, you should have collected more forces. 11. The man would have died, if we had not aided him. 12. If the rest were killed, would you escape? (use act. periphr. conjugation.) 13. If he had been the same as before, I could have touched his heart.

LESSON XCV.

COMPARATIVE AND CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

1. A comparative adverbial clause expresses agreement (or the opposite) with the statement of the main clause : as, Ut sementem fécéris, ita mētes, you shall reap according as you do (lit., shall have done) your seeding.

Here the clause introduced by ut is an adverbial comparative clause.

2. Comparative clauses fall into two classes :—

(a) Where the comparison is stated as a fact: as, Omnia, sicut acta sunt, memoravit, he has narrated everything just as it was done.

(b) Where the comparison is stated as a mere supposition: as, Honores petunt quasi honeste vixerint, they seek office, as if they have lived honorably (=while they have not).

The first class takes the indicative ; the second, the subjunctive.

3. The following are the common comparative conjunctions that are usually joined with the subjunctive : Tanquam, or tanquam si, quasi, velut, or velut si, as if : as, Tanquam hoc difficile sit, as if this were hard ; velut si Asia sit clausa, sic nihil perfertur ad nos just as if Asia were closed, no news reaches us.

4. The English the . . . the with two comparatives, is expressed in Latin in two ways : -

(a) By quo . . . eo (or quanto . . . tanto) with two comparatives : as, Quo (or quanto) quisque est melior, eo (or tanto) difficilius suspiciatur, the better a man is, the more difficulty he has in suspecting.

(b) By ut quisque...ita with two superlatives: as, Ut quisque vir optimus est, ita difficillime suspiciatur, the better a man is, &c.

Note. -- This might also be translated: In proportion to a man's goodness, &c., or, In proportion as a man is good, &c.

CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

5. Concessive adverbial clauses are those that make some concession, in spite of which the statement of the main clause is true. They are usually introduced in English by although: as, Romani, quamquam proelio fessi erant, tamen procedunt, the Romans, although they were weary with fighting, nevertheless advance.

6. Concessive clauses, when they state a fact, take the indicative; when they state a supposition, the subjunctive: as, Caesar, quamquam nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen suspiciabatur, though Caesar had not as yet discovered their plans, he nevertheless was suspicious; etsi falso in suspicionem venisses, tamen mihi ignoscere debuisti, although you had been falsely suspected, still you should have pardoned me (in suspicionem venire = the passive of suspicor, I suspect).

7. The following are the common concessive conjunctions, and the moods with which they are used: Quamquam (though), and ut (however), with indicative; licet, quamvis (lit., as you wish), ut, quum (all meaning although), with subjunctive; etsi, etiamsi, tametsi (although, even if)—all compounds of si, and following the same rules for mood.

Note.—Quamvis is also used as an adverb: as, Ille, quamvis facētus, odio est, he, however witty, is hated (or whatever his wit); (odio esse, to be for an object of hate, is the passive of odi, I hate).

8. The relative qui with the subjunctive is often used concessively. It is called qui concessive: as, Caesar, qui haec vidēret, tamen aciem instruxit, though Caesar saw this, still he drew up his line.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Etsi maturae sunt hiemes, tamen in Britanniam contendit.
2. Quamquam crebro audiebat Labienum ab inimicis suis sollicitari, tamen non credidit.
3. Senectus, quamvis non sit gravis, tamen aufert viriditatem.
4. Quamquam premebantur, tamen omnia fortissimo sustinebant animo.
5. Nonne impetrare debent, etiamsi adhiberi vim non possit?
6. Quamquam Germanos diutius in Gallia versari Galli voluerant, tamen populi Romani exercitum hiemare in Gallia moleste ferebant.
7. Non igitur potestas est conservandae reipublicae, quamvis ea prematur periculo.
8. Hannibal, ex quo die dux est declaratus, velut Italia sibi provincia decreta esset, nobis inferre bellum statuit.
9. Illa superiora, quamquam ferenda non fuerunt, tamen, ut potui, tuli.
10. Quanto erat in dies gravior oppugnatio, tanto crebriores litterae ad Caesarem mittebantur.
11. Ut meritis est, ita poenam persolvit.
12. Senatum metus cepit velut si ad portas hostes essent.
13. Caesar, etsi prope exacta aestas erat, tamen eo exercitum duxit.
14. Tibi adero ego, licet amicus tuus absit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Though the Germans were of great bravery, still they were often defeated by the Romans in battle.
2. All the citizens were terrified just as though the enemy were-at (adesse) the gates.
3. The battle was fought as the general had directed.
4. Whatever is disgraceful, even though it may be concealed, can in no way be honorable.
5. Life, however short, can always be useful.
6. You speak as though the enemy would conquer.
7. Though ambition is a vice, it is often the cause of virtues.
8. Though the summer had ended, Caesar collected a large number of ships.
9. The bolder the Romans were, the more timid the enemy became.
10. Though their general did not conquer me, still his valor must be praised.
11. Though Caesar had only one legion, still he hastened to set out.
12. He acted otherwise than (aliter quam) he ought to have done.
13. Though they were the bravest in Gaul, they were not equal to the Romans in valor.

LESSON XCVI.

CAUSAL CLAUSES.—QUOD, QUIA, QUONIAM (BECAUSE).

1. Causal adverbial clauses state the cause or reason for the fact mentioned in the main clause. In English they are usually introduced by because: as, Tacent quia periculum metuunt, they are silent because they fear danger.

2. Causal clauses are usually introduced by quod, quia, because, or quoniam (=quum iam, since now), seeing that.

They are followed by the indicative when the reason they introduce is given on the speaker's own authority; they are followed by the subjunctive when the reason they introduce is given on the authority of another: as, Patriâ expulsus est quia iustus erat, he was banished because he was just (esset would mean that this was the reason usually given, for the truth of which, however, the speaker would not vouch); Socrates accusatus est quod corrumpere iuventutem, Socrates was accused because (as was alleged) he was corrupting the young men (corrumperebat would mean that the speaker vouched for the truth of the charge).

Note.—This quod is common after queror (complain), laudo (praise), gaudeo (be glad), doleo (be sorry).

3. Quum (cum), in the sense of since, is often used to introduce a causal clause: as, Haec quum ita sint, abibo, as this is so, I will go away.

4. The relative qui (called qui causal) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a causal clause: as, Peccasse videor qui a te discesserim, it seems I have done wrong, inasmuch as I have parted from you (peccasse = peccavisse).

Note.—In this sense, qui is often strengthened by the addition of quippe or utpöte, indeed, as being: as, Multa de me questus est quippe qui in me incensus esset, he complained at length of me, inasmuch as he had been exasperated against me.

5. Qui causal is very commonly found after exclamations: as, Me miserum, qui hæc fecerim, wretch that I am for doing this!

Note.--The accusative case is often used in exclamations. It is called the accusative of exclamation.

6. Non quô, or non quo, with the subjunctive, is often used to introduce a rejected reason: as, Hoc laudo non quod honestum sit, sed quod utile est, I praise this, not because it is honorable but because it is expedient; de consilio meo non scripsi, non quo celandum esset sed quia, &c., I did not write you about my plan, not because it required to be concealed but because, &c. So too: non quin, not but that: as, Non quin me ames sed quod abire cupio, not but that you love me, but because I am anxious to go.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English:—

1. Aedui, cum se defendere non possent, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt. 2. Quae cum ita sint, vestra tecta defendite. 3. Itaque quoniam ipse pro se dicere non posset, verba facit frater eius. 4. O terram beatam, quae hunc virum exceperit. 5. Aedui legatos miserunt questum quod Harudes agros suos popularentur. 6. Quoniam iam nox est, in vestra tecta discedite. 7. O praeclarum diem, cum in illud divinorum animorum concilium proficiscar. 8. Caesar Aeduos frumentum flagitabat quod magnâ inopiâ urgebatur. 9. Quoniam supplicatio decreta est, celebrate illos dies. 10. Nonne Aristides expulsus est patriâ, quod iustus esset? 11. Romani quia consules ad id tempus prospere gerent, minus his cladibus commovebantur. 12. Quoniam res ita se habet, in urbem redeamus. 13. Succenseo tibi, quia lucrum amicitiae anteposuisti.

Translate into Latin:—

1. It is a very easy matter, since we surpass all in valor, to obtain the sovereignty of all Gaul. 2. Since they were not able to withstand our attack, they betook themselves to the baggage and the waggons. 3. O wretched man! inasmuch as you have been expelled from your native land by ungrateful citizens. 4. The Helvetii sent ambassadors to him, since they knew that he had crossed the river with all his forces. 5. The soldiers were glad because they had retaken the camp which they had lost a few days before. 6. They rejoiced because they were going to assault a town in which there was so large an amount of booty. 7. Since they had no hope that the city could be defended, they resolved to withdraw into the citadel. 8. He was always very poor though he might have been (use licet) very rich. 9. The soldiers were compelled to leave their baggage on this side of the river, because the enemy were following them. 10. Since we must advance against the enemy, arouse your courage, comrades. 11. The Helvetii sent ambassadors to say that they would come to the council on the next day. 12. O! wretched man, since you have lost the opportunity of saving the state. 13. Since this is so, let us arm ourselves against the enemy.

LESSON XCVII.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

Postquam. Dum. Priusquam.

1. Temporal adverbial clauses define the time of the action of the main verb: as, Hæc feci dum potui, I did this while I could. Here the clause dum potui is temporal, limiting the main verb feci.

POSTQUAM.

2. Temporal conjunctions meaning after that, like postquam, simul, simul ac (or, before a vowel, atque), ubi, ut (primum), quum primum, are followed by the indicative: as, Simul atque hæc audivit, abiit, after he had heard this, he went away.

Note.—The perfect is used after these conjunctions for the English pluperfect.

Postquam id animadvertit, copias suas Caesar in proximum collem subducit, after he had noticed this, Caesar withdraws his forces to the nearest hill; ubi se paratos esse arbitrati sunt, oppida incendunt, when they thought they were ready, they set fire to the towns; ea res ut Helvetiis nuntiata est, eum causam dicere coegerunt, when this fact was reported to the Helvetii, they compelled him to plead his cause; nostri, simul in arido constitērunt, impetum fecerunt, our men, as soon as they had set foot on dry land, made an attack.

DUM.

3. Temporal conjunctions meaning while or until, like dum, donec, quoad, take the indicative when they mean while, as long as: as, Dum ea Romani parant, iam oppidum oppugnabatur, while the Romans were making these preparations, the town was already being besieged.

Note.—When the time expressed by the dum-clause includes the time of the action of the main verb, the present tense is used in Latin instead of the English past.

4. Dum, donec, quoad, meaning until, take the indicative when used to express time alone: as, Hoc feci dum mihi licuit, I did this as long as it was allowed me; dum rediit Marcellus, silentium fuit, there was silence until Marcellus returned; Milo in senatu fuit eo die quoad senatus dimissus est, Milo was in the senate on that day, until the senate was dismissed.

But when they express some further idea of purpose or expectation, they require the subjunctive: as, Dum naves convenirent expectavit, he waited till the ships should assemble (i.e., in order that they might assemble); differant dum ira defervescat, let them put off till their anger cools (i.e., in order that their anger may cool); impetum hostium sustinuit quoad ceteri pontem interrumperent, he withstood the attack of the enemy till the rest should break down the bridge (i.e., that they might break down the bridge.)

PRIUSQUAM.

5. Temporal conjunctions meaning before that, like priusquam and antequam, take the indicative when they mark simple priority in time: as, Priusquam lucet adsunt, they are here before it is light; filiis convocavit antequam mortuus est, he called together his sons before he died.

They take the subjunctive, however, when used to express some further idea of intention or of a prevented result: as, Priusquam pugnaretur nox intervenit, night came on before the battle was fought (result prevented); priusquam se hostes ex terrore recipere- ent, in fines eorum exercitum duxit, before the army recovered from their panic, he led his army into their territory (intention).

Note.—Antequam and priusquam are often written in two words: as, Ante rorat quam pluit, it drops before it rains.

6. For dum, meaning provided that, see page 194, 3.

EXERCISE.

Give the principal parts of: video, iubeo, duco, interficio, moror, desisto.

Translate into English:—

1. Obsidio per paucos dies magis quam oppugnatio fuit, dum vulnus ducis curaretur. 2. Antequam huic respondebo, de me pauca dicam. 3. Exspectate dum consul fiat. 4. Ut equitatum suum pulsum vidit, acie excessit. 5. Simul ac signa nostra vident, portas aperuerunt. 6. Priusquam quidquam conaretur, Divitiacum ad se vocari iubet. 7. Antequam de meo adventu audire potuissent, in Macedoniam perveni. 8. Postquam copias hostium venire vidit, flumen exercitum transducere maturavit. 9. Dum ea geruntur, ii qui pro portis castrorum erant, Caesari id nuntiaverunt. 10. Ipse interea, quoad legiones collocatas cognovisset, in Gallia morari constituit. 11. Non ante finitum est proclium quam ille interfectus est. 12. Dum reliquae naves eo convenirent exspectavit. 13. Nec prius fugere destiterunt quam ad flumen Rhenum pervenerunt. 14. Ipse, equo vulnerato, quoad potuit, fortissime restitit.

Translate into Latin:—

1. When the Helvetii had been informed of his arrival, they sent ambassadors to him. 2. After he had learned these facts, he convoked an assembly. 3. As soon as they had recovered from their flight, they sent envoys concerning peace. 4. In order that he might learn these things before he made the attempt, he sent forward his lieutenant with a ship of war. 5. While he was delaying a few days near Vesontio, a panic seized the army. 6. They begged Caesar to send them aid before the king should collect a force. 7. The ambassador did not depart until he had seen us embark. 8. Every thing was done before he reached Italy. 9. Nor did we cease the pursuit (say make an end of pursuing) until they reached their ships. 10. Before I return to Rome, I shall go to Athens. 11. He came to our camp before the Germans could learn what was being done. 12. Nor were they sure till we were close to their camp. 13. He was not deterred by fear of punishment from speaking the truth.

LESSON XCVIII.

TEMPORAL CLAUSES—(Continued).Syntax of Quum (when, since).

1. Quum (cum) causal (i.e., meaning since), as has been shown (p. 198, 4), requires the subjunctive: as, Quae quum ita sint, Catilina, perge quo coepisti, as this is so, Catiline, go on as you have begun.

2. Quum simply expressing contemporaneous time (called quum temporal) takes the indicative: as, Quum Caesar in Galliam venit, alterius factionis principes erant Aedui, when Caesar came into Gaul, the Aedui were the leaders of the one party; quum verba faciunt, maiores extollunt, when they speak they extol their ancestors; nondum profectus erat quum haec gerebantur, he had not yet departed when these things were taking place.

In these sentences, quum is a relative adverb corresponding to a suppressed correlative tum in the main clause.

3. But when used with the imperfect or pluperfect tense, quum usually takes the subjunctive, even when no idea of cause is implied: as, Decessit Agesilâus quum in portum venisset, Agesilaus died when he had entered the harbor.

Note.—Quum with the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive, is a common substitute for the perf. part. active, which is wanting in Latin: as, Quum haec dixisset, abiit, having spoken these words, he departed. There are, therefore, four substitutes for the perf. part. active:—

- (a) Quum + imperf. or pluperf. subj. (b) Postquam + perf. indic.
- (c) The ablative absolute. (d) The perf. part. of a synonymous deponent.

Thus : Having spoken these words, is :—

- (a) Quum haec dixisset. (b) Postquam haec dixit.
- (c) His dictis (= these things said). (d) Haec locutus.

4. Quum is often used for quoties, as often as, whenever : as, Quum impetum fecerant, hostes cedere cogebantur, whenever they made a charge, the enemy were forced to retire; quum rosam vidi, tum ver esse arbitror, whenever I see the rose, then I judge that it is spring.

Note.—In this sense, quum takes the perfect for the English present, and the pluperfect for the English past.

5. Quum with the subjunctive, sometimes has a concessive force, meaning although : as, Pylades quum sis, dices te esse Orestem, though you are Pylades, you will say you are Orestes.

Note.—This meaning of quum may be used to translate the English instead of : as, Quum dicere deberet, conticuit, instead of speaking, he held his peace (literally, when he ought to have spoken).

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Caesari quum id nuntiatum esset, maturat ab urbe proficisci
2. Helvetii quum de eius adventu certiores facti sunt, legatos ad eum mittunt.

4. Aedui quum se suaque ab iis defendere non possent, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt rogatum auxilium.
5. Diu quum esset pugnatum, hostium impedimentis castrisque nostri potiti sunt.
6. Caesar iussit eos speculari num hostes ex castris exirent.
7. Qui quum eum in itinere convenissent, seque ad pedes projecissent, pacem petierunt.
8. Pueri utrum legant an scribant nescio.
9. Haec quum animadvertisset, convocato concilio, vehe- menter eos incusat. 10. Utrum legat necne nescio. 11. Quum civitas armis ius suum exsequi conaretur, Orgetorix mortuus est. 12. Haec quum flens a Caesare peteret, Caesar eius dextram prendit. 13. Eo postquam Caesar pervenit, obsides, arma, servos, poposcit.

Translate into Latin :—

1. When he had enquired of (ex) the scouts what tribes were in arms, he learned the truth. 2. When Caesar came to those towns, he demanded arms and hostages of them. 3. When the ships were approaching Britain, a violent storm arose. 4. As soon as they recovered from their dismay, they sent envoys to-sue-for (de) peace. 5. When the enemy were advancing on our camp, our soldiers made a sally. 6. Scipio, fearing (pf. part.) that he would lose the town, led out his soldiers in battle array. 7. When I was trying to expel him from the city, I had another object in view (use aliud agere, drive at another thing). 8. He asked whether Caesar came to the Senate on that day or not. 9. I asked him whether he lived at Rome or Athens. 10. It is a question (quaeritur) whether there is one world or more. 11. While the Senate was preparing to make war on Caesar, he marched unexpectedly against them. 12. Since this is so, I shall wait till you come. 13. Caesar having perceived that the enemy were near, led his forces to the nearest hill.

LESSON XCIX.

INDIRECT (OR OBLIQUE) NARRATION.

1. A statement depending on a verb of saying, thinking, perceiving, knowing, or the like, is said to be in indirect or oblique narration.

Thus, in Dixit se civem Romanum esse, he said that he was a Roman citizen, the words se civem Romanum esse are in indirect narration. The actual words used were, Civis Romanus sum, I am a Roman citizen; these are said to be in direct narration.

¹The term oblique narration is sometimes limited so as to apply only to reported speeches. It is more convenient to use it in the wider sense.

2. The main verb of direct narration becomes infinitive in indirect narration, and the subject of direct narration becomes accusative before the infinitive (p. 109). The tense of the infinitive will be present, perfect, or future, according as the tense of the actual words was present, perfect, or future. Thus :—

DIRECT.

Civis Romanus sum.
I am a Roman citizen.

Civis Romanus ero.
I shall be a Roman citizen.

Civis Romanus eram (or fui).
I was (or have been) a Roman citizen.

INDIRECT.

Dixit se civem Romanum esse.
He said that he was a Roman citizen.

Dixit se civem Romanum futurum esse (or fore).
He said that he should be a Roman citizen.

Dixit se civem Romanum fuisse.
He said that he was (or had been) a Roman citizen.

Note.—After verbs meaning to hope or promise, the future infinitive is used instead of the English present infinitive : as, Promisit se venturum esse, he promised to come.

3. To determine the tense of the infinitive in indirect narration, it is best to find the tense of the main verb in direct narration ; the tense of the main verb in direct narration is the tense of the infinitive in indirect narration. Thus, in Caesar said that he had written, the direct narration is I have written, scripsi ; the indirect, therefore, is Caesar dixit se scripsisse ; he said that he was an orator, dixit se oratorem esse (direct = orator sum).

Note.—Pronouns of the 1st or 2nd person become pronouns of the 3rd person in reporting speeches in indirect narration.

4. All adjectival and adverbial clauses in indirect narration must have the subjunctive : as, Dixit se eos quos cepisset domum misisse, he said that he had sent home those whom he had taken (direct = eos quos cepi domum misi, I have sent home those whom I have taken) ; dixit se, quoties potuisset, rediisse he said that he had returned as often as he could (direct = redi quoties potui, I have returned as often as I could).

Note 1.—In accordance with the rule for the sequence of tenses

(p. 178), the verb of the dependent adjectival or adverbial clause will be in the impf. or plupf. subjunctive in indirect narration after a secondary tense.

Note 2.—A subordinate clause, when inserted in a passage in indirect narration on the authority of the writer or reporter, takes the indicative : as, Certior factus est id agi ut pons, quem ille in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur, he was informed that this was intended, i.e., to break down the bridge which he (Xerxes) had built over the Hellespont (here the clause quem ... fecerat has the indicative, because the writer vouches for the truth of the statement himself). (Note.—Id agere=to aim at this).

5. The imperative of direct narration is put in the subjunctive in indirect narration (after a secondary tense, in the impf. subjunctive) : as, Ne cunctarentur, let them not delay (he said) (direct=ne cunctamini, do not delay).

6. Questions that expect an answer are put in the subjunctive in indirect narration ; rhetorical questions (exclamations and appeals), in the infinitive : as, (Scriptis) quid de praeda faciendum esse censerent? (he wrote) what did they think should be done with regard to the booty? (direct=quid...censetis? what do you think?); quid esse turpius? cur eos dubitare? what was more dishonorable? why did they hesitate? (direct=quid est turpius? cur dubitatis? what is more dishonorable? why do you hesitate?)

7. A fut.-perf. indicative in a dependent clause in direct narration, becomes, in indirect, perf. subjun. after a primary tense and pluperf. subjun. after a secondary : as, Dicit eum qui id fecerit, poenas daturum esse, he says that the one who does (literally, shall have done) this, shall be punished; dixit eum qui id fecisset, poenas daturum esse, he said that the one who did that, should be punished.

8. Oblique narration is often suddenly introduced into the narrative by the historians, without the governing verb of saying being expressed : as, Regulus reddi captivos negavit esse utile : illos enim bonos duces esse, Regulus denied that it was expedient that the captives should be restored : that they were good leaders.

9. I say . . . not, in Latin is nego, which, owing to the tendency in Latin to put the negative forward in the sentence, is usually put first: as Negabat se praemium ullum accepturum, he said that he would not accept any reward. (Note.—Esse with a participle is often dropped in indirect narration).

Translate in o English :—

1. Omnia quae iussissent parata esse scripsit. 2. Nihil temere esse agendum existimabant; quid enim levius esse quam, auctore hoste, capere consilium? 3. Eos cur tam sero venissent rogavit: quam diu eos servituros esse? 4. Dixit se domum eos quibus pepercisset dimisisse. 5. Dixit iis qui philosophiam vituperarent, satis responsum esse. 6. Negabant se eos, qui semper paravissent seditionem, coercere posse. 7. Num dixit se mansurum esse dum imperator adveniret? 8. Negabat se scire quo verteretur. 9. Clamavit se quantum potuisset, eius praecepta observaturum; fidem praestaret. 10. Caesar certior factus est ex ea parte, quam Gallis concesserat, omnes noctu discessisse. 11. Nuntiatum est eos omnia facere quae vellet. 12. Negavit caecos videre.

Translate into Latin (using oblique narration):—

1. He said that he had given them the books they asked for. 2. He wrote that the camp they had fortified was three miles from Rome. 3. Let them remember, he said, what he had told them. 4. Let them not forget the kindness they had received. When would they see such friends again? 5. Let them not accept favors from an enemy. 6. Had they not enjoyed peace under Caesar's rule? 7. He said that he had not sold his house? 8. He said that his house had been sold for as much as he gave for it. 9. Why did they live, he said, when they could not maintain their freedom? 10. They said that he used to groan as often as he saw his son (p. 204, 4). 11. Do not think I am angry with those I love. 12. I was told that he used to say that life was very short.

LESSON C.

SUMMARY OF RULES FOR TURNING DIRECT INTO OBLIQUE NARRATION.

The Conditional Sentence in Oblique Narration.

1. The following is a summary of the rules already given for turning direct into oblique narration :—

(1) The main verb of direct narration becomes infinitive in indirect narration.

(2) All adjectival and adverbial clauses take the subjunctive in indirect narration.

(3) Pronouns of the 1st and 2nd person usually become pronouns of the 3rd person. E. g. :—

ego, nos	become	se
meus, noster	“	suus
tu, vos	“	ille, illi
tuus, vester	“	illius, illorum
hic, iste	“	ille, is

(4) Adverbs of present time become (after a secondary tense) adverbs of past time. E. g. :—

nunc	becomes	iam, tunc.
heri (yesterday)	“	pridie (the day before).
hodie (to-day)	“	illo die (that day).
cras (to-morrow)	“	postridie (next day).

So :—hic (here) becomes ibi (there).

(5) Imperatives become subjunctives (usually imperf. subjunctives).

(6) Rhetorical questions are expressed by the accusative and infinitive ; questions that expect an answer, by the subjunctive.

(7) A future-perfect used in a dependent clause for the English present, becomes perfect subjunctive after a primary, and pluperfect subjunctive after a secondary tense.

CONDITIONAL SENTENCE IN OBLIQUE NARRATION.

2. These rules may now be applied to turning the common types of the conditional sentence into oblique narration. The verb of the main clause becomes acc. with inf., and the verb of the if-clause subjunctive, as follows :—

DIRECT.		OBLIQUE.
1. Pecuniam si habet, dat, If he has money, he gives it.	becomes	Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat, dare, He says that if he has money, he gives it.
Pecuniam si habuit, dedit (or dabat), If he had money, he gave it.	"	Dicit se, si pecuniam habuerit, dedisse, He says that if he had money, he gave it.
2. (a) Pecuniam si habebit (or habuerit), dabit, If he has money, he will give it.	"	Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat (or habuerit), daturum esse, He says that if he has money, he will give it.
(b) Pecuniam si habeat, det, If he should have money, he would give it.	"	Dicit se, si pecuniam habeat, daturum esse, He says that if he should have money, he would give it.
3. (a) Pecuniam si haberet, daret, If he had money (now), he would give it.	"	Dicit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum fuisse, He says that if he had money (now), he would give it.
(b) Pecuniam si habuisset, dedisset, If he had had money, he would have given it.	"	Dicit se, si pecuniam habuisset, daturum fuisse, He says that if he had had money, he would have given it.

Note 1.—The future (habebit), in the if-clause of direct narration becomes present subjunctive (habeat) in the indirect after a primary tense.

Note 2.—The present subjunctive (det), in the main clause becomes future infinitive (daturum esse) in indirect narration.

Note 3.—The imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive in the main clause (daret and dedisset), are expressed in indirect narration by the future participle and fuisse (daturum fuisse, i.e., to have been about to give).

3. After a secondary tense the verb of the if-clause is changed in accordance with the rule for the sequence of tenses (p. 178). Thus :—

DIRECT.	.	OBLIQUE.
1. Si pecuniam habet, dat,	becomes	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, dare.
Si pecuniam habuit, dedit (or dabat),	"	Dixit se, si pecuniam habuisset, dedisse.
2. (a) Si pecuniam habebit (or habuerit), dabit,	"	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet (or habuisset), daturum esse.
(b) Si pecuniam habeat, det,	"	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum esse.
3. (a) Si pecuniam haberet, daret,	"	Dixit se, si pecuniam haberet, daturum fuisse.
(b) Si pecuniam habuisset, dedisset,	"	Dixit se, si pecuniam habuisset, daturum fuisse.

Note.—The future-perfect in the if-clause of direct narration, becomes pluperfect subjunctive in oblique.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Dicit se, si illi id fecerint, gratiam habiturum esse. 2. Promisit se, si adesset, locuturum esse. 3. Dixit eum, si adesset, aliter sensurum esse. 4. Negavit se, si Metelli fidei diffisus esset, iudicem eum retenturum fuisse. 5. Negavit se, si ille id rogavisset, responsurum fuisse. 6. Dixit eos, si sibi parerent, urbem capturos esse. 7. Dicebant eum, si sapientior esset, meliorem fore (futurum esse). 8. Quid diceret Cicero, si viveret? 9. Imperatori si paruisset, viveret. 10. Dixit eum, si imperatori paruisset, victurum fuisse. 11. Negabat se, nisi vidisset, crediturum fuisse. 12. Dixit se eos, si conarentur, prohibiturum esse.

Translate into Latin :—

1. They said that if Caesar came, it would be all over with their army. 2. It is clear that if Nero had lived, they would have made war on Rome. 3. He answered that unless they withdrew then, he would regard them as enemies. 4. He told them that if they wished to enjoy peace, he must be obeyed. 5. They said that it was of no importance to them whether he stayed or went. 6. They asked if the man had gone to Rome. 7. It was clear that if he did it, he would be punished. 8. They said that if he were there, he would help them. 9. Whether you remain or go, you will be punished. 10. Don't you think that if he were here, all would be well? 11. O! that I had seen what I ought to do. 12. He said that if he were general, he would give no quarter (use parco).

LESSON CI.

OBLIQUE NARRATION—(Continued).

The rules given in the last lesson may be applied to turning passages from Caesar or Livy from direct into indirect narration, or vice versa, as is done in the following passages:—

A.

Helvetian Envoys Address Caesar.

If the Roman people make (literally, will make) peace with the Helvetii, the Helvetii will go into that district, and abide in that place, where you will appoint (literally, will have appointed), and wish them to abide; but if you continue to attack them in war, call to mind both the old disaster of the Roman people and the ancient valor of the Helvetii. As to your having fallen unexpectedly on one canton, when those who had crossed the river were not able to bear help to their comrades, do not on that account

Quod improviso unum pagum adortus esset, quum ii, qui flumen transiissent, suis auxilium ferre non possent, ne ob eam rem aut suae magnopere virtuti tribueret aut ipsos despiceret; se ita a patribus maioribusque suis didicisse, ut magis virtute quam dolo contenderent aut insidiis niterentur. Wherefore do not cause this place where we have taken our stand, to get a name, or to hand down a tradition, from the overthrow of the Roman people and the destruction of their army.

INDIRECT.

If the Roman people made peace with the Helvetii, the Helvetii would go into that district and abide in that place where Caesar appointed and wished them to abide; but if he continued to attack them in war, he should (let him) call to mind both the old disaster of the Roman people and the ancient valor of the Helvetii. As to his having unexpectedly fallen on one canton, when those who had crossed the river were not able to bear help to their comrades, he should not (let him not) on that account presume exceedingly on his valor or look down on them; that they had learned this from their fathers and ancestors, i.e., to fight with valor rather than to fight with Eo mihī minus dubitationis datur quod eas res, quas vos commemoravistis, memoriā teneo; atque eo gravius fero, quo minus merito populi Romani acciderunt; qui si alicuius iniuriæ sibi conscius fuisset, non fuit difficile cavere; sed eo deceptus est, quod neque commissum (esse) a se intellegebat quare timeret, neque sine causa timendum putabat. Quod si veteris contumeliæ oblivisci volo, num etiam recentium iniuriarum memoriam deponere possum?

For this reason the less hesitation is caused me, because I remember the events you have mentioned; and I am the more pained, the less they happened in accordance with the desert of the Roman people (i.e., and my pain is all the greater because they did not happen in accordance with the desert of the Roman people). For if they had felt conscious in their minds (lit., to themselves) of any wrongdoing, it was not hard to take precautions; but they were deceived by this fact, i.e., that they were not aware that ought had been done by them to justify their being afraid, and that they thought they should not feel fear without reason. But if I am willing to forget the old affront, can I lay aside the recollection of recent injuries also?

Quod si veteris contumeliæ oblivisci vellet, num etiam recentium iniuriarum memoriam se deponere posse?

the less hesitation was caused him, because he remembered the events which the Helvetian envoys had mentioned; and that he was the more pained, because they had not happened in accordance with the desert of the Roman people; for if they had been conscious in their minds of any wrong-doing, it would not have been hard to take precautions; but that they were deceived by this fact, i.e., that they were not aware that aught had been done by them to justify their being afraid, and that they thought they ought not to fear without reason. But if he were willing to forget the old affront, could he lay aside the recollection of recent injuries also?

Note.—These passages should be translated and re-translated until the rules of oblique narration are perfectly familiar.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English, and turn into Latin indirect narration after dixit:—

1. Quis sim, inquit, scies ex hoc quem ad te misi; curā ut vir sis et cogita in quem locum sis progressus; vide quid iam tibi sit necesse et cura ut omnium tibi auxilia adiungas, etiam infimorum.
2. Veniam ipse, si poterō, quamquam hodie aegrotō; si minus, veniet frater qui decem millia passuum abest; vincendum est nobis aut moriendum.
3. Aedui obsides non reddent neque eis bellum inferent, si stipendium quotannis pendent.
4. Quod si præterea nemo sequetur, cum sola decima legione ibo.
5. Unde venis? quid vis? quid facturus es? finem fac.
6. Mihi hæc res curæ erit; volo de his rebus tecum agere.
7. Mons quem a Labieno teneri voluerit, ab hoste tenetur. 8. Hoc die in eos, qui oram maritimam incolunt, profecturus sum. 9. Neque credo neque credidi neque credam. 10. Si quid a me vultis, ab armis discedite. 11. Si obsides a vobis mihi dabuntur, vobiscum pacem faciam. 12. Helvetii a maioribus ita instituti sunt ut obsides accipere, non dare, consueverint.

LESSON CII.

NOTES ON THE TENSES.

1. The present indicative of the Latin verb represents both the indefinite, the progressive, and the emphatic form of the English verb. Thus, amo is either I love (indef.), I am loving (progressive), or I do love (emphatic).

2. The present indicative is used idiomatically :

(a) In narration, for the perfect : as, Continuo milites Melitam mittit, he immediately despatches men to Malta.

(b) With adverbs of past time, for the English present-perfect (perfect with have) : as, Hoc iamdūdum (or iampridem) facio, I have been doing this for a long time.

Note.--The imperfect will, of course, be used for the English pluperfect : as, Iampridem sperabam, I had long been hoping.

(c) With dum (while), for the English past ; see p. 201, 3.

3. The imperfect represents an action as continued or repeated in past time : as, Scribēbam, I was writing; consilium mutavit, videbat enim nihil confici posse, he altered his plan, for he saw that nothing could be done (imperfect of continuous action); hæc pueri discebamus, we used to learn this as boys (imperfect of repeated or habitual action).

Note 1.—The Latin imperfect is often translated by the English used to, began to, tried to.

Note 2.—In the historians, the present infinitive is often used instead of the imperfect indicative, when a series of actions is described: as, Omnes clamare, all kept crying out; Caesar quotidie eos frumentum flagitare, Caesar kept daily importuning them for corn. This is called the historic infinitive.

4. In writing letters, the Latins adapted the tenses to the time at which the letter would be read: as, Neque cum haec scribebam nescius eram, I am not ignorant when I write (literally, I was not ignorant, when I was writing).

FÖRE UT.

5. Many verbs have no supine and, therefore, no future infinitive (active or passive), which is formed from the supine. Such verbs form their future infinitive by means of före or futurum esse (to be about to be), and ut with the subjunctive: as, Dicunt fore ut haec poscant, they say that they will demand these things; dixerunt fore ut ea poscerentur, they said that these things would be demanded (imperfect, in accordance with the rule of sequence).

Note.—This construction is often used (as more convenient) even with verbs that have a supine: as, Dixit fore ut rex mitteretur, he said that the king would be sent.

FUTURE SUBJUNCTIVE, ACTIVE AND PASSIVE.

6. It has been shown (p. 179, note) that the future subjunctive active (which is wanting) is supplied in Latin by the active periphrastic conjugation, made up of the future participle and the verb sum. Thus: Scio quid acturus sis, I know what you will do; sciebam quid acturus esses, I knew what you would do (imperfect, after a secondary tense). The future subjunctive passive, and the future subjunctive active of verbs that have no supine, are formed by means of the impersonal futurum sit (or esset) with an ut-clause. Thus:—

Future Subjunctive Active.

Rogo num futurum sit ut puer discat, I ask whether the boy will learn.

Rogavi num futurum esset ut puer disceret, I asked whether the boy would learn.

Future Subjunctive Passive.

Non dubito quin futurum sit ut puer doceatur, I do not doubt that the boy will be taught.

Non dubitavi quin futurum esset ut puer doceretur, I did not doubt that the boy would be taught.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Iam pridem sperabam eum hoc facturum.
2. Tertium iam annum hic sumus.
3. Haec dum aguntur, Hannibal castra movet.
4. Dixit se hoc iam dudum notum habere.
5. Philosophia in Graecia florebat.
6. Facies totius negotii varia fuit : pars cedere, alii insequi ; nihil consilio agi, fors omnia regere (p. 216, 3, note 2).
7. Mihi dicebat unde veniret.
8. Nescio quando futurum sit ut convalescat.
9. Speravi fore ut convalesceret.
10. Credo fore ut feriat.
11. Putavi fore ut urbs a nobis caperetur.
12. Rogavit quando futurum esset ut signum attolleretur.
13. Huius modi viros adolescens admirabar.
14. Hostes in nos saxa devolvebant.

Translate into Latin :—

1. Did I not know what you would do?
2. I did not doubt that the king would be killed by him.
3. He said that these facts would soon be learned by the scholar.
4. It is uncertain whether the boy will learn.
5. It was uncertain whether the boy would be taught.
6. Who can doubt that our camp will be easily defended?
7. Since you are ashamed of your plan, what prevents you from abandoning it?
8. I have long been anxious to know your reason for doing it.
9. He used to promise to come every day.
10. He said that he knew what we would demand (posco).
11. Whenever they captured a town, they butchered men, women and children (p. 204, 4).

LESSON CIII.

NOTES ON THE PARTICIPLE.—“WITHOUT”
AND A PARTICIPIAL NOUN.

Present Participle Passive.

1. The pres. part. pass. (which is wanting in Latin) is supplied by a relative clause : as, Domus, quae hic aedificatur, iam venit, the house being built here, has already been sold.

IDIOMATIC USES OF THE PARTICIPLE.

2 (a) Two finite verbs in English connected by and are frequently expressed in Latin by a participle and a main verb: as, Eum arreptum Romam duxerunt, they arrested him and took him to Rome; ingressus consedit, he entered and sat down.

(b) The Latin perf. part. pass. with a noun, is often used to express two nouns in English: as, Rex interfectus, the murder of the king; ab urbe condita, from the foundation of the city; nuntiata clades, the announcement of the defeat.

(c) The present participle, when used—as it is so commonly in English—for the past participle, must be translated by the perf. part., or one of its equivalents (p. 203, 3, note). Thus: Leaving home, he came to Athens, domo profectus Athenas venit; having heard this, quo audito (Proficiscens would mean while leaving; audiens, while hearing).

(d) Instead of the perfect indicative active, the perf. part. pass. with habeo I have, is used (chiefly with verbs meaning to know or find out) to denote a continuous effect: as, Fidem quam habent diu notam, faith which they have long known.

(e) The ablative absolute can only be used when a new subject is introduced. Thus: As the enemy were retiring, they wasted the land, hostes se recipientes agros vastabant (not hostibus se recipientibus). But: As the enemy were retiring, we wasted the land, hostibus se recipientibus, agros vastabamus.

(f) A demonstrative pronoun can not be joined, as in English, to the participle. Thus: Those doing this, will be punished, is qui hoc facient, poenas dabunt (not ii hoc facientes).

(g) The present participle is often used in Latin to express an English abstract noun: as, Interroganti mihi respondit, he replied to my question; lugentium lacrimae, tears of mourning (lit. of men mourning).

(h) The agent with the perf. part. pass. is frequently expressed by the dative instead of by a (or ab) with a preposition: as, Omnia haec mihi perspecta sunt, all these points have been studied by me.

(i) To translate properly into English, the present or perfect participle, a finite clause is often required. This clause will be relative, temporal, causal, concessive, or conditional, according to the particular relation expressed by the participle. Thus :

Resistentibus non parcimus,	we do not spare those who resist us (relative).
Epistola ad me scribentem vēnit,	the letter came to me as (when, while) I was writing (temporal).
Caesar haec veritus suōs eduxit,	because (as, since) he was afraid of this, Caesar led out his men (causal).
Hoc crimine absolutus tamen furti damnatus est,	though he was acquitted of this charge, he was condemned for theft (concessive).
Nobis vel morientibus non ig- nosceret,	he would not forgive us, even if we were dying (conditional).

WITHOUT.

3. The ablative of the gerund can not be joined with sine, the usual preposition for without. Phrases, therefore, like without injuring himself, without your perceiving it, must be paraphrased into some synonymous form of words, and this turned into Latin. Thus : He aids others without injuring himself, aliis subvēnit, non sibi nocens; I did it without your perceiving it, hoc feci, te non sentiente; they condemn him without hearing him, eum damnant inauditum; he cries without feeling grief, flet nec dolet; he never led out his army without examining the position of the ground, nunquam exercitum eduxit nisi explorato locorum situ; those cannot fall without these falling with them, cadere illa non possunt ut haec non concidant; to think of my going away without saying good-bye to anyone! mene abiisse, nullo salutato!

Note.—The accusative with infinitive is used to express indignation or surprise. It is called the Infinitive of Exclamation. The interrogative -ne is frequently added to the first word, as if the sentence were interrogative in form.

EXERCISE.

Translate into English :—

1. Instructos ordines in locum aequum deducit (p. 219, 2, (a)).
2. Hostes fugatos persequitur. 3. Hos transductos necat. 4. Illi libertatem imminutam non tulerunt. 5. Sibi quisque caesi regis decus expetebat. 6. Hoc e provincia decedens mihi negavit. 7. LESSON CIV.

THE PREPOSITION.

1. A Latin preposition governs either the accusative or the ablative, except in, sub, super (above), and subter (beneath), which govern both.

Note.—Gratiā and causā (for the sake of) govern the genitive; but they are really nouns used as prepositions.

2. In, sub, super, and subter govern the ablative when they express rest, and the accusative when they express motion: as, In urbe in the city; in urbem, into the city; sub muro, under the wall; sub murum, up under the wall; super eo pendet, it hangs over him; super eum volat, it flies over him.

3. The following nine prepositions govern the ablative: A (or ab), from, by; coram, in presence of; cum, with; de, from, concerning; e (ex), out of; prae, in front of, in consequence of; pro, in front of, on behalf of; sine, without; tenus, up to.

4. All other prepositions govern the accusative. A list is given for reference: Ad, towards; adversus, opposite; ante, before; apud, beside; circum (or circā), round; cis (or citrā), on this side of; trans, across; contrā, against; ergā, towards; extrā, outside of; inter, among; infrā, below; intrā, within; iuxtā, near; ob, on account of; penes, in the power of; per, through; post, behind; praeter, past; prope, near to; propter, close to; secundum, along, after; versus, towards (written after its case); ultrā, beyond.

5. The prepositions are widely used with nouns to form idiomatic adverbial phrases of place, time, and manner. Such prepositional phrases should be committed to memory as they are met with. A list is added for reference:—

A or ab (from, by).

A fronte, in front (so, a lātēre, in flank; a tergo, in rear); a senatu stat, he stands on the senate's side; a re frumentaria laborare, to be in distress with regard to supplies; confestim a proelio, immediately after the battle.

Ad (to).

Ad ludos pecunia decernitur, money is voted for the games; ad fortunam felix, fortunate in point of fortune; ad Cannas, in the neighborhood of Cannae; ad Siciliam, off Sicily; ad aliorum arbitrium, at the beck of others.

Apud (beside).

Apud forum, near the forum; apud me, in my house; apud me plus vālet, he has more influence with me; apud Terentium, in the writings of Terence.

Cum (with).

Cum gladio, wearing a sword; magnā cum curā quaerit, he seeks with great care; confer hanc pacem cum illo bello, compare this peace with that war; cum aliquo certare, contend with a person.

De (from, about).

De industria, on purpose; bene mōrēri de patria, deserve well of one's country.

E or ex (out of).

Ex equis pugnare, fight on horseback; statua ex aere facta, a statue made of bronze; ex consulatu, immediately after his consulship; ex itinere, while on the march; quaerere ex aliquo, ask from a person; ex improvise, unexpectedly; ex foedere, in accordance with the treaty; ex sententia, satisfactorily; ex parte magna, in a great measure.

In (in or into).

In equo, on horseback; in barbaris, among barbarians; in bonis ducere, reckon among blessings; in te unum se tota convertet civitas, the whole state will turn to you alone; pietas in deos, piety to the gods; pecunia in rem militarem data, money given for military purposes; in rem tuam haec est, this is for your interest; in dies, every day; in horas, every hour; denarius in singulos modios, a denarius for every bushel; in posterum diem, for the next day.

Inter (between, among).

Inter me et te hoc interest, there is this difference between you and me; inter se aspiciēbant, they kept looking at one another; inter aedificandos muros, during the building of the walls.

Per (through).

Per vim, by violence; per speculatores, by means of spies (secondary agent); per me, through my instrumentality; per te stetit quominus vinceret, it was owing to you that he did not conquer; digladientur per me licet, they may fight it out, as far as I am concerned.

Praeter (past, except).

Praeter modum, beyond measure; decem praeter se, ten besides themselves; omnes praeter unum, all except one; praeter naturam, outside the course of nature.

Pro (before, instead of, in behalf of).

Pro occiso relictus, left for dead; pro meritis gratias agere, to thank for services; pro multitudine hominum, fines angustos habent, considering their population they have limited territory; proelium atrocius quam pro numero pugnantium editur, a battle is fought fiercer than might have been expected from the number of combatants.

Sub (under, up to)

Sub nostram aciem successerunt, they came right up to our line; quae sub sensus sunt, what is within the range of the senses; sub haec dicta omnes procubuerunt, after these words all prostrated themselves; sub ipsā profectioe, at the very start; sub noctem, at night-fall.

 sāles (M.), witticisms, wit.
 tabellae, documents.

The following nouns are wanting in some of the cases:—

(1) Nom., Dat., Voc. Sing. : —, ōpis, —, ōpem, —, ōpe, help; —, vīcis, —, vīcem, —, vīce, change.

(2) Nom., Gen., Voc. Sing. : —, —, prēcī, prēcem, —, prēcē, prayer.

(3) Nom. and Voc. Sing. : —, dāpis, dāpi, dāpem, —, dāpe, food; —, frūgis, frūgī, frūgem, —, frūge, fruit.

(4) Gen., Dat., and Abl. Plural : Most nouns of the fifth declension, except spēs, hope, and rēs, a thing. So also far, corn; mel, honey; fel, bile; pūs, matter of a wound; rus, the country; tus, incense.

(5) Genitive plural : many monosyllables : Nex, murder ; pax, peace ; pix, pitch ; cor, heart ; cos, a whetstone ; ros, dew ; sal, salt ; sol, the sun ; lux, light.

HETEROCLITIC NOUNS.

Some nouns have two or more forms of declension. Thus :

Cōlus (F.), a distaff, and many names of plants and trees are of the second ; but they may have those forms that end in -us of the fourth decl. also.

Iūgērum (N.), an acre, is of the second declension in the singular, but of the third in the plural.

Vas (N.), a vessel (Gen., vāsīs), is of the third declension in the singular and of the second in the plural.

Festivals in -alia (as Bacchanālīa) are neuter plurals of the third declension, but have the genitive plural in -ōrum, not in -īum.

Ancile (N.), a shield, is of the third (like māre, the sea) ; but the genitive plural is -ōrum, instead of -īum.

Rēquies (F.), Gen. rēquīētis, rest, is of the third, but has rēquiem and rēquē of the fifth.

Fāmes (F.), Gen. fāmis, is regularly of the third, but has fāmē of the fifth, not fāmē of the third.

For dōmus (F.), a house, see p. 238.

Many words have two forms, one belonging to one declension and another to another. Thus :

Luxuriā (F.), luxury ; mātēriā (F.), matter, timber ; saevitiā (F.), cruelty, are of the first ; while luxuries (F.), mātēries (F.), saevities (F.), are of the fifth. So also, eventus (M.), an event ; cōnātus (M.), an attempt, are of the fourth ; while eventum (N.), and cōnātum (N.), are of the second.

Iuventus (F.), Gen. iuventūtis, the youth of a country ; iūventas (F.), Gen. iuventātis, goddess of youth ; iūventa (F.), time of youth.

Sēnectus (F.), Gen. senectūtis, time of old age has the poetical form senecta (F.) ; so paupertas (F.), Gen. paupertatis, poverty has the poetical paupēries (F.), Gen. -ēi.

HETEROGENEOUS NOUNS.

Some nouns have two different genders in the singular. Thus :

The following have one form in -us, masculine, and one form in -um, neuter : Baltĕus, or -um, a belt ; iugŭlus, -um, the throat ; clĭpĕus, -um, a shield ; collus, -um, neck ; bacŭlus, -um, a staff ; cubitus, -um, elbow.

The following have a different gender in the singular and plural respectively :

Balnĕum (N. sing.), balneae (F. pl.), bath ; caelum (N. sing.), caeli (M. pl.), heavens ; carbĕsus (F. sing.), carbĕsa (N. pl.), sail ; delĭcium (N. sing.), delĭciae (F. pl.), delight ; rastrum (N. sing.), rastri (M. pl.), harrows ; epŭlum (N. sing.), epŭlae (F. pl.), banquet ; frĕnum (N. sing.), bit, frĕni (M.) or frĕna (N.) ; lŏcus (M. sing.), lŏca (N. pl.), places ; iŏcus (M. sing.), jest ; iŏci (M. pl.), or iŏca (N. pl.).

RULES OF SYNTAX.

ACCUSATIVE.

1. The direct object of a transitive verb is put in the accusative : as, Puella rosam laudat, The girl praises the rose.

2. Many verbs that are intransitive in English are transitive in Latin, especially verbs of emotion, taste and smell : as, Sequāni Ariovisti crudelitatem horrebant, The Sequani shuddered at the cruelty of Ariovistus. Haec oratio antiquitatem olet, This speech smacks of antiquity. Piscis mare sapit, The fish tastes of the sea.

3. Verbs of making, choosing, calling, naming, regarding and showing, take two accusatives in the active : as, Populus Romanus Ciceronem consulem creavit, The Roman people elected Cicero consul. Here Ciceronem is the direct object and consulem is a part of the predicate, and is called the predicate accusative.

In the passive these verbs take two nominatives : the direct object becomes the subject nominative, and the predicate accusative becomes the predicate nominative : as, Cicero consul a populo Romano creatus est, Cicero was elected consul by the Roman people.

4. Verbs of asking,¹ teaching, and concealing, take two accusatives in the active, one of the person and another of the thing : as, Pater filium musicam docuit, The father taught his son music.

In the passive the accusative of the person becomes the subject, and the accusative of the thing is retained : as, Filius musicam a patre doctus est, The son was taught music by his father.

5. Many verbs are followed by an accusative of kindred origin or meaning (cognate accusative) : as, Turpissimam vitam vivit, He lives a very base life. Mirum somnium somniavit, He dreamed a wonderful dream. Proelium pugnat, He fights a battle.

¹*Peto*, I ask, and postulo, I demand, take the accusative of the thing and ablative of the person with a or ab, from : as, Pacem a Romanis petiverunt, They asked peace from the Romans, or They asked the Romans for peace. Librum ab amicis postulavit, He demanded a book from his friends. Quaero, I ask, takes an accusative of the thing and an ablative of the person with a (or ab), e (or ex), de : as, Causam e viro quaesivit, He asked a reason from the man (or, He asked the man for a reason).

6. The accusative neuter of a pronoun or of a numeral adjective, is sometimes joined to an intransitive verb to denote, not the proper object, but the compass and extent of the action : as, Īdem gloriatur, He makes the same boast. Id lætor, I rejoice at this.

7. Many intransitive verbs, especially those that express motion, compounded with the prepositions ad (to), circum (around), per (through), praeter (past), trans (across), or super (above), take an accusative after them : as, Cato rostra advolat, Cato flies to the hustings. The accusative depends on the preposition and the sentence might be written, Cato ad rostra volat.

8. Transitive verbs compounded with trans (transduco, transporto, traicio) may take two accusatives in the active, one depending on the verb, and the other on the preposition : as, Hannibal copias Ibērum traduxit, Hannibal led his forces across the Iberus. This might also be expressed, Hannibal copias trans Iberum duxit, or Hannibal copias trans Iberum traduxit. In the passive the direct object of the verb becomes the subject, and the subject of the active becomes the ablative of agent with a or ab : as, Ab Hannibale copiae Iberum tractae sunt, His forces were led across the Iberus by Hannibal.

9. An adjective or a verb may take an accusative to define its meaning : as, Puer caput vulneratur, The boy is wounded in the head. Imperator dextram manum ictus est, The general was struck on the right hand. Ille est patri vultum similis, He is like his father in face. This is called the accusative of specification or nearer definition.

10. The accusative is used in exclamations with or without an interjection : as, Me miserum, O wretched me! O malam fortunam, What evil fortune!

DATIVE.

1. The indirect object of a transitive verb is put in the dative : as, Puer epistolam puellae donat, The boy gives the girl a letter (a letter to the girl).

2. Adjectives implying nearness, likeness, fitness, kindness, or the opposite idea, take a dative : as, Urbs propinqua flumini est, The city is near a river. Canis similis lupo est, A dog is like a wolf.

Castris idoneus locus est, The place is suitable for a camp. Erat vir mihi amicissimus, He was a man very friendly to me. Omni aetati mors est communis, Death is common to every time of life.

3. The dative is used in Latin with many verbs that in English have a direct object. This is most common with verbs signifying to please, favor, trust, assist and their opposites; also believe, persuade, command, obey, serve, resist, threaten, spare, pardon, be angry: as, Res omnibus placuit, The affair pleased all. Fortuna fortibus favet, Fortune favors the brave. Paret legibus consul, As consul he obeys the laws. Tibi irascor, *I am angry with you.*¹

4. A verb that governs a dative in the active can only be used impersonally in the passive: as, Tibi imperatur, You are commanded (literally, It is commanded to you). Mihi creditur, I am believed (Do not say Imperaris or credor).

5. Verbs compounded with bene, male, and satis, govern a dative: as, Optimo viro maledixit, He reviled a most excellent man. Mihi nunquam satisfecit, He never satisfied me.

6. Transitive verbs compounded with the prepositions ad, ante, con (for cum), in, inter, ob (on, against), post, prae (before), sub (under), or super (above), often govern the accusative of the direct object and the dative of the indirect: as, Populus Romanus bellum Gallis intulit, The Roman people made war on the Gauls.

In the passive the direct object of the active becomes the subject, and the indirect object is retained: as, Bellum Gallis a populo Romano illatum est, War was made on the Gauls by the Roman people.

7. Intransitive verbs compounded with the above-named prepositions often take a dative: as, Caesar exercitui praefuit, Caesar commanded the army. Consulis consiliis obstat, He opposes the plans of the consul.

¹The chief verbs that govern a dative are: Placeo (please), displiceo (displease), libet (it pleases), faveo (favor), fido and confido (trust: dat. of person but abl. of thing), resisto (resist), obsto (stand in the way of), credo (trust, with dat. of person and accusative of thing; in sense of believe, dat. of person), persuadeo (persuade), suadeo (recommend), impero (command), mando (entrust), obedio (obey), pareo (obey), repugno (oppose), obsisto (meet), occurro (meet), nubo (weâ, said of a woman; properly to veil one's self for), servio (be a slave to), minor (threaten: dat. of person and acc. of thing, or acc. of person and abl. of thing), parco (spare), ignosco (pardon). Exceptions:—Iuvo, adiuvo (help), delecto (delight), laedo, offendo (harm), iubeo (order), veto and prohibeo (forbid), rego, guberno (rule, direct), govern the accusative.

8. The dative is used with the verb sum, I am, to express possession: as, Mihi est liber, I have a book (literally, There is a book to me).

9. The compounds of sum (except possum, I can) govern the dative: as, Tibi adsum, I aid you. Amicis prodest, He helps his friends.

10. Opus est, and usus est (there is need), are generally used impersonally with the dative of the person to whom there is need, and the ablative of the thing needed: as, Cibo mihi opus est, I have need of food (literally, There is need to me with food). Viginti denariis tibi usus est, You have need of twenty denarii.

11. The agent is expressed in the passive periphrastic conjugation by the dative: as, Parentes nobis amandi sunt, Our parents should be loved by us. (See p. 172, 3.)

12. The dative is used to express purpose, intention, or destination: as, Malo est hominibus avaritia, Avarice is an evil (literally, for an evil) to men. Quinque cohortes castris praesidio reliquit, He left five cohorts to guard the camp (literally, for a guard to the camp). This is called the dative of purpose.

13. The dative is often used in Latin instead of the English possessive: as, Omnes flentes Caesari sese ad pedes proiecerunt, All threw themselves at Caesar's feet in tears.

14. A dative is often used of the person specially interested in an action: as, Quid mihi Celsus agit? Tell me, what is Celsus about? This use is confined to personal pronouns. It is called the ethic dative.

GENITIVE.

1. A noun used to limit or define another noun, and not meaning the same thing, is put in the genitive. This relation is generally expressed in English by the preposition of: as, Libri Ciceronis, The books of Cicero. Libra auri, A pound of gold.

2. The genitive is often used in the predicate with sum to express possession: as, Haec domus est mei patris, This house belongs to my father. This genitive may be used to express our task, duty, custom, characteristic, mark, token: as, Iudicis est verum sequi, It is the duty of a judge to follow the truth (literally, To follow the truth is of a judge). Hoc est praeceptōris, This is the task of an instructor. Sapientis est res adversas aequo animo ferre, It is the characteristic of a wise man to bear adversity with resignation (literally, with an even mind).¹

3. The genitive expresses the whole of which a part is taken: as, Pars militum, A part of the soldiers. Unus militum, One of the soldiers. Decem millia passuum, Ten thousand paces (= ten Roman miles). Decem vestrum, Ten of you. Quinque nostrum, Five of us. This is called the partitive genitive. (Do not use nostrī and vestrī in partitive genitive. See p. 104, note.)

4. A noun in the genitive (called the genitive of quality) is often added to another noun to denote a quality: as, Vir est summae fortitudinis, He is a man of the highest courage. The word in the genitive expressing the quality has invariably an adjective with it. Thus, A man of wisdom is not Vir sapientiae, but Vir sapiens. When a word expressing quality is without an adjective and cannot be turned as in the last example, praeditus (endowed with) is used with the ablative: as, Homo virtute praeditus, A man of valour (literally, A man endowed with valour).

5. When the price for which a thing is bought or sold is not stated definitely, price is usually expressed by the genitive, especially with the words magni (at a great price), maximi (at a very great price), parvi (at a low price), pluris (at a greater price), minoris (at a less price), tanti (at so great a price), quanti (at as high a price or at how high a price): as, Hortos tanti quanti tu emit, He bought gardens at as high a price as you. *Frumentum pluris vendo, I sell corn at a higher price.*²

6. The genitive is used with nouns derived from verbs to denote the subject of the verb implied in the governing noun: as, Morsus

² Do not use multi or maioris or plurimi, for At a high, at a higher, at a very high, price.

canis, The bite of a dog. Here canis is the subject of the implied mordet, he bites. This is called the subjective genitive.

7. The genitive is also used with nouns derived from verbs to denote the object of the verb implied in the governing noun: as, Timor mortis, The fear of death. Here mortis is the object of the implied timet, he fears. This is called the objective genitive.

8. A genitive is often added to another noun to define and limit: as, Virtus iustitiae, The virtue of justice. This is called the genitive of definition.

9. Adjectives are followed by a genitive when they express plenty, want, or the opposite: as, Plenus hostium, Full of the enemy. Expers rationis, Devoid of reason. So, also, adjectives derived from verbs: as, Tenax propositi, Firm of purpose. Cupidus pecuniae, Eager for money.

10. Verbs of plenty and want take the genitive: as, Eget pecuniae, He is in need of money.

11. Verbs signifying to remember,¹ forget, *pity*², like meminī (remember), reminiscor (remember), obliviscor (forget), misereor (pity), miserescō (pity), often take the genitive: as, Miserēre laborum, Pity our sufferings. Huius diei meminero, I shall remember this day.

12. Verbs of accusing, acquitting, condemning, reminding and admonishing take, in the active, the accusative of the person and the genitive of the thing: as, Te impietatis absolvo, I acquit you of impiety. Arguit me furti, He accuses me of theft. Cives eum proditiōnis accusavērunt, The citizens accused him of treachery.

In the passive, these constructions become respectively, Tu ab me impietatis absolvēris, Furti ab eo arguor, Ab civibus is proditiōnis accusatus est.

13. Miseret (it excites pity), poenitet (it makes repent), pudet (it shames), taedet (it wearies), piget (it annoys), are used impersonally with the accusative of the person affected and the genitive

¹Verbs of forgetting and remembering often take the accusative, especially of things. Recordor, I recollect, has usually the accusative.

²Miseror, -āri, -ātus sum (express pity for) takes the accusative: as, Casum suum miseratur, He bewails his misfortune.

of the object causing the feeling : as, Eorum nos miseret, We pity them (literally, It pities us of them).

14. The impersonals interest and rēfert, it is of importance, take the genitive of the person to whom the matter is of importance : as, Clodii intererat Milonem perire, It was of importance to Clodius that Milo should die. But if the person is represented in English by a personal pronoun, the ablative singular feminine of the possessive pronoun is used in Latin : as, Id meā interest, This is of importance to me. The degree of importance is expressed either by an adverb (multum, plurimum, much, very much), or by the genitive of price (as, magni, parvi, pluris, etc.) : as, Multum meā interest, It is of great importance to me. Magni tuā interest, It is of great importance to you.

ABLATIVE.

1. The ablative expresses separation or motion from ; hence it is used with verbs signifying to desist from, relieve from, deprive of, need,¹ be without, free from ; as, Conatu destitit, He desisted from the attempt. Levā me hoc onere, Relieve me of this burden. Se oculis privavit, He deprived himself of his eyes. Non egeo medicinā, I do not want medicine. Cibo caret, He is without food.

2. Adjectives signifying want or freedom from take the ablative : as, Animus liber curā, A mind free from care. Puer est expers² metu, The boy is without fear. Urbs est nuda praesidio, The city is destitute of defence.

3. The ablative of origin is used with verbs (chiefly participles like natus, satus, born from ; editus, genitus, descended from ; ortus, sprung from) with the preposition a (or ab), e (or ex), de when implying remote ancestry, or with the simple ablative for immediate ancestry : as, Belgae a Germanis orti sunt, The Belgae are descended from the Germans. Ille optimis parentibus ortus est, He is born of very noble parents.

4. The agent after a passive verb is regularly expressed by the ablative with a or ab : as, Vir a sociis laudatur, The man is praised by his comrades.

¹Egeo and indigeo govern also the genitive. (See p. 281, 10.)

²This governs the genitive also. (See p. 281, 9.)

5. Cause, manner, means and instrument are denoted by the ablative without a preposition : as, Puer pallidus irā fuit, The boy was pale with rage (abl. of cause ; not often used without an adj.). Magno fletu Caesarem orant, they beseech Caesar with much weeping (abl. of manner ; not often used without an adj.). Gallorum animos verbis confirmavit, He encouraged the minds of the Gauls by his words (abl. of means). Puerum gladio vulneravit, He wounded the boy with a sword (abl. of instrument).

6. The ablative is used with an adjective in the comparative when quam (than) is omitted : as, Lupus saevior cane est, The wolf is fiercer than the dog. Lupum saeviozem cane aestimo, I consider the wolf fiercer than the dog.

Note that quam can only be omitted when the word after it would be in the nominative or accusative, if quam were expressed.

7. The ablative is used with the comparative of the adjective to express the amount of difference : as, Puer uno anno senior quam frater erat, The boy was one year older (literally, older by one year) than his brother. This is called the ablative of difference.

8. Price with verbs of buying and selling is expressed by the ablative when the price is definitely stated : as, Viginti talentis unam orationem vendidit Isocrates, Isocrates sold one speech at twenty talents. Multo sanguine haec victoria nobis stat, This victory costs us much blood (literally, Stands to us at much blood).

9. The following adjectives govern the ablative : Dignus (worthy), indignus (unworthy), contentus (contented), praeditus (endowed with), fiētus (relying on), liber (free from) : as, Miles coronā dignus est, The soldier is worthy of a crown. Puer est ingenio praeditus, The boy is endowed with ability.

10. The deponents utor (I use), fruor (I enjoy), fungor (I discharge), potior (I obtain), vescor (I eat), govern the ablative : as, Plurimis rebus fruimur et utimur, We enjoy and use many things. Magnā praedā est potitus, He obtained large booty. Lacte et carne vescebantur, They used to live on milk and flesh.

11. Opus est and usus est (there is need) are generally used impersonally with the dative of the person to whom there is need, and the ablative of the thing needed : as, Cibo mihi opus est, I have need of food (literally, There is need to me with food).

12. An ablative (called the abl. of quality) is often used, like the genitive,¹ to express quality, especially when external qualities of dress or appearance are mentioned: as, Homo magno capite, ore rubicundo, magnis pedibus, A man with a big head, red face, and big feet. Caesar erat excelsā staturā, Caesar was of lofty stature. The abl. of quality should not be used without an adjective.

13. An ablative (called the abl. of respect) is used to express that in respect to which a statement is true: as, Pauci numero erant, They were few in number. Est Medus genere, He is a Mede by birth.

ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE.

14. The ablative absolute is a phrase consisting of a noun in the ablative case with a participle, adjective, or noun in agreement with it: as, Coniuratio facta est Tarquinio regnante, A conspiracy was formed in the reign of Tarquin. His rebus dictis rediit, He returned after saying these things. Consule Planco, In the consulship of Plancus.

RULES FOR EXPRESSING TIME.

1. A point of time is expressed by the ablative: as, Hieme noctes sunt longae, In winter the nights are long.

2. Within a period of time is expressed either by the simple ablative or by the accusative with inter or intra: as, Paucis diebus, inter paucos dies, intra paucos dies, Within a few days.

3. Many years after is multis annis (abl.) post,² or *post*³ multos annos; many years before is multis annis (abl.) ante,² or *ante*³ multos annos: as, Multis annis post urbs expugnata est, The city was taken many years after.

4. Duration of time is expressed by the accusative: as, Romulus septem et triginta annos regnavit, Romulus reigned for thirty-seven years. Often per, through, is used if definite duration is to be expressed: as, Per totam noctem dormiebat, He slept the live-long night.

5. Ago is expressed by abhinc, followed by the words expressing time in the accusative or ablative: as, Abhinc decem dies (or abhinc decem diebus) Caesar castra movit, Ten days ago Caesar moved his camp.

³ In these cases post and ante are prepositions.

6. Old or of age is expressed by the participle natus with the accusative: as, Homo est triginta annos natus, The man is thirty years old (literally, has been born thirty years); or without natus, as Homo est triginta annorum (p. 280, 4). More than thirty years may be expressed by Natus plus (quam) triginta annos.

RULES FOR EXPRESSING PLACE.

1. Place to which is generally expressed by the accusative with the prepositions ad or in, unless before the names of towns or small islands: as, Ad Galliam, in urbem contendit, He hastens to Gaul, to the city. With the names of towns and small islands place to which is regularly expressed by the accusative without a preposition¹: as, Romam, Corinthum, Karthaginem, Aeginam contendit, He hastens to Rome, Corinth, Carthage, Aegina. So also domum (home), rus (to the country), are used without a preposition: as, Domum, rus ambulat, He walks home, to the country. Ad domum Ciceronis ambulat would mean He walks to the house of Cicero.

2. Place from which is regularly expressed by the ablative with the prepositions, a, ab, e, ex, or de, unless before the names of towns and small islands; as, Ab Gallia, ex urbe, de provincia excessit, He departed from Gaul, out of the city, from the province. But, with the names of towns and small islands, from is regularly expressed by the ablative without a preposition: as, Romā, Corintho, Karthagine, Aeginā, contendit, He hastens from Rome, Corinth, Carthage, Aegina. So also: Domo, from home; rure, from the country.

3. To express place in which, a preposition is required, unless with the names of towns and small islands: as, In Gallia, in urbe vivit, He lives in Gaul, in the city. But to express place in which with the names of towns or small islands, the so-called *locative*²

¹When ad is used before the name of a town it means towards, or in the neighborhood of: as, Ad Romam contendit, He hastens towards Rome. Ad Romam pugnatum est, The battle was fought in the neighborhood of Rome.

²A case which became obsolete in later Latin case is used. This case has the form of (a) the genitive, if the noun is of the first or second declension singular; (b) the ablative, if the noun is of the third declension singular or if the noun is plural: as, Romae, at Rome; Corinthi, at Corinth; Karthagine, at Carthage; Athenis, at Athens (from Athenae, nom. pl.); Delphis, at Delphi (Delphi, nom. pl.); Curibus, at Cures (Cures, nom. pl.). So also: Domi, at home; humī, on the ground; belli, in war; ruri, in the country; militiae, on military service, abroad.

4. When urbs or oppidum is used in apposition to the name of a town, the preposition should be expressed: as, Ad urbem Romam contendit, He set out for the city of Rome. Ex urbe Romā properavit, He hastened from the city of Rome. In urbe Romā vixit, He lived in the city of Rome. (Note.—The City of Rome is Urbs Roma, not Urbs Romae.)

EXTENT OF SPACE.

1. Space over which motion takes place is expressed by the accusative: as, Tria millia passuum ambulavit, He walked three miles.

2. Space of measurement answering to the questions, How high? how deep? how broad? how long? may be expressed by the acc. or gen. Thus: A tree a hundred feet high, Arbor alta centum pedes (acc. of extent of space) or Arbor centum pedum (gen. of qual.).

3. Space which lies between is expressed by the accusative or ablative: as, Abest decem millia passuum, It is ten miles off. Quinque millibus passuum distat, It is five miles distant (lit. by five miles).

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES.

1. Is the soldier here? is Adestne miles? Is not the soldier here? is Nonne miles adest? The soldier is not here, is he? is Num miles adest?

Questions not introduced by interrogative pronouns or adverbs are usually introduced by one of the interrogative particles -ne, nonne, num. -Ne simply asks for information; nonne expects the answer Yes, and num the answer No.

2. Questions introduced by interrogative pronouns or adverbs do not require an interrogative particle: as, Why are you laughing? Quid rides? Where are you coming from? Unde venis?

3. Yes or no in answer to a question is usually expressed by repeating some word in the question: as, Is the soldier present? Yes (No). Adestne miles? Adest (Non adest).

4. An is often used to introduce a rhetorical question: as, Have you doubts of their honor? An de eorum fide dubitatis?

5. Whether . . . or is Utrum (rarely -ne) . . . an, and whether . . . or not, utrum . . . annon: as, Whether is he reading or writing? Utrum legit an scribit? Are you slaves or freemen? Servine estis an liberi? Whether will he come or not? Utrum veniet annon?

6. Tell me who you are is Dic mihi quis sis. I will ask him what he is reading, Rogabo eum quid legat.

N.B.—A question dependent upon a verb of saying or asking has the verb in the subjunctive. Such a question is called an indirect question, while an independent question is called a direct question.

7. Whether in an indirect question is num: as, He is asking me whether I am tired, Rogat num fessus sim. Whether . . . or not in an indirect question is Utrum . . . necne: as, Ask him whether he will come or not, Roga eum utrum venturus sit necne.

COMMANDS AND PROHIBITIONS.

1. Commands are expressed by the imperative mood: as, Consult for yourselves, Vos vobis consulite.

2. Prohibitions (addressed to individuals) are expressed most usually by noli or nolite with the infinitive, or by nē with the perfect subjunctive: as, Don't scold, Nōli obiurgare (Noli is the imperat. of nolo, I am unwilling). Don't do it, Ne hoc feceris.

NOTE.—Ne with the imperat. or with the pres. subjunc. is common in poetry and in general prohibitions: as, Be not wroth, great priestess, Ne saevi, magna sacerdos. Do not learn many things, but much, Ne multa discas sed multum.

SUBJUNCTIVE IN SIMPLE SENTENCES.

1. The subjunctive is used in exhortations: as, Let us always be the same, Semper iidem simus.

2. The subjunc. is used in commands: as, Let him come tomorrow, Cras veniat. (See last section.)

3. The subjunc. is used where a question is asked in doubt: as, What shall I say? Quid dicam? What should I have said? Quid dicerem? This is called the deliberative subjunctive.

4. The subjunc. is used to soften an assertion: as, You would ask me what God is, Roges me quid sit deus. Then you would have said, Tunc diceres.

5. Wishes and prayers are expressed by the subjunc. usually preceded by utinam (O that). The negative is nē. Thus: Utinam veniat, May he come (future and possible). Utinam adesset, O that he were here now (unaccomplished in present). Utinam ne copias eduxisset, O that he had not led out his forces (unaccomplished in past).

THE INFINITIVE.

1. Many verbs take an inf. to complete their meaning: as, He had learned to talk, Loqui didicerat. You know how to win, Hannibal; you do not know how to use a victory, Vincere scis, Hannibal; victoriā ūti nescis. Such verbs are called modal verbs.

The principal modal verbs are:

Audeo (dare), cogo (compel), conor (endeavor), constituo and statuo (determine), cunctor (hesitate), cupio (desire), debeo (ought), desino (cease), disco (learn), dubito (hesitate), incipio (begin), mālo (prefer), nescio (not know how), nōlo (be unwilling), obliviscor (forget), patior (allow), paro (prepare), possum (be able), scio (know how), soleo (be accustomed), vereor (fear), volo (be willing).

2. The subject of the inf. is in the acc.: as, Your coming is very pleasing to me, Te venire mihi pergratum est.

ACCUSATIVE WITH INFINITIVE.

1. The English that-clause after a verb meaning to say or think is expressed in Latin by the acc. with the inf.: as, He says that he is coming, Dicit se venire. He said that he was coming, Dixit se venire. He says that he came, Dicit se venisse. He said that he came (or had come), Dixit se venisse. He says that he will come, Dicit se venturum. He said that he would come, Dixit se venturum.

N.B.—The esse of the fut. inf. act. may be omitted.

2. Such a statement, depending upon a verb of saying or thinking, is said to be in indirect or oblique narration (as opposed to the simple form, which is called direct narration).

3. The tense of an inf. in oblique narration is the tense of the verb it represents in direct narration.

NOTE.—This idiom is quite different from the English and should be carefully mastered. The rule for finding the tense of the inf. may be stated thus: In turning English oblique into Latin, find first the English direct. The tense of the English main verb in direct, is the tense of the Latin inf. in indirect. Thus: He said that all men erred, Dixit omnes homines errare (direct = all men err). He said that he was a Roman citizen, Dixit se civem Romanum esse (direct = I am a Roman citizen, Civis Romanus sum).

4. Verbs meaning to hope, promise, undertake, have in Latin the fut. inf. and not as in English the pres.: as, He hopes to live long, Sperat se diu victurum. I promised to come soon, Pollicitus sum me brevi venturum.

Note that the proper pronoun must be expressed before the inf.

5. He said that he would not come is Negavit se venturum (not dixit non).

Note that the he of the that-clause, when referring to the subject of the principal clause, is se; referring to some one else, it would be eum: as, They said that he would come, Dixerunt eum venturum.

6. He is said to be rich is Dicitur esse dives, not Dicitur eum esse divitem.

SUPINE. GERUNDIVE.

1. The supine in -um is used to express purpose, but only with verbs of motion: as, Ludos visum ierunt, They went to see the games. Questum iniurias eo, I am going to complain of wrongs.

2. The gerundive of verbs that govern the acc. is to be used instead of the gerund with an object: as, Consilium inibant urbis delendae, They formed a plan for destroying the city (not urbem delendi).

But the gerund is used if the verb does not govern the acc.: as, Magnam gloriam victis parcendo paravit, He won great glory by sparing the vanquished.

3. To express duty, obligation, or necessity use the gerundive + sum (passive periphrastic): as, Urbs defendenda est, The city must be defended. Est mihi ambulandum, I must walk (agent usually in dat.). Nonne inimicis a nobis parcendum est? Ought we not to spare our enemies? (agent expressed by a or ab to avoid ambiguity).

PARTICIPLES.

1. Use the pres. participle, only of an action simultaneous with that of the main verb: as, Haec moriens dixit, This he said while dying.

2. The fut. part. act. is used to express a purpose: as, Venio agros visurus, I am coming to see the lands.

3. Use the fut. part. act. + sum to express I am about to, intend to: as, Dic mihi quid facturus sis, Tell me what you intend to do (active periphrastic).

4. For the perf. part. act. (which is wanting) use (a) abl. absolute or (b) cum + subjunc. or (c) postquam + perf. ind.: as, Having killed his enemy he spoke thus, Hoste interfecto (or Hostem cum interfecisset or Hostem postquam interfecit), haec locutus est.

NOTE. — He killed and stripped his enemy, is Hostem interfectum spoliavit (not Hoste interfecto eum spoliavit).

SEQUENCE OF TENSES.

1. Latin tenses are divided into Primary and Secondary (or Historical), as follows: —

Primary Tenses.	{	Pres.,	āmat, he loves.
		Perfect,	āmāvit, he has loved.
		Future,	āmābit, he will love.
		Future Perf.,	āmāvērīt, he will have loved.
Secondary (or Historical) Tenses.	{	Imperf.,	āmābat, he was loving.
		Perfect,	āmāvit, he loved.
		Pluperf.,	āmāvērāt, he had loved.

2. A primary tense in the principal clause is followed by a primary tense in the dependent clause; a secondary tense in the principal clause is followed by a secondary tense in the dependent clause: as, Venio ut urbem videam, I am coming that I may see the city (primary sequence). Veniebam ut urbem vidērem, I was coming that I might see the city (secondary sequence). This is called the Law of the Sequence of Tenses.

NOTE.—The Latin perfect has the force both of the English present perfect (i.e., perf. with have) and of the English past. When the Latin perfect is a pres. perf., it is a primary tense; when a past, a secondary: as, Veni ut urbem videam, I have come to see the city (primary). Veni ut urbem viderem, I came to see the city (secondary).

INDIRECT QUESTIONS.

1. A clause joined to a principal verb by an interrogative pronoun or conjunction is called an indirect question, and an indirect question has its verb in the subjunctive: as, Quaesivit cur haec fecissem, He inquired why I had done this.

2. For the fut. subjunc. act. in an indirect question, use the fut. part. + sum: as, Scio quid facturus sit, I know what he will do. Sciebam quid facturus esset, I knew what he would do (secondary sequence.)

3. For a fut. subjunc. pass. use futurum sit (or esset) + ut: as, Sciunt quare futurum sit ut is necetur, They know why he will be killed. Rogaverunt quando futurum esset ut pons conficeretur, They asked when the bridge would be finished (secondary sequence).

NOTE.—Use quando, not cum, for when in an interrogative sentence.

4. Whether in an indirect question is num or (rarely) -ne: as, Dic mihi num eādem quae ego sentias, Tell me whether you have the same opinion as I. Quaesivi salvusne esses, I inquired whether you were safe.

5. Whether . . . or in alternative questions is Utrum (rarely -ne) . . . an in indirect as well as in direct questions (see p. 287,5); but or not is necne in indirect, annon in direct. Thus:

I know whether this is true or false,

Scio { utrum hoc verum an falsum sit.
verumne sit.an falsum.

I ask whether he intends to go or not, Rogo utrum iturus sit necne.

6. Tell me if he is well is Dic mihi num (not si) valeat.

7. I told them what he ought to do is Eis dixi quid (not quod) ei faciendum esset, because the dependent clause (quid ei faciendum esset) implies in direct narration the question, What ought he to do?

8. An English abstract noun is often expressed by an indirect question: as,

I know	{	the size of the island. the extent of the danger. the nature of the soil. the origin of the war. the position of the enemy.	Scio	{	quanta insula sit. quantum periculum sit. quale solum sit. unde bellum ortum sit. ⁊ in quo loco hostes sint.

UT-CLAUSE WITH VERBS OF ASKING.

1. Verbs of asking, commanding, striving and effecting take in English an infinitive, but in Latin a clause introduced by ut with the subjunctive: as, Oro te ut hoc facias, I beg you to do this.

2. If there is a not with the infinitive in English, nē is used for ut non: as, Puero imperavi ne domo exiret, I ordered the boy not to go from home (secondary sequence).

3. So also that no one, is ne quis; that no, ne ullus; that nothing, ne quid; that never, ne unquam; as, Orant ne quis excedat, They beg that no one may leave.

4. Neve or neu is used in a second such clause; as, Te rogo ut bono animo sis neve perturbēris, I beg you to be of good cheer and not to be troubled. Neither . . . nor would be neve (neu) . . . neve (neu): as, Rogo te neve dōles materiam neve caedas, I beg of you neither to hew timber nor cut it.

5. Iubeo (I order), veto (I forbid), prohibeo (I prevent), patior (I suffer), volo (I wish), cogo (I compel), nolo (I am unwilling), sino (I allow), cupio (I desire), take the infinitive: as, Puerum iussi domo non exire, I ordered the boy not to go away from home. Vetuit me hoc facere, He forbade me to do this.

6. Statno, constituo, decerno (I determine), take the infinitive when the infinitive is used in English, otherwise ut or ne with the subjunctive: as, Caesar statuit in Italiam redire, Caesar decided to return to Italy; but Caesar statuit ut legiones in Italiam redirent, Caesar decided that his legions should return to Italy. Imperator decrevit ne quis ex castris exiret, The commander resolved that no one should leave the camp.

7. He persuaded them to come, is Eis ut venirent persuasit.
 But: He persuaded them that the enemy was near, is Adesse hostes eis persuasit.

NOUN CLAUSES.

1. A noun-clause introduced by ut is used as the subject of an impersonal verb like accidit, fit, it happens; futurum est, the result will be; accedit, it is added; sequitur, proximum est, it follows; fieri (non) potest, it is (im) possible; reliquum est, restat, it remains; tantum abest (see p. 297,7): as, Accidit ut nemo abesset, It happened that no one was absent. Ad Appi Claudii senectutem accedebat ut caecus esset, There was added to the old age of Appius Claudius the fact that he was blind. Sequitur ut erres, It follows that you are wrong.

2. Noun clauses are often introduced by quod (= the fact that) with the indicative expressing an admitted fact: as, Magnum est hoc quod victis pepercit, This is an important matter that he spared the vanquished. Gaudeo quod vales, I rejoice that you are well.

3. Nouns akin in meaning to the verbs of p. 292, 1, may take an appositive ut-clause to define them: as, Vetus est lex ut idem amici semper velint, It is an old law that friends should always have the same aim (literally, wish the same thing). Such nouns are: animus, consilium (purpose), condicio (condition), negotium (business), sententia (view).

ADVERBIAL CLAUSES.

A. FINAL CLAUSES.

1. An adverbial clause introduced by ut or ne with the subjunctive, is used in Latin to express a purpose: as, Edo ut vivam, I eat to live. Hoc dico ne te laedam, I say this not to offend you.

Such clauses of purpose are called final clauses.

2. In final clauses the present is used after primary tenses, the imperfect after secondary: as, Ocludit portas ut hostes excludat, He shuts the gates to keep out the enemy (primary sequence). Ocluserat portas ut hostes excluderet, He shut the gates to keep out the enemy (secondary sequence).

3. For That no one, that no, that nothing, that never, use Ne quis, ne ullus, ne quid, ne unquam: as, Porta clausa est ne quis exiret, The gate was shut that no one might go out. Clamant ne ullum verbum audiat, They are shouting that no word may be heard. Abii ne quid vidērem, I went away that I might see nothing. Hoc facite ne unquam vituperent, Do this that they may never revile.

4. Quo is used for ut when there is a comparative in the final clause: as, Puto aliquid puero dandum esse quo sit studiosior, I think that something should be given to the boy that he may be more zealous. Caesar castella communit quo facilius Helvetios prohibēre possit, Caesar erects forts that he may the more easily keep back the Helvetii.

5. The relative qui (called qui final) is used with the subjunc. to express a purpose: as, Misit legatos qui pacem peterent, He sent ambassadors to sue for peace (qui=ut ii). So also relative adverbs like ubi (where), unde (whence), often express a purpose: as, Domum ubi habitaret lēgit, He chose a house where he might dwell (or to dwell in; ubi=ut ibi).

6. With verbs of preventing, a final clause is often introduced by quominus (= by which the less = in order that not) with the subjunc.: as, Nihil obstat quominus scribas, Nothing prevents you from writing (i.e., by which you should the less write). Notice, however, that prohibeo (the common word for to prevent) takes the inf.: as, Eos egredi prohibuit, He prevented them from going out.

7. After verbs of preventing, quin may be used in the same sense as quominus, if there is a negative or a virtual negative in the sentence: as, Non prohibēri poterat quin hoc faceret, He could not be prevented from doing this. Vix inhiberi potuit quin saxa iacēret, He could not be restrained from throwing stones.

8. After verbs of fearing, a final clause is used, introduced by ut or ne: as, Vereor ut veniat, I am afraid that he will not come. Vereor ne veniat, I am afraid that he will come. (Here ut and ne apparently change their meanings, ut=that . . . not; ne=that.) Note that the English future after a verb of fearing is expressed by the subjunctive—in the present if the main verb is in a primary tense, in the imperfect if the main verb is in a secondary tense: as, Timeo ut labores sustineas, I am afraid that you will not endure your sufferings. Timēbam ne ea evenirent, I was afraid that these things would happen.

9. He sent ambassadors to sue for peace may be expressed as follows :—

- (1) Legatos misit ut pacem peterent (ut final).
- (2) Legatos misit qui pacem peterent (qui final).
- (3) Legatos misit ad pacem petendam (ad with accusative of gerundive).
- (4) Legatos misit pacis petendae causā (causā with the genitive of gerundive).
- (5) Legatos misit ad pacem petendum (ad with gerund).
- (6) Legatos misit pacem petendi causā (causā with genitive of gerund).
- (7) Legatos misit pacem petitum (supine after verb of motion).
- (8) Legatos misit pacem petituros (future participle active expressing a purpose).

10. For et ne in a second clause of purpose use neu or neve (p. 292,4).

B. CONSECUTIVE CLAUSES.

1. An adverbial clause is often used to express the result of what is described in the main clause. Such clauses are called consecutive clauses, or clauses of consequence or result : as, Tantus timor omnes occupavit ut rex ipse fūgērit, Such fear seized all that the king himself fled. Tam caecus fuit ut me non vidēret, He was so blind that he did not see me.

2. The rule for the sequence of tenses in consecutive clauses is the same as in English, except that (after a secondary tense) the imperfect subjunctive is used of a continuous act : as, Tantus timor omnes occupavit ut perturbati sint, Such fear seized all that they were panic stricken. But : Tam callidus erat ut Romānos saepe eludēret, He was so skilful that he often eluded the Romans.

3. That not in a consecutive clause is not ne, as in a final clause (p. 293, A, 1), but ut . . . non : as, Longe aberam ut me non videret. I was far away so that he did not see me. So, too, Ut nemo, ut nulus, ut nihil, ut nunquam, are used for That no one, that no, that never, that nothing: as, Talis erat ut nemo ei crederet, He was of such a character that no one believed him. Verres Siciliam per triennium ita vexavit ut ea restitui in antiquum statum nullo modo potuerit, Verres so harried Sicily for three years that it could not in any way be restored to its original condition. Ita improbus fuit ut nihil eum a scelere revocaverit, He was so wicked that nothing ever called him away from crime.

4. Consecutive clauses are often used after demonstrative words like talis, such; tantus, so great; sic, ita, tam, so; adeo, to such a degree: as, Tanta vis probitatis est ut etiam in hoste diligamus, So great is the force of honesty that we love it even in an enemy. Tarquinius sic Servium diligebat ut is eius vulgo haberetur filius, Tarquin so loved Servius that the latter was commonly regarded as his son. Hoc eum adeo terruit ut vix hodie prodire audeat, This so terrified him that he scarcely now ventures to go forth.

5. The relative qui (called qui consecutive) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a consecutive clause: as, Non is sum qui hoc faciam, I am not the one to do this (qui=ut ego). The consecutive relative is found in the following constructions:—

(a) With certain indefinite expressions like sunt qui (there are some who); reperiuntur qui (there are found those who): as, Sunt qui putent nihil sibi litteris opus esse, There are some who think that they have no need of literature. Nihil est quod dicere velim, There is nothing that I wish to say.

(b) After dignus (worthy), indignus (unworthy), and idoneus or aptus (fit); as, Dignus est qui ametur, he is worthy to be loved.

(c) After quam with a comparative: as, Maiores quam cui resisti possit, He is too great to be resisted (=greater than to whom it can be resisted). [Possum is used impersonally only when an infinitive passive is joined to it.]

6. Instead of qui non, quin is often used when the verb in the principal clause has a negative or virtual negative¹: as, Nemo est quin sciat, There is no one but knows. Negari non potest quin turpe sit fidem fallere, It cannot be denied that it is dishonorable to break one's word. Non dubitat quin animus sit immortalis, He does not doubt that the soul is immortal. Num quis¹ ignorat quin haec vera sint? Is any one ignorant that this is the truth?

NOTE.—Dubito has two meanings in Latin: (1) Hesitate, (2) doubt: as, Dubitat loqui, He hesitates to speak. Desinēte dubitare num hoc utile sit, Cease to doubt whether this is expedient. Non dubito quin vir summo ingenio sit, I do not doubt that he is a man of the highest ability.

7. A consecutive ut-clause sometimes depends on the phrase tantum abest followed by a noun-clause introduced by ut: as, Tantum abest ut nostra miremur ut nobis non satisfaciat ipse Demosthenes, So far am I from admiring my own productions that Demosthenes himself does not satisfy me.

C. CAUSAL CLAUSES.

1. Causal adverbial clauses state the cause or reason for a fact mentioned in the principal clause. In English they are usually introduced by because: as, Tacent quia periculum metuunt, They are silent because they fear danger.

2. Causal clauses are usually introduced by quod, quia (because), quoniam (=quum iam, since now, seeing that), and by quum (since).

3. Quod,² quia, quoniam are followed by the indicative when the reason they introduce is given on the speaker's own authority; they are followed by the subjunctive, when the reason they introduce is given on the authority of some one else, or is not a reason assigned by the speaker (p. 307, 11): as, Patriā expulsus est quia iustus erat, He was banished from his country because he was just. (The reason given is vouched for by the historian as being the true one.) But, Patriā expulsus est quia iustus esset, He was banished because (as was alleged) he was just. Socrates accusatus est quod corrumperet iuventutem, Socrates was accused because (as was alleged) he corrupted the youth. [Corrumpebat would mean that the historian vouched for the truth of the charge.]

4. Quum (cum), in the sense of since, always takes the subjunctive: as, Haec quum ita sint, abibo, Since this is so, I shall go away.

¹ Quis is any after si, nisi, num, ne, quo, quanto.

² Quod is common after queror (I complain), laudo (I praise), gaudeo (I rejoice), doleo (I grieve).

5. The relative qui (called qui causal) is often used with the subjunctive to introduce a causal clause: as, Pecâsse videor qui a te decesserim, It seems that I have done wrong since I have departed from you [qui=cum ego]. Qui is often strengthened by quippe, utpote, indeed, as being: as, Multa de me questus est, quippe qui a me incensus esset, He complained at length of me, inasmuch as he had been exasperated by me. Qui causal is often used after exclamations: as, Me miserum qui hæc fecerim, Wretched that I am for doing this.

6. Non quod, non quo with the subjunctive are often used to introduce a rejected reason: as, Hoc laudo non quod honestum sit, sed quod utile est, I praise this not because it is honorable, but because it is expedient. So, De consilio meo non scripsi, non quo celandum esset, sed quia, etc., I did not write to you about my plan, not because it required to be concealed, but because, etc. So, too, non quin, not but that: as, Non quin me ames sed quod abire cupio, Not but that you love me, but because I wish to go.

D. TEMPORAL CLAUSES.

1. Temporal adverbial clauses define the time of the action of the main verb: as, Hæc feci dum potui, I did this while I could.

2. The temporal conjunctions ubi, ut (when), postquam or posteaquam (after), simul ac (or simul atque before a vowel or h), ut primum, quum primum (as soon as), are followed by the indicative (usually the perfect or historical present). The English commonly requires the pluperfect: as, Simul atque hæc audivit, abiit, As soon as he had heard this, he went away. Postquam id animadvertit, Caesar in proximum collem copias subducit, After he had noticed this, Caesar withdraws his forces to the nearest hill. Ubi se paratos esse arbitrati sunt, oppida incendunt, When they thought they were ready, they set fire to the towns. Ea res ut Helvetiis nuntiata est, eum causam dicere coegerunt, When this fact was reported to the Helvetii, they compelled him to plead his cause. Nostri simul in arido constiterunt, impetum fecerunt, Our men, as soon as they had set foot on dry ground, made an attack.

3. Dum, donec, quamdiu, quoad, meaning while, as long as, take the indicative: as, Dum vivo, spero, While I live, I hope. Vixit, dum vixit, bene, He lived well, while he lived. Quoad potuit, restitit, He held out, as long as he could.

4. Dum (not donec, quoad, or quamdiu) is often used with a present indicative instead of the English past when the time of the dum-clause includes the time of the action of the main verb: as, Dum ea Romani parant, iam oppidum oppugnabatur, While the Romans were making these preparations, the town was already being besieged.

5. Dum, donec, quoad, meaning until, take the indicative, when they express time alone: as, Hoc feci dum mihi licuit, I did this as long as it was allowed me. Dum rediit Marcellus, silentium fuit, There was silence till Marcellus returned. Milo in Senatu fuit eo die quoad senatus dimissus est, Milo was in the senate on that day till it was dismissed.

6. Dum, donec, quoad take the subjunctive when they express some further idea of purpose or expectation: as, Dum naves convenirent, exspectavit, He waited till the ships should assemble (Purpose). Exspectate dum consul aut dictator fiat Kaeso, Wait till Kaeso become consul or dictator (Expectation). Differant dum ira defervescat, Let them put off till their anger cools (Purpose). Impetum hostium sustinuit quoad ceteri pontem interrumperent, He withstood the attack till the rest should break down the bridge (Purpose).

7. Priusquam and antequam take the indicative when they mark simple priority of time: as, Priusquam lucet, adsunt, They are here before it is light. Filios convocavit antequam mortuus est, He called his sons together before he died.

8. Priusquam and antequam take the subjunctive when they express some further notion of intention or prevented result: as, Priusquam pugnaretur, nox intervēnit, Night came on before the battle was fought (Result prevented). Priusquam se hostes ex terrore reciperent, in fines eorum exercitum duxit, Before the enemy recovered from their panic, he led his army into their territories (Intention).

NOTE.—Antequam and priusquam are often written in two words: as, Ante rorat quam pluit, It drops before it rains.

9. Quum (eum) takes the indicative

(a) When denoting contemporaneous time : as, Quum Caesar in Galliam vēnit, alterius factionis principes erant Aedui, When Caesar came into Gaul, the Aedui were the leaders of one of the two parties. Quum verba faciunt, maiores extollunt, When they speak, they extol their ancestors. Nondum profectus erat, quum haec gerebantur, He had not yet departed when these things were taking place. Veniam quum potero, I shall come, when I can. When the verb in the main clause is future, the fut. perf. is used in the dependent clause if the act in the dependent clause is over before that described in the main clause begins : as, Quum epistolam tuam accepero, ad te scribam, I shall write you when I get your letter.

In these sentences quum is a relative adverb of time corresponding to a suppressed tum in the main clause.

(b) When equivalent to quoties, as often as, whenever : as, Quum impetum fecerant, hostes cedere cogeantur, Whenever they made an attack, the enemy were forced to retire. Quum rosam vidi, tum ver esse arbitror, whenever I see a rose, then I judge that it is spring. Note that in this sense quum takes the perfect indicative for the English present, and the pluperfect for the English past.

10. Quum¹ takes the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive in historical narrative (i.e., when the verb in the principal clause is in the perfect or historical present) : as, Decessit Agesilaus quum in portum venisset, Agesilaus died when he had entered the harbour. Cum hostes adessent, in urbem pro se quisque ex agris demigrant, On the approach of the enemy, they move each as he best can from the country to the city.

E. CONDITIONAL CLAUSES.

1. Conditional clauses express a condition on which the statement of the main clause depends. The conditional clause is usually introduced by si (if) or nisi (unless).

¹ Note that quum with the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive is a substitute for the perfect participle active. Thus : Having said this, he went away=(1) Quum haec dixisset, abiit. (2) His rebus dictis abiit. (3) Postquam haec dixit abiit. (4) Haec locutus abiit.

2. Conditional sentences are of three kinds:—

(1) Present and past conditions. In these nothing is implied as to the fulfilment of the condition. They have usually the indicative in both clauses, but they may have the imperative in the main clause or the subjunctive used imperatively: as,

Pecuniam si habet, dat,	If he has money, he gives it.
Pecuniam si habes, da,	If you have money, give it.
Pecuniam si habet, det,	If he has money, let him give it.
Pecuniam si habebat, dabat,	If he had money, he gave it.

(2) Future conditions. These are divided into two classes:—

(a) Where the condition is likely to be fulfilled. Here the future indicative is used in both clauses, but the future-perfect indicative is used in the si-clause if the action of the verb in that clause is to be represented as over before that of the main verb begins: as,
Pecuniam si habebit, dabit, If he has (literally shall have) money, he will give it.

Litteras si accepero, ad te scribam, If I get (literally shall have got) a letter, I shall write you.

(b) Where the condition is unlikely to be fulfilled: as,
Pecuniam si habeat, det, If he should (in the future) have money, he would give it.

(3) Conditions contrary to fact. This class contains all conditional sentences in which the condition is represented as not fulfilled. There are two types:—

(a) When the condition is not fulfilled in the present: as,
Pecuniam si haberet, daret, If he had money (now), he would give it (now).

(b) When the condition was not fulfilled in the past: as,
Pecuniam si habuisset, dedisset. If he had had money (in the past), he would have given it (in the past).

Often (a) and (b) are combined: as,
Si id fecisset, viveret, If he had done this (in the past), he would be living (now).

3. The indicative, not the subjunctive, must be used in the main clause of the conditional sentence when the principal verb in the conditional clause is

(a) In the periphrastic conjugation, active or passive (p. 172, 174): as, Id facturus fuit, si adfuisset, He would have done it, if he had been here. Nisi litteras misisset, agros relicturi erant, If he had not sent the letter, they would have left their lands. Consilia si processissent, interficiendus fuit, If the plans had succeeded, he must have been put to death.

(b) Possum (I can), debeo (I ought), oportet (it is needful): as, Totus exercitus deleri potuit, si persecuti essent victores, The whole army might have been destroyed, if the victors had followed up.

4. Sive . . . sive (seu . . . seu) are used for alternative conditions: as, Seu credis seu non credis, verum est, Whether you believe it or not, it is true.

CAUTION.—Distinguish whether . . . or in alternative questions, and whether . . . or in alternative conditions. Thus: Utrum credam necne, tu nescis, Whether I believe or not, you do not know (noun clause, object of nescis). But: Sive credo, sive non credo, tu quidem credis, Whether I believe or not, you at least believe (alternative adverbial conditions).

5. Nisi negatives a whole clause, si non, some particular word: as, Nemo saltat sobrius, nisi forte insanit, No one dances when he is sober unless perchance he is insane. Si manebit, laudabo; si non manebit, culpabo, If he stays, I shall praise him; if he does not stay, I shall blame him.

6. A second conditional clause of contrary meaning to the first is introduced, if affirmative, by sin (but if); if negative, by si non, with a verb, or with si minus (if not) without a verb: as,

Si manebit, laudabo; sin abibit, culpabo, If he stays I will praise him; but, if he goes, I will blame him.

Si manebit, laudabo; si non manebit, culpabo.

Si manebit, laudabo; si minus, culpabo, If he stays I will praise him; if not, I will blame him.

7. Provided that is expressed by dum, modo, or dummodo, with the subjunctive (with ne, not, in negative clauses): as, Oderint, dum metuant, Let them hate provided that they fear. Veniant dummodo ne maneant, Let them come, provided they do not stay.

F. CONCESSIVE CLAUSES.

1. Concessive clauses are those that make some concession in spite of which the statement of the main clause is true. They are usually introduced in English by though. These clauses may be divided into those which state

(a) An admitted fact. These are introduced by quamquam with the indicative : as, Romani, quamquam proelio fessi erant, tamen procedunt, The Romans, although they were weary with fighting, nevertheless advance. Caesar, quamquam eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen suspicabatur, Caesar, though he had not yet learned their plans, was nevertheless suspicious.

(b) A mere supposition. These are introduced by licet, ut, quamvis, which always have the subjunctive : as, Quamvis pericula impendeant tamen ea subibo, Though dangers may threaten still I will encounter them.

2. Etsi, etiamsi, tametsi follow the rules for si. (See p. 300-302.)

3. Note that quamvis has often an adverbial force : as, Quamvis facētus sit, ille est odio, However witty he is, he is hated.

Note that odio esse is used for the passive of odisse, to hate.

4. The relative qui with the subjunc. (called qui concessive) is often used concessively : as, Caesar, qui hæc vidēret, tamen aciem instruxit, Though Caesar saw this, he drew up his line.

5. Quum with the subjunc. sometimes has a concessive force : as, Quum dicas te esse Graecum, es Romanus, Though you say that you are a Greek, you are a Roman.

G. COMPARATIVE CLAUSES.

1. A comparative adverbial clause expresses agreement (or the opposite) with the statement of the main clause : as, Ut sementem feceris, ita metes, You shall reap according as you do (literally shall have done) your sowing.

2. There are two classes of comparative sentences :—

(a) When the comparison is stated as a fact : as, Omnia sicut acta sunt, memoravit, He narrated everything just as it was done.

(b) When the comparison is stated as a mere supposition : as, Honores petunt quasi honesti sint, They seek office as if they were honorable (which they are not).

Those of the (a) type take the indicative, those of the (b) type, the subjunctive.

3. The following are the common comparative conjunctions that are usually found with the subjunctive: Tanquam, tanquam si, quasi, velut or velut si (as if): as, Tanquam hoc difficile sit, As if this were hard. Velut si Asia sit clausa, sic nihil perfertur ad nos, Just as if Asia were closed, no news reaches us.

NOTE.—These conjunctions prefer the subjunc. of 2 (b), p. 301, to that of 3 (a), p. 301.

4. The . . . the before comparatives is expressed by (a) Quo . . . eo, or by quanto . . . tanto: as, Quo (or quanto) quisque est melior, eo (or tanto) difficilius suspicatur, The better a man is, the more difficulty he has in suspecting, or by (b) Ut quisque . . . ita, with superlatives: as, Ut quisque vir optimus est, ita difficillime suspicatur. This may also be rendered, In proportion to a man's goodness, he has difficulty in suspecting.

5. Distinguish the use of as in the following:

He did as he was told, Ut imperatum est, sic fecit. Eadem ac tu peto, I have the same object as you (comparative clause).

He is not so mad as to think this, Non tam insanus est ut hoc putet (consecutive clause).

He ran fast so as to be in time, Celeriter cucurrit ut tempori veniret (ut final).

He collected as many forces as possible (or as he could), Quam maximas copias (potuit) coegit.

ADJECTIVE CLAUSES.

1. Adjective clauses stand in the relation of adjectives to some word in the principal sentence. They are introduced by the relative pronoun (qui, quae, quod), or by correlatives (qualis, quantus, quot), or by adverbs (unde, ubi).

2. The relative clause in its simple use takes the indicative: as, Nuntii qui missi erant, redierunt, The messengers who had been sent returned.

So also the correlatives qualis, quantus, quot, and the adverbs ubi, unde: as, Non sum qualis eram, I am not what I was. Ad locum rediērunt unde profecti erant, They returned to the spot from which they had set out. In eodem oppido est sepultus ubi natus erat, He was buried in the same town in which he had been born.

3. The relative pronoun is often omitted in English when it is the object of a verb, but is never so omitted in Latin: as, Verba quae locutus es, vera sunt, The words you have spoken are true.

4. The antecedent of the relative is often omitted: as, Sunt qui putent hoc esse verum, There are some who think that this is true.

5. He was the first to come is Primus vēnit. This is the goal I am aiming at, Hoc peto. Such a great danger as this, Hoc tantum periculum.

INDIRECT (OR OBLIQUE) NARRATION.

1. A statement depending on a verb of saying, thinking, perceiving, knowing, or the like, is said to be in indirect or oblique narration. Thus:

DIRECT.

Ego civis Romanus sum.
I am a Roman citizen.

Romulus, inquit, urbem condidit.
"Romulus," he said, "founded a city."

INDIRECT.

Dixit se civem Romanum esse.
He said that he was a Roman citizen.

Dixit Romulum urbem condidisse.
He said that Romulus had founded a city.

NOTE.—If the actual words of a speaker or writer are quoted, they are introduced by inquit, he says or he said, usually following the first word. If the speech is reported in indirect narration, dicit, dixit, or ait is used.

2. All dependent adjectival and adverbial clauses are in the subjunctive in indirect narration: as,

DIRECT.

Darius, qui rex Persarum est, advēnit.
Darius, who is the king of the Persians, is approaching.

INDIRECT.

Darium, qui rex Persarum esset, advenire dixit.
He said that Darius, who was the king of the Persians, was approaching.

(For tense of advenire see p. 289, 3, note, and for tense of esset see p. 290, 2.)

NOTE.—The future-perf. ind. of direct becomes plupf. subjunc. in indirect after a past tense: as, Dixit eum, qui id fecisset, poenas daturum, He said that the man who did that, would be punished (direct = qui id fecerit, the man who does that, see p. 301, 2, (2), (a).

3. Indirect commands are in the subjunctive (usually the imperfect; but sometimes the present takes the place of the imperative of the direct command): as,

DIRECT.	INDIRECT.
Ite, inquit, create consules.	Irent, crearent consules.
“Go,” says he, “elect consuls.”	He ordered them to go and elect consuls.

4. Indirect questions asking for information (and representing the second person in direct), are usually in the subjunctive (the imperfect or pluperfect when the principal verb is secondary): as,

DIRECT.	INDIRECT.
Quid agis? inquit; cur non antea pugnam commisisti?	(Dixit) quid ageret? cur non antea pugnam commisisset?
“What are you about?” says he.	(He asked) what was he about? Why
“Why have you not begun the battle before?”	had he not begun the battle before?

5. Indirect rhetorical questions representing the first or third person in direct are generally expressed by the accusative and infinitive: as,

DIRECT.	INDIRECT.
Num Romam repulsi ibimus?	Num se Romam repulsos esse ituros?
Shall we if repulsed go to Rome?	Would they if repulsed go to Rome?

6. Pronouns of the first and second persons are usually changed to those of the third person. Thus:

ego, nos	become se
meus, noster	“ suus
tu, vos	“ ille, illi
tuus, vester,	“ illius, illorum
hic, iste	“ ille, is

7. Adverbs of present time become after a secondary tense adverbs of past time : as,

nunc (now)	becomes iam, tunc (then).
heri (yesterday)	“ pridie (the day before).
hodie (to-day)	“ illo die (that day).
cras (to-morrow)	“ postridie (the next day).
hic (here)	“ ibi (there).

8. It should be noted that, Si habeam, dem (p. 301) becomes Dixit se daturum, si haberet. Si haberem, darem becomes Dixit se daturum fuisse, si haberet. Si mansissem, interfectus essem becomes Dicit or dixit, futurum fuisse ut interficeretur, si mansisset.

It may also be noted that Debellatum erit, The war will then be over, becomes Dixit debellatum fore.

9. Se and suus in indirect usually refer to the subject of the principal verb, is or ille to some one different from that subject : as, Caesar Catoni dixit verba eius sibi displicere, Caesar told Cato that his (Cato's) words displeased him (Caesar).

10. If a pronoun is required in indirect to refer to the subject of a subordinate clause, ipse may be used : as, Rogavit eos ut dederent qui ipsos prodidissent, He asked them to surrender men who had betrayed them.

11. The subjunctive is used in a subordinate clause when an indirect statement is only implied and not expressed : as, Noctu ambulabat quod somnum capere non posset, He used to walk about at night because he could not sleep (as was reported). Ei, qui primus conscendisset, praemium proposuit, He offered a reward to the one who should first scale the wall.

NOTE.—Such a use of the subjunctive is called virtual oblique.

12. Indirect narration is often used in a principal clause without a verb of saying : as, Rhenum transiit: Gallos enim sibi bellum intulisse, He crossed the Rhine: for (he said) the Gauls had made war on him.

13. The following exceptions to the rules of indirect may be noticed :—

(a) Certior factus est id agi ut pons, quem ille in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur, He (Xerxes) was told that the intention was to break down the bridge which he had built over the Hellespont. (Here the words quem . . . fecerat are not part of the message sent to Xerxes, but an independent statement made by the historian.)

(b) Existimavit te dicere quae sentiebas, He supposed you said what you really thought. (Here the quae sentiebas is regarded as the statement of something known to all, the force of which would be weakened if the direct form of expression were changed.) So, too: Quaero e vobis ut haec pauca, quae restant, audiatis, I ask of you to hear the few words that remain. Dico me copias, quas mecum habeo, missurum, I say that I will send the troops which I have with me. Rogo cur nuntius, quem misi, nondum redierit, I ask why the messenger whom I sent has not yet returned.

(c) Dixit hoc nuntiatum esse dum haec geruntur, He said that word of it was brought while this was going on. (Dum-clause unchanged, as often in oblique.)

SPECIAL LATIN IDIOMS.

The following idioms may be noticed :—

(a) Quid facerent ego nescii, I did not know what they ought to do (delib. subjunc. in indirect).

(b) Laniando hostem exspiravit, He expired mangling his enemy (abl. of gerund used for pres. part.).

(c) Quod omnibus notum esse dixit, And that this matter (he said) was known to all (the relative as a connective (=et id) in indirect does not take a finite verb).

(d) Adeo territi erant ut non pugnaturi essent, They were so terrified that they would not fight (fut. subjunc., secondary sequence).

(e) Non dubitavi quin urbem capturus fuerit, I did not doubt that he would have taken the city (conditional in consecutive clause : double dependence). So : Rogo te quid facturus fueris, I ask you what you would have done.

(f) Laetemur potius quam queramur, Let us rejoice rather than complain. Addit se prius occisum iri quam me violatum iri, He adds that he will be killed sooner than that I shall be harmed.

THEMISTOCLES.

I. Themistocles, Neoclis filius, Atheniensis. Huius The early life of Themistocles. vitia ineuntis adulescentiae magnis sunt emendata virtutibus, adeo ut anteferatur huic nemo, pauci pares putentur. Sed ab initio est ordiendum. Pater eius Neocles generosus fuit. Is uxorem Halicarnassiam civem duxit, ex qua natus est Themistocles. Qui cum minus esset probatus parentibus, quod et liberius vivebat et rem familiarem neglegebat, a patre exheredatus est. Quae contumelia non fregit eum, sed erexit. Nam cum iudicasset sine summa industria non posse eam exstingui, totum se dedidit rei publicae, diligentius amicis famaеque serviens. Multum in iudiciis privatis versabatur, saepe in contionem populi prodibat; nulla res maior sine eo gerebatur, celeriter quae opus erant reperiebat, facile eadem oratione explicabat. Neque minus in rebus gerendis promptus quam excogitandis erat, quod et de instantibus, ut ait Thucydides, verissime iudicabat et de futuris callidissime coniciebat. Quo factum est ut brevi tempore illustraretur.

II. Primus autem gradus fuit capessendae rei publicae bello Corcyraeo: ad quod gerendum praetor a populo factus non solum praesenti bello, sed etiam reliquo tempore ferociorem reddidit civitatem. Nam cum pecunia publica, quae ex metallis redibat, largitione magistratum quotannis interiret, ille persuasit populo ut ea pecunia classis centum navium aedificaretur. Qua celeriter effecta, primum Corcyraeos fregit, deinde maritimos praedones consecrando mare tutum reddidit. In quo cum divitiis ornavit, tum etiam peritissimos belli navalis fecit Athenienses.

Xerxes
invades
Greece.

Id quantae salutis fuerit universae Graeciae, bello cognitum est Persico. Nam cum Xerxes et mari et terra bellum universae inferret Europae cum tantis copiis, quantas neque ante nec postea habuit quisquam: huius enim classis mille et ducentarum navium longarum fuit, quam duo millia onerariarum sequebantur, terrestres autem exercitus DCC peditum, equitum CCCC millia fuerunt:—cuius de adventu cum fama in Graeciam esset perlata et maxime Athenienses peti dicerentur propter pugnam Marathoniam, miserunt Delphos consultum, quidnam facerent de rebus suis. Deliberantibus Pythia respondit, ut moenibus ligneis se munirent. Id responsum quo valeret cum intellegeret nemo, Themistocles persuasit consilium esse Apollinis, ut in naves se suaque conferrent: eum enim a deo significari murum ligneum. Tali consilio probato addunt ad superiores totidem naves triremes suaque omnia, quae moveri poterant, partim Salamina, partim Troezena deportant: arcem sacerdotibus paucisque maioribus natu ad sacra procuranda tradunt, reliquum oppidum relinquunt.

Thermopylae; Artemisium,
B.C. 480.

III. Huius consilium plerisque civitatibus displicebat et in terra dimicari magis placebat. Itaque missi sunt delecti cum Leonida, Lacedaemoniorum rege, qui Thermopylas occuparent longiusque barbaros progredi non paterentur. Ii vim hostium non sustinuerunt eoque loco omnes interierunt. At classis communis Graeciae trecentarum navium, in qua ducentae erant Atheniensium, primum apud Artemisium inter Euboeam continentemque terram cum classiariis regiis confligit: angustias enim Themistocles quaerebat, ne multitudine circumiretur. Hic etsi pari proelio discesserant, tamen eodem loco non sunt ausi manere, quod erat periculum, ne, si pars navium adversariorum Euboeam superasset, ancipiti premerentur periculo. Quo factum est ut ab Artemisio discederent et exadversum Athenas apud Salamina classem suam constituerent.

IV. At Xerxes Thermopylis expugnatis protinus accessit astu idque nullis defendentibus, interfectis sacer-dotibus quos in arce invenerat, incendio delevit. Cuius flamma perterriti classarii cum manere non auderent et plurimi hortarentur, ut domos suas discederent moenibusque se defenderent, Themistocles unus restitit et universos pares esse posse aiebat, dispersos testabatur perituros, idque Eurybiadi, regi Lacedaemoniorum, qui tum summae imperii praeerat, fore affirmabat. Quem cum minus quam vellet moveret, noctu de servis suis quem habuit fidelissimum ad regem misit, ut ei nuntiaret suis verbis, adversarios eius in fuga esse: qui si discessissent, maiore cum labore et longinquiore tempore bellum confecturum, cum singulos consecrari cogeretur; quos si statim aggrederetur, brevi universos oppressurum. Hoc eo valebat, ut ingratiis ad depugnandum omnes cogerentur. Hac re audita barbarus, nihil doli subesse credens, postridie alienissimo sibi loco, contra opportunissimo hostibus, adeo angusto mari confligit, ut eius multitudo navium explicari non potuerit. Victus ergo est magis etiam consilio Themistoclis quam armis Graeciae.

Salamis,

V. Hic etsi male rem gesserat, tamen tantas habebat reliquias copiarum, ut etiam tum iis opprimere posset hostes. Iterum ab eodem gradu depulsus est. Nam Themistocles, verens ne bellare perseveraret, certiozem eum fecit id agi ut pons, quem ille in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur ac reditu in Asiam excluderetur; idque ei persuasit. Itaque qua sex mensibus iter fecerat, eadem minus diebus triginta in Asiam reversus est seque a Themistocle non superatum, sed conservatum iudicavit. Sic unius viri prudentia Graecia liberata est Europaeque succubuit Asia. Haec est altera victoria, quae cum Marathonio possit comparari tropaeo. Nam pari modo apud Salamina parvo numero navium maxima post hominum memoriam classis est devicta.

Xerxes

Greece.

VI. Magnus hoc bello Themistocles fuit neque minor in pace. Cum enim Phalerico portu neque magno neque bono Athenienses uterentur, huius consilio triplex Piraei portus constitutus est iisque moenibus circumdatus, ut ipsam urbem dignitate aequiperaret, utilitate superaret.

Piraeus

Athens

Idem muros Atheniensium restituit praecipuo suo periculo. Namque Lacedaemonii causam idoneam nacti propter barbarorum excursiones, qua negarent oportere extra Peloponnesum ullam urbem muros habere, ne essent loca munita quae hostes possiderent, Athenienses aedificantes prohibere sunt conati. Hoc longe alio spectabat atque videri volebant. Athenienses enim duabus victoriis, Marathonia et Salaminia, tantam gloriam apud omnes gentes erant consecuti, ut intellegerent Lacedaemonii de principatu sibi cum iis certamen fore. Quare eos quam infirmissimos esse volebant. Postquam autem audierunt muros strui, legatos Athenas miserunt qui id fieri vetarent. His praesentibus desierunt ac se de ea re legatos ad eos missuros dixerunt. Hanc legationem suscepit Themistocles et solus primo profectus est : reliqui legati ut tum exirent, cum satis alti tuendo muri exstructi viderentur, praecepit : interim omnes, servi atque liberi, opus facerent neque ulli loco parcerent, sive sacer sive privatus esset sive publicus, et undique, quod idoneum ad muniendum putarent, congererent. Quo factum est ut Atheniensium muri ex sacellis sepulchrisque constarent.

VII. Themistocles autem, ut Lacedaemonem venit, adire ad magistratus noluit et dedit operam, ut quam longissime tempus duceret, causam interponens se collegas expectare. Cum Lacedaemonii quererentur opus nihilo minus fieri eumque in ea re conari fallere, interim reliqui legati sunt consecuti. A quibus cum audisset non multum superesse munitionis, ad ephoros Lacedaemoniorum accessit, penes quos summum erat imperium, atque apud eos contendit falsa iis esse delata : quare aequum esse illos viros bonos nobilesque mittere, quibus fides haberetur, qui rem explorarent : interea se obsidem retinerent. Gestus est ei mos, tresque legati functi summis honoribus Athenas missi sunt. Cum his collegas suos Themistocles iussit proficisci iisque praedixit, ut ne prius Lacedaemoniorum legatos dimitterent quam ipse esset remissus. Hos postquam Athenas pervenisse ratus est, ad magistratus senatumque Lacedaemoniorum adiit et apud eos liberrime professus est: Athenienses suo consilio, quod communi iure gentium facere possent, deos publicos suosque patrios ac penates, quo facilius ab hoste possent defendere, muris saepsisse, neque in eo quod inutile esset Graeciae fecisse. Nam illorum urbem ut propugnaculum oppositum esse barbaris, apud quam iam bis classes regias fecisse naufragium. Lacedaemonios autem male et iniuste facere, qui id potius intuerentur quod ipsorum dominationi quam quod universae Graeciae utile esset. Quare, si suos legatos recipere vellent, quos Athenas miserant, se remitterent, cum aliter illos nunquam in patriam essent recepturi.

VIII. Tamen non effugit civium suorum invidiam. Namque ob eundem timorem, quo damnatus erat Mil-^{Themis-}tiades, testularum suffragiis e civitate eiectus Argos^{toles} habitatum concessit. Hic cum propter multas virtutes^{ostracised,} magna cum dignitate viveret, Lacedaemonii legatos^{B.C. 471.} Athenas miserunt, qui eum absentem accusarent, quod societatem cum rege Perse ad Graeciam opprimendam fecisset. Hoc crimine absens prodicionis damnatus est. Id ut audivit, quod non satis tutum se Argis videbat, Corcyram demigravit. Ibi cum eius principes animadvertisset timere, ne propter se bellum iis Lacedaemonii et Athenienses indicerent, ad Admetum, Molossum regem, cum quo ei hospitium erat, confugit. Huc cum venisset^{Withdraws} et in praesentia rex abesset, quo maiore religione se^{to Coreyra} receptum tueretur, filiam eius parvulam arripuit et cum^{and to} ea se in sacrarium, quod summa colebatur caerimonia,^{Epirus,} coniecit. Inde non prius egressus est, quam rex eum^{B.C. 466} data dextra in fidem reciperet, quam praestitit. Nam cum ab Atheniensibus et Lacedaemoniis exposceretur publice, supplicem non prodidit monuitque ut consuleret sibi: difficile enim esse in tam propinquo loco tuto eum versari. Itaque Pydnam eum deduci iussit et quod satis esset praesidii dedit. Hic in navem omnibus ignotus nautis escendit. Quae cum tempestate maxima Naxum ferretur, ubi tum Atheniensium erat exercitus, sensit Themistocles, si eo pervenisset, sibi esse pereundum. Hac necessitate coactus domino navis, quis sit, aperit, multa pollicens, si se conservasset. At ille clarissimi viri captus misericordia diem noctemque procul ab insula in salo navem tenuit in ancoris neque quemquam ex ea exire passus est. Inde Ephesum pervenit ibique Themistoclem exponit : cui ille pro meritis postea gratiam rettulit.

Themistocles at the court of Artaxerxes, B.C. 465.

IX. Scio plerosque ita scripsisse, Themistoclen Xerxe regnante in Asiam transisse. Sed ego potissimum Thucydidi credo, quod et aetate proximus de iis, qui illorum temporum historiam reliquerunt, et eiusdem civitatis fuit. Is autem ait ad Artaxerxen eum venisse atque his verbis epistulam misisse : "Themistocles veni ad te, qui plurima mala omnium Graiorum in domum tuam intuli, quam diu mihi necesse fuit adversum patrem tuum bellare patriamque meam defendere. Idem multo plura bona feci, postquam in tuto ipse et ille in periculo esse coepit. Nam cum in Asiam reverti vellet, proelio apud Salamina facto, litteris eum certiosem feci, id agi ut pons, quem in Hellesponto fecerat, dissolveretur atque ab hostibus circumiretur : quo nuntio ille periculo est liberatus. Nunc autem confugi ad te exagitatus a cuncta Graecia, tuam petens amicitiam : quam si ero adeptus, non minus me bonum amicum habebis quam fortem inimicum ille expertus est. Te autem rogo, ut de iis rebus, quas tecum colloqui volo, annum mihi tempus des eoque transacto ad te venire patiaris."

The Persian king receives him kindly and assigns him three cities for his support.

X. Huius rex animi magnitudinem admirans cupiensque talem virum sibi conciliari veniam dedit. Ille omne illud tempus litteris sermonique Persarum dedit : quibus adeo eruditus est, ut multo commodius dicatur apud regem verba fecisse quam ii poterant, qui in Perside erant nati. Hic cum multa regi esset pollicitus gratissimumque illud, si suis uti consiliis vellet, illum Graeciam bello oppressurum, magnis muneribus ab Artaxerxe donatus in Asiam rediit domiciliumque Magnesiae sibi constituit. Namque hanc urbem ei rex donarat, his quidem verbis, quae ei panem praeberet (ex qua regione quinquagena talenta quotannis redibant), Lampsacum autem, unde vinum sumeret, Myunta, ex qua obsonium haberet.

Huius ad nostram memoriam monumenta manserunt duo: sepulchrum prope oppidum, in quo est sepultus, ^{His death (about B.C. 449).} statua in foro Magnesiae. De cuius morte multis modis apud plerosque scriptum est, sed nos eundem potissimum Thucydidem auctorem probamus, qui illum ait Magnesiae morbo mortuum neque negat fuisse famam, venenum sua sponte sumpsisse, cum se, quae regi de Graecia opprimenda pollicitus esset, praestare posse desperaret. Idem ossa eius clam in Attica ab amicis sepulta, quoniam legibus non concederetur, quod prodicionis esset damnatus, memoriae prodidit.

ARISTIDES.

I. Aristides, Lysimachi filius, Atheniensis, aequalis fere fuit Themistocli atque cum eo de principatu contendit: namque obtrectarunt inter se. In his autem ^{Character of Aristides Ostracised by Themistocles. B.C. 484.} cognitum est, quanto antestaret eloquentia innocentiae. Quamquam enim adeo excellebat Aristides abstinentia, ut unus post hominum memoriam, quem quidem nos audierimus, cognomine Iustus sit appellatus, tamen a Themistocle collabefactus testula illa exilio decem annorum multatus est. Qui quidem cum intellegeret reprimi concitatam multitudinem non posse, cedensque animadvertisset quendam scribentem, ut patria pelleretur, quaesisse ab eo dicitur, quare id faceret aut quid Aristides commisisset, cur tanta poena dignus duceretur. Cui ille respondit se ignorare Aristiden, sed sibi non placere, quod tam cupide laborasset, ut praeter ceteros Iustus appellaretur. Hic decem annorum legitimam poenam non pertulit. Nam postquam Xerxes in Graeciam descendit, sexto fere anno quam erat expulsus, populi scito in patriam restitutus est.

II. Interfuit autem pugnae navali apud Salamina, quae facta est prius quam poena liberaretur. Idem praetor fuit Atheniensium apud Plataeas in proelio, quo barbarorum exercitus fusus Mardoniusque interfectus est. Neque aliud est ullum huius in re militari illustre factum quam huius imperii memoria, iustitiae vero et aequitatis et innocentiae multa: in primis, quod eius aequitate factum est, cum in communi classe esset Graeciae simul cum Pausania, quo duce Mardonius erat fugatus, ut summa imperii maritimi ab Lacedaemoniis transferretur ad Athenienses: namque ante id tempus et mari et terra duces erant Lacedaemonii. Tum autem et intemperantia Pausaniae et iustitia factum est Aristidis, ut omnes fere civitates Graeciae ad Atheniensium societatem se applicarent et adversus barbaros hos duces deligerent sibi.

III. Quos quo facilius repellerent, si forte bellum renovare conarentur, ad classes aedificandas exercitusque comparandos quantum pecuniae quaeque civitas daret, Aristides delectus est qui constitueret, eiusque arbitrio quadringena et sexagena talenta quotannis Delum sunt collata: id enim commune aerarium esse voluerunt. Quae omnis pecunia postero tempore Athenas translata est. Hic qua fuerit abstinentia nullum est certius indicium, quam quod, cum tantis rebus praefuisset, in tanta paupertate decessit, ut quî efferretur vix reliquerit. Quo factum est ut filiae eius publice alerentur et de communi aerario dotibus datis collocarentur. Decessit autem fere post annum quartum, quam Themistocles Athenis erat expulsus.

HANNIBAL.

I. Hannibal, Hamilcaris filius, Karthaginiensis.

The greatest of all military commanders.

Si verum est, quod nemo dubitat, ut populus Romanus omnes gentes virtute superarit, non est infitiandum Hannibalem tanto praestitisse ceteros imperatores prudentia, quanto populus Romanus antecedit fortitudine cunctas nationes. Nam quotienscumque cum eo congressus est in Italia, semper discessit superior. Quod nisi domi civium suorum invidia debilitatus esset, Romanos videtur superare potuisse. Sed multorum obtrectatio devicit unius virtutem.

Hic autem velut hereditate relictum odium paternum erga Romanos sic conservavit, ut prius animam quam id deposuerit, qui quidem, cum patria pulsus esset et alienarum opum indigeret, numquam destiterit animo bellare cum Romanis.

Continues his father's enmity to Rome.

II. Nam ut omittam Philippum, quem absens hostem reddidit Romanis, omnium iis temporibus potentissimus rex Antiochus fuit. Hunc tanta cupiditate incendit bellandi, ut usque a rubro mari arma conatus sit inferre Italiae. Ad quem cum legati venissent Romani, qui de eius voluntate explorarent darentque operam consiliis clandestinis, ut Hannibalem in suspicionem regi adducerent, tamquam ab ipsis corruptum alia atque antea sentire, neque id frustra fecissent, idque Hannibal comperisset seque ab interioribus consiliis segregari vidisset, tempore dato adiit ad regem, eique cum multa de fide sua et odio in Romanos commemorasset, hoc adiunxit :

“ Pater meus,” inquit, “ Hamilcar, puerulo me, utpote non amplius novem annos nato, in Hispaniam imperator proficiscens Karthagine, Iovi optimo maximo hostias immolavit ; quae divina res dum conficiebatur, quaesivit a me vellemne secum in castra proficisci. Id cum libenter accepissem atque ab eo petere coepissem ne dubitaret ducere, tum ille, ‘ Faciam,’ inquit, ‘ si mihi fidem quam postulo dederis.’ Simul me ad aram adduxit, apud quam sacrificare instituerat, eamque ceteris remotis tenentem iurare iussit, numquam me in amicitia cum Romanis fore. Id ego iusiurandum patri datum usque ad hanc aetatem ita conservavi, ut nemini dubium esse debeat, quin reliquo tempore eadem mente sim futurus. Quare si quid amice de Romanis cogitabis, non imprudenter feceris, si me celaris : cum quidem bellum parabis, te ipsum frustra-beris, si non me in eo principem posueris.”

Swears eternal hatred of Rome before the altar.

imperatore suffecto, equitatu omni praefuit. Hoc quoque interfecto exercitus summam imperii ad eum detulit. Id Karthaginem delatum publice comprobatum est. Sic Hannibal minus quinque et viginti annis natus imperator factus proximo triennio omnes gentes Hispaniae bello subegit: Saguntum, foederatam civitatem, vi expugnavit, tres exercitus maximos comparavit. Ex his unum in Africam misit, alterum cum Hasdrubale fratre in Hispania reliquit, tertium in Italiam secum duxit.

Ad Alpes posteaquam venit, quae Italiam ab Gallia seiungunt, quas nemo unquam cum exercitu ante eum praeter Herculem Graium transierat (quo facto is hodie saltus Graius appellatur), Alpico conantes prohibere transitu concidit, loca patefecit, itinera muniit, effecit ut ea elephantus ornatus ire posset, qua antea unus homo inermis vix poterat repere. Hac copias traduxit in Italiamque pervenit.

IV. Confluxerat apud Rhodanum cum P. Cornelio Scipione consule cumque pepulerat. Cum hoc eodem Clastidii apud Padum decernit sauciumque inde ac fugatum dimittit. Tertio idem Scipio cum collega Tiberio Longo apud Trebiam adversus eum venit. Cum iis manum conseruit: utrosque profligavit. Inde per Ligures Appenninum transiit, petens Etruriam. Hoc itinere adeo gravi morbo adficitur oculorum, ut postea numquam dextro aequae bene usus sit. Qua valetudine cum etiam tantum premeretur lecticaque ferretur, C. Flaminium consulem apud Trasumenum cum exercitu insidiis circumventum occidit, neque multo post C. Centenium praetorem cum delecta manu saltus occupantem. Hinc in Apuliam pervenit. Ibi obviam ei venerunt duo consules, C. Terentius et L. Aemilius. Utriusque exercitus uno proelio fugavit, Paulum consulem occidit et aliquot praeterea consulares, in iis Cn. Servilium Geminum, qui superiore anno fuerat consul.

V. Hac pugna pugnata Roman profectus est nullo resistente. In propinquis urbi montibus moratus est. Cum aliquot ibi dies castra habuisset et Capuam revertetur, Q. Fabius Maximus, dictator Romanus, in agro Falerno ei se obiecit. Hic clausus locorum angustiis noctu sine ullo detrimento exercitus se expedivit Fabioque, callidissimo imperatori, dedit verba. Namque obducta nocte sarmenta in cornibus iuvenorum deligata incendit eiusque generis multitudinem magnam dispalatam immisit. Quo repentino obiecto visu tantum terrorem iniecit exercitui Romanorum, ut egredi extra vallum nemo sit ausus.

Ruse by which he escaped from Fabius. B.C. 216.

Hanc post rem gestam non ita multis diebus M. Minucium Rufum, magistrum equitum pari ac dictatorem imperio, dolo productum in proelium fugavit. Tiberium Sempronium Gracchum, iterum consulem, in Lucanis absens in insidias inductum sustulit. M. Claudium Marcellum, quinquies consulem, apud Venusiam pari modo interfecit. Longum est omnia enumerare proelia. Quare hoc unum satis erit dictum, ex quo intellegi possit, quantus ille fuerit : quamdiu in Italia fuit, nemo ei in acie restitit, nemo adversus eum post Cannensem pugnam in campo castra posuit.

Other victories.

VI. Hinc invictus patriam defensum revocatus bellum gessit adversus P. Scipionem, filium eius Scipionis, quem ipse primo apud Rhodanum, iterum apud Padum, tertio apud Trebiam fugarat. Cum hoc exhaustis iam patriae facultatibus cupivit inpraesentiarum bellum componere, quo valentior postea congredereetur. In colloquium convenit : condiciones non convenerunt. Post id factum paucis diebus apud Zamam cum eodem conflixit : pulsus (incredibile dictu) biduo et duabus noctibus Hadrumetum pervenit, quod abest ab Zama circiter millia passuum trecenta. In hac fuga Numidae, qui simul cum eo ex acie excesserant, insidiati sunt ei : quos non solum effugit, sed etiam ipsos oppressit. Hadrumeti reliquos e fuga collegit : novis dilectibus paucis diebus multos contraxit.

VII. Cum in apparando acerrime esset occupatus, Karthaginienses bellum cum Romanis composuerunt. Ille nihilo secius exercitui postea praefuit resque in Africa gessit usque ad P. Sulpicium C. Aurelium consules. His enim magistratibus legati Karthaginienses Romam venerunt, qui senatui populoque Romano gratias agerent, quod cum iis pacem fecissent, ob eamque rem corona aurea eos donarent simulque peterent, ut obsides eorum Fregellis essent captivique redderentur. His ex senatus consulto responsum est : munus eorum gratum acceptumque esse ; obsides, quo loco rogarent, futuros, captivos non remissuros, quod Hannibalem, cuius opera susceptum bellum foret, inimicissimum nomini Romano, etiam nunc cum imperio apud exercitum haberent itemque fratrem eius Magonem. Hoc responso Karthaginienses cognito Hannibalem domum et Magonem revocarunt. Huc ut rediit, rex factus est, postquam imperator fuerat, anno secundo et vicesimo : ut enim Romae consules, sic Karthagine quotannis annui bini reges creabantur. In eo magistratu pari diligentia se Hannibal praebuit, ac fuerat in bello. Namque effecit, ex novis vectigalibus non solum ut esset pecunia, quae Romanis ex foedere penderetur, sed etiam superesset, quae in aerario reponeretur.

Deinde anno post M. Claudio L. Furio consulibus, Roma legati Karthaginem venerunt. Hos Hannibal ratus sui exposcendi gratia missos, priusquam iis senatus daretur, navem ascendit clam atque in Syriam ad Antiochum profugit. Hac re palam facta Poeni naves duas, quae eum comprehenderent, si possent consequi, miserunt : bona eius publicarunt, domum a fundamentis disiecerunt, ipsum exulem iudicarunt.

Hannibal and Antiochus.

VIII. At Hannibal anno tertio, postquam domo profugerat, L. Cornelio Q. Minucio consulibus, cum quinque navibus Africam accessit in finibus Cyrenaeorum, si forte Karthaginienses ad bellum Antiochi spe fiduciaque inducerentur, cui iam persuaserat, ut cum exercitibus in Italiam proficisceretur. Huc Magonem fratrem excivit. Id ubi Poeni resciverunt, Magonem eadem, qua fratrem, absentem adfecerunt poena. Illi desperatis rebus cum solvissent naves ac vela ventis dedissent, Hannibal ad Antiochum pervenit. De Magonis interitu duplex memoria prodita est : namque alii naufragio, alii a servulis ipsius interfectum eum scriptum reliquerunt.

Antiochus autem, si tam in gerendo bello consiliis eius parere voluisset, quam in suscipiendo instituerat, propius Tiberi quam Thermopylis de summa imperii dimicasset. Quem etsi multa stulte conari videbat, tamen nulla deseruit in re. Praefuit paucis navibus, quas ex Syria iussus erat in Asiam ducere, iisque adversus Rhodiorum classem in Pamphylia mari conflixit. Quo cum multitudine adversariorum sui superarentur, ipse, quo cornu rem gessit, fuit superior.

Defeated by the Rhodians, B.C. 191.

IX. Antiocho fugato, verens ne dederetur, quod sine dubio accidisset, si sui fecisset potestatem, Cretam ad Gortynios venit, ut ibi, quo se conferret, consideraret. Vidit autem vir omnium callidissimus in magno se fore periculo, nisi quid providisset, propter avaritiam Cretensium : magnam enim secum pecuniam portabat, de qua sciebat exisse famam. Itaque capit tale consilium. Amphoras complures complet plumbo, summas operit auro et argento. Has praesentibus principibus deponit in templo Dianae, simulans se suas fortunas illorum fidei credere. His in errorem inductis, statuas aëneas, quas secum portabat, omni sua pecunia complet easque in propatulo domi abicit. Gortynii templum magna cura custodiunt, non tam a ceteris quam ab Hannibale, ne ille inscientibus iis tolleret secumque duceret.

Hannibal in Crete preserves his treasure by a stratagem.

X. Sic conservatis suis rebus Poenus, illis Cretensibus omnibus, ad Prusiam in Pontum pervenit. Apud quem eodem animo fuit erga Italiam, neque aliud quidquam egit quam regem armavit et exercuit adversus Romanos. Quem cum videret domesticis opibus minus esse robustum, conciliabat ceteros reges, adiungebat bellicosas nationes.

terra. Sed utrobique Eumenes plus valebat propter Romanorum societatem : quo magis cupiebat eum Hannibal opprimi : quem si removisset, faciliora sibi cetera fore arbitrabatur. Ad hunc interficiendum talem iniit rationem. Classe paucis diebus erant decreturi : superabatur navium multitudine : dolo erat pugnandum, cum par non esset armis.

Imperavit quam plurimas venenatas serpentes vivas colligi easque in vasa fictilia conici. Harum cum effecisset magnam multitudinem, die ipso, quo facturus erat navale proelium, classarios convocat iisque praecipit, omnes ut in unam Eumenis regis concurrant navem, a ceteris tantum satis habeant se defendere. Id illos facile serpentium multitudine consecuturos. Rex autem in qua navi veheretur, ut scirent, se facturum : quem si aut cepissent aut interfecissent, magno iis pollicetur praemio fore.

XI. Tali cohortatione militum facta classis ab utrisque in proelium deducitur. Quarum acie constituta, priusquam signum pugnae daretur, Hannibal, ut palam faceret suis, quo loco Eumenes esset, tabellarium in scapha cum caduceo mittit. Qui ubi ad naves adversariorum pervenit epistulamque ostendens se regem professus est quaerere, statim ad Eumenem deductus est, quod nemo dubitabat, quin aliquid de pace esset scriptum. Tabellarius, ducis navi declarata suis, eodem unde erat egressus se recepit. At Eumenes soluta epistula nihil in ea reperit, nisi quae ad irridendum eum pertinerent. Cuius etsi causam mirabatur neque reperiēbat, tamen proelium statim committere non dubitavit. Horum in concursu Bithynii Hannibalis praecepto universi navem Eumenis adoriuntur.

Quorum vim rex cum sustinere non posset, fuga salutem petit : quam consecutus non esset, nisi intra sua praesidia se recepisset, quae in proximo litore erant collocata. Reliquae Pergamenae naves cum adversarios premerent acrius, repente in eas vasa fictilia, de quibus supra mentionem fecimus, conici coepta sunt. Quae iacta initio risum pugnantibus concitarunt, neque quare id fieret poterat intellegi. Postquam autem naves suas oppletas conspexerunt serpentibus, nova re perterriti, cum, quid potissimum vitarent, non viderent, puppes verterunt seque ad sua castra nautica rettulerunt. Sic Hannibal consilio arma Pergamenorum superavit, neque tum solum, sed saepe alias pedestribus copiis pari prudentia pepulit adversarios.

XII. Quae dum in Asia geruntur, accidit casu ut legati Prusiae Romae apud T. Quintium Flamininum consularem cenarent, atque ibi de Hannibale mentione facta ex iis unus diceret eum in Prusiae regno esse. Id postero die Flamininus senatui detulit. Patres conscripti, qui Hannibale vivo numquam se sine insidiis futuros existimarent, legatos in Bithyniam miserunt, in iis Flamininum, qui ab rege peterent, ne inimicissimum suum secum haberet sibi dederet. His Prusias negare ausus non est: illud recusavit, ne id a se fieri postularent, quod adversus ius hospitii esset: ipsi, si possent, comprehenderent: locum, ubi esset, facile inventuros.

The Romans demand his surrender.

Hannibal enim uno loco se tenebat in castello, quod ei a rege datum erat muneri, idque sic aedificarat, ut in omnibus partibus aedificii exitus haberet, scilicet verens ne usu veniret, quod accidit. Huc cum legati Romanorum venissent ac multitudine domum eius circumdedissent, puer ab ianua prospiciens Hannibali dixit plures praeter consuetudinem armatos apparere. Qui imperavit ei, ut omnes fores aedificii circumiret ac propere sibi nuntiaret, num eodem modo undique obsideretur. Puer cum celeriter, quid esset, renuntiasset omnesque exitus occupatos ostendisset, sensit id non fortuito factum, sed se peti neque sibi diutius vitam esse retinendam. Quam ne alieno arbitrio dimitteret, memor pristinorum virtutum venenum, quod semper secum habere consuevit, sumpsit.

CAESAR, DE BELLO GALLICO, B. IV, B. V, CH. 1-23.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

In the following selections from Caesar's great work on the conquest of Gaul, he narrates :

(1) The story of his successful attempt to prevent the German tribes, who held the right bank of the Rhine, from crossing the river and settling upon the left or Gallic bank.

(2) The story of his First Invasion of Britain in the end of August, B.C. 55.

(3) The story of his Second Invasion of Britain on July 20th, B.C. 54.

C. IULI CAESARIS
COMMENTARIORUM
DE BELLO GALLICO
LIBER QUARTUS.

I. Ea, quae secuta est, hieme, qui fuit annus Gneio Pompeio, Marco Crasso consulibus, Usipetes Germani et item Tencteri magna cum multitudine hominum flumen Rhenum transierunt, non longe a mari, quo Rhenus influit. Causa transeundi fuit, quod ab Suebis complures annos exagitati bello premebantur et agricultura prohibebantur. Sueborum gens est longe maxima et bellicosissima Germanorum omnium. Hi centum pagos habere dicuntur, ex quibus quotannis singula millia armatorum bellandi causa ex finibus educunt. Reliqui, qui domi manserunt, se atque illos alunt. Hi rursus invicem anno post in armis sunt; illi domi remanent. Sic neque agricultura nec ratio atque usus belli intermittitur. Sed privati ac separati agri apud eos nihil est, neque longius anno remanere uno in loco incolendi causa licet. Neque multum frumento, sed maximam partem lacte atque pecore vivunt multumque sunt in venationibus; quae res et cibi genere et cotidiana exercitatione et libertate vitae, quod a pueris nullo officio aut disciplina assuefacti nihil omnino contra voluntatem faciant, et vires alit et immani corporum magnitudine homines efficit. Atque in eam se consuetudinem adduxerunt, ut locis frigidissimis neque vestitus praeter pelles haberent quicquam, quarum propter exiguitatem magna est corporis pars aperta, et lavarentur in fluminibus.

Usipetes and Tencteri migrate to Gaul, pressed by the Suebi.

Customs of the Suebi.

II. Mercatoribus est ad eos aditus magis eo, ut, quae bello ceperint, quibus vendant, habeant, quam quo ullam rem ad se importari desiderent. Quin etiam iumentis, quibus maxime Galli delectantur quaeque impenso parant pretio, Germani importatis non utuntur, sed quae sunt apud eos nata, prava atque deformia, haec cotidiana exercitatione summi ut sint laboris efficiunt. Equestribus proeliis saepe ex equis desiliunt ac pedibus proeliantur, equosque eodem remanere vestigio assuefecerunt, ad quos se celeriter, cum usus est, recipiunt; neque eorum moribus turpius quicquam aut inertius habetur quam ephippiis uti. Itaque ad quemvis numerum ephippiatorum equitum quamvis pauci adire audent. Vinum ad se omnino importari non sinunt, quod ea re ad laborem ferendum remollescere homines atque effeminari arbitrantur.

The Suebi reduce the Ubii to a tributary state.

III. Publice maximam putant esse laudem, quam latissime a suis finibus vacare agros: hac re significari magnum numerum civitatum suam vim sustinere non posse. Itaque una ex parte a Suebis circiter millia passuum sexcenta agri vacare dicuntur. Ad alteram partem succedunt Ubii, quorum fuit civitas ampla atque florens, ut est captus Germanorum, et paulo quam sunt eiusdem generis ceteri humaniores, propterea quod Rhenum attingunt, multumque ad eos mercatores ventitant, et ipsi propter propinquitatem Gallicis sunt moribus assuefacti. Hos cum Suebi multis saepe bellis experti propter amplitudinem gravitatemque civitatis finibus expellere non potuissent, tamen vectigales sibi fecerunt ac multo humiliores infirmioresque redegerunt.

The Menapii are surprised by the sudden attack of the Germans.

IV. In eadem causa fuerunt Usipetes et Tencteri, quos supra diximus, qui complures annos Sueborum vim sustinuerunt; ad extremum tamen agris expulsi et multis Germaniae locis triennium vagati ad Rhenum pervenerunt. Quas regiones Menapii incolebant et ad utramque ripam fluminis agros, aedificia vicosque habebant; sed tantae multitudinis aditu perterriti ex his aedificiis, quae trans flumen habuerant, demigraverunt et cis Rhenum dispositis praesidiis Germanos transire prohibebant. Illi omnia experti, cum neque vi contendere propter inopiam navium neque clam transire propter custodias Menapiorum possent, reverti se in suas sedes regionesque simulaverunt et tridui viam progressi rursus reverterunt atque omni hoc itinere una nocte equitatu confecto inscios inopinantesque Menapios oppresserunt, qui de Germanorum discessu per exploratores certiores facti sine metu trans Rhenum in suos vicos remigraverant. His interfectis navibusque eorum occupatis, priusquam ea pars Menapiorum, quae citra Rhenum erat, certior fieret, flumen transierunt atque omnibus eorum aedificiis occupatis reliquam partem hiemis se eorum copiis aluerunt.

V. His de rebus Caesar certior factus et infirmitatem Gallorum veritus, quod sunt in consiliis capiendis mobiles et novis plerumque rebus student, nihil his committendum existimavit. Est enim hoc Gallicae consuetudinis, uti et viatores etiam invitos consistere cogant et, quod quisque eorum de quaque re audierit aut cognoverit, quaerant, et mercatores in oppidis vulgus circumstiat quibusque ex regionibus veniant quasque ibi res cognoverint, pronuntiare cogant. His rumoribus atque auditionibus permoti de summis saepe rebus consilia ineunt, quorum eos e vestigio poenitere necesse est, cum incertis rumoribus serviant, et plerique ad voluntatem eorum ficta respondeant.

The fickle character of the Gauls.

VI. Qua consuetudine cognita Caesar, ne graviori bello occurreret, maturius, quam consuerat, ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, ea, quae fore suspicatus erat, facta cognovit: missas legationes a nonnullis civitatibus ad Germanos invitatosque eos, uti ab Rheno discederent, omniaque, quae postulassent, ab se fore parata. Qua spe adducti Germani latius iam vagabantur et in fines Eburonum et Condrusorum, qui sunt Trevirorum clientes, pervenerant. Principibus Galliae evocatis Caesar ea, quae cognoverat, dissimulanda sibi existimavit eorumque animis permulsis et confirmatis equitatuque imperato bellum cum Germanis gerere constituit.

Caesar discovers intrigues between the Gauls and Germans; calls a meeting of the Gallic chiefs and gets their aid against the Germans.

VII. Re frumentaria comparata equitibusque delectis iter in ea loca facere coepit, quibus in locis esse Germanos audiebat. A quibus cum paucorum dierum iter abesset, legati ab his venerunt, quorum haec fuit oratio : Germanos neque priores populo Romano bellum inferre neque tamen recusare, si lacesantur, quin armis contendant, quod Germanorum consuetudo haec sit a maioribus tradita, quicumque bellum inferant, resistere neque deprecari. Haec tamen dicere, venisse invitos, eictos domo ; si suam gratiam Romani velint, posse iis utiles esse amicos : vel sibi agros attribuant vel patiantur eos tenere, quos armis possederint ; sese unis Suebis concedere, quibus ne dii quidem immortales pares esse possint : reliquum quidem in terris esse neminem, quem non superare possint.

The German deputies negotiate with Caesar

VIII. Ad haec Caesar quae visum est respondit ; sed exitus fuit orationis : Sibi nullam cum his amicitiam esse posse, si in Gallia remanerent ; neque verum esse, qui suos fines tueri non potuerint, alienos occupare ; neque ullos in Gallia vacare agros, qui dari tantae praesertim multitudini sine iniuria possint ; sed licere, si velint, in Ubiorum finibus considerare, quorum sint legati apud se et de Sueborum iniuriis querantur et a se auxilium petant : hoc se Ubiis imperaturum.

IX. Legati haec se ad suos relatueros dixerunt et re deliberata post diem tertium ad Caesarem reversuros : interea ne propius se castra moveret, petierunt. Ne id quidem Caesar ab se impetrari posse dixit. Cognoverat enim magnam partem equitatus ab iis aliquot diebus ante praedandi frumentandique causa ad Ambivaritos trans Mosam missam : hos exspectari equites atque eius rei causa moram interponi arbitrabatur.

Geography

Rhine.

X. Mosa profluit ex monte Vosego, qui est in finibus Lingonum, et parte quadam ex Rheno recepta, quae appellatur Vacalus, insulam efficit Batavorum, neque longius ab eo millibus passuum octoginta in Oceanum influit. Rhenus autem oritur ex Lepontiis, qui Alpes incolunt, et longo spatio per fines Nantuatum, Helvetiorum, Sequanorum, Mediomatricum, Tribocorum, Treverorum citatus fertur et, ubi Oceano appropinquavit, in plures defluit partes multis ingentibusque insulis effectis, quarum pars magna a feris barbarisque nationibus incolitur, ex quibus sunt qui piscibus atque ovis avium vivere existimantur, multisque capitibus in Oceanum influit.

XI. Caesar cum ab hoste non amplius passuum duodecim millibus abesset, ut erat constitutum, ad eum legati revertuntur; qui in itinere congressi magnopere, ne longius progrediretur, orabant. Cum id non impetrassent, petebant, uti ad eos equites, qui agmen antecessissent, praemitteret eosque pugna prohiberet, sibi ut potestatem faceret in Ubios legatos mittendi; quorum si principes ac senatus sibi iureiurando fidem fecissent, ea condicione, quae a Caesare ferretur, se usuros ostendebant: ad has res conficiendas sibi tridui spatium daret. Haec omnia Caesar eodem illo pertinere arbitrabatur, ut tridui mora interposita equites eorum, qui abessent, reverterentur; tamen sese non longius millibus passuum quatuor aquationis causa processurum eo die dixit: huc postero die quam frequentissimi convenirent, ut de eorum postulatis cognosceret. Interim ad praefectos, qui cum omni equitatu antecesserant, mittit qui nuntiarent, ne hostes proelio lacesserent et, si ipsi lacesserentur, sustinerent, quoad ipse cum exercitu propius accessisset.

XII. At hostes, ubi primum nostros equites conspexerunt, quorum erat quinque millium numerus, cum ipsi non amplius octingentos equites haberent, quod ii, qui frumentandi causa ierant trans Mosam, nondum redierant, nihil timentibus nostris, quod legati eorum paulo ante a Caesare discesserant atque is dies indutiis erat ab eis petitus, impetu facto celeriter nostros perturbaverunt; rursus resistantibus nostris, consuetudine sua ad pedes desiluerunt, subfossisque equis compluribusque nostris deiectis reliquos in fugam coniecerunt atque ita perterritos egerunt, ut non prius fuga desisterent, quam in conspectum agminis nostri venissent. In eo proelio ex equitibus nostris interficiuntur quatuor et septuaginta, in his vir fortissimus, Piso Aquitanus, amplissimo genere natus, cuius avus in civitate sua regnum obtinuerat amicus ab senatu nostro appellatus. Hic cum fratri intercluso ab hostibus auxilium ferret, illum ex periculo eripuit, ipse equo vulnerato deiectus, quoad potuit, fortissime restitit; cum circumventus multis vulneribus acceptis cecidisset, atque id frater, qui iam proelio excesserat, procul animadvertisset, incitato equo se hostibus obtulit atque interfectus est.

The deputies of the enemy apologize for the attack; they are detained. Caesar orders a general advance, XIII. Hoc facto proelio Caesar neque iam sibi legatos audiendos neque condiciones accipiendas arbitratur ab iis, qui per dolum atque insidias, petita pace, ultro bellum intulissent: expectare vero, dum hostium copiae auferentur equitatusque reverteretur, summae dementiae esse iudicabat; et, cognita Gallorum infirmitate, quantum iam apud eos hostes uno proelio auctoritatis essent consecuti sentiebat; quibus ad consilia capienda nihil spatii dandum existimabat. His constitutis rebus et consilio cum legatis et quaestore communicato, ne quem diem pugnae praetermitteret, opportunissime res accidit, quod postridie eius diei mane eadem et perfidia et simulatione usi Germani frequentes omnibus principibus maioribusque natu adhibitis ad eum in castra venerunt, simul, ut dicebatur, sui purgandi causa, quod contra atque esset dictum et ipsi petissent, proelium pridie commisissent, simul ut, si quid possent, de indutiis fallendo impetrarent. Quos sibi Caesar oblatos gavisus illos retineri iussit; ipse omnes copias castris eduxit equitatumque, quod recenti proelio perterritum esse existimabat, agmen subsequi iussit.

and surprises the Germans who after a brief resistance

XIV. Acie triplici instituta et celeriter octo millium itinere confecto prius ad hostium castra pervenit, quam, quid ageretur, Germani sentire possent. Qui omnibus rebus subito perterriti, et celeritate adventus nostri et discessu suorum, neque consilii habendi neque arma capiendi spatio dato perturbantur, copiasne adversus hostem ducere, an castra defendere, an fuga salutem petere praestaret. Quorum timor cum fremitu et concursu significaretur, milites nostri pristini diei perfidia incitati in castra irruerunt. Quo loco, qui celeriter arma capere potuerunt, paulisper nostris restiterunt atque inter carros impedimenta que proelium commiserunt : at reliqua multitudo puerorum mulierumque (nam cum omnibus suis domo excesserant Rhenumque transierant) passim fugere coepit ; ad quos consecrandos Caesar equitatum misit.

XV. Germani post tergum clamore audito, cum suos interfici viderent, armis abiectis signisque militaribus relictis se ex castris eiecerunt et cum ad confluentem Mosae et Rheni pervenissent, reliqua fuga desperata magno numero interfecto reliqui se in flumen praecipitaverunt atque ibi timore, lassitudine, vi fluminis oppressi perierunt. Nostri ad unum omnes incolumes perpaucis vulneratis ex tanti belli timore, cum hostium numerus capitum quadringentorum et triginta millium fuisset, se in castra receperunt. Caesar iis, quos in castris retinuerat, discedendi potestatem fecit. Illi supplicia cruciatusque Gallorum veriti, quorum agros vexaverant, remanere se apud eum velle dixerunt. His Caesar libertatem concessit.

XVI. Germanico bello confecto, multis de causis Caesar statuit sibi Rhenum esse transeundum ; quarum illa fuit iustissima, quod, cum videret Germanos tam facile impelli, ut in Galliam venirent, suis quoque rebus eos timere voluit, cum intellegerent et posse et audere populi Romani exercitum Rhenum transire. Accessit etiam, quod illa pars equitatus Usipetum et Tencterorum, quam supra commemoravi praedandi frumentandique causa Mosam transisse neque proelio interfuisse, post fugam suorum se trans Rhenum in fines Sugamborum receperat seque cum iis coniunxerat. Ad quos cum Caesar nuntios misisset, qui postularent, eos, qui sibi Galliaeque bellum intulissent, sibi dederent, responderunt : Populi Romani imperium Rhenum finire : si se invito Germanos in Galliam transire non aequum existimaret, cur sui quicquam esse imperii aut potestatis trans Rhenum postularet ? Ubii autem, qui uni ex Transrhenanis ad Caesarem legatos miserant, amicitiam fecerant, obsides dederant, magnopere orabant, ut sibi auxilium ferret, quod graviter ab Suebis premerentur; vel, si id facere occupationibus reipublicae prohiberetur, exercitum modo Rhenum transportaret; id sibi ad auxilium spemque reliqui temporis satis futurum. Tantum esse nomen atque opinionem eius exercitus, Ariovisto pulso et hoc novissimo proelio facto etiam ad ultimas Germanorum nationes, uti opinione et amicitia populi Romani tuti esse possint. Navium magnam copiam ad transportandum exercitum pollicebantur.

In ten days the bridge is finished and Caesar crosses.

XVIII. Diebus decem, quibus materia coepta erat comportari, omni opere effecto, exercitus transducitur. Caesar ad utramque partem pontis firmo praesidio relicto in fines Sugambrorum contendit. Interim a compluribus civitatibus ad eum legati veniunt; quibus pacem atque amicitiam petentibus liberaliter respondit obsidesque ad se adduci iubet. At Sugambri, ex eo tempore, quo pons institui coeptus est, fuga comparata hortantibus iis, quos ex Tencteris atque Usipetibus apud se habebant, finibus suis excesserant suaque omnia exportaverant seque in solitudinem ac silvas abdiderant.

After laying waste the lands of the Germans, he returns to Gaul and destroys the bridge.

XIX. Caesar paucos dies in eorum finibus moratus omnibus vicis aedificiisque incensis frumentisque succisis se in fines Ubiorum recepit atque iis auxilium suum pollicitus, si ab Suebis premerentur, haec ab iis cognovit: Suebos, posteaquam per exploratores pontem fieri comperissent, more suo concilio habito, nuntios in omnes partes dimisisse, uti de oppidis demigrarent, liberos, uxores, suaque omnia in silvis deponerent, atque omnes, qui arma ferre possent, unum in locum convenirent: hunc esse delectum medium fere regionum earum, quas Suebi obtinerent: hic Romanorum adventum expectare atque ibi decertare constituisse. Quod ubi Caesar comperit, omnibus iis rebus confectis, quarum rerum causa transducere exercitum constituerat, ut Germanis metum iniceret, ut Sugambros ulcisceretur, ut Ubios obsidione liberaret, diebus omnino decem et octo trans Rhenum consumptis, satis et ad laudem et ad utilitatem profectum arbitratus, se in Galliam recepit pontemque rescidit.

XX. Exigua parte aestatis reliqua Caesar, etsi in his locis, quod omnis Gallia ad septentriones vergit, maturae sunt hiemes, tamen in Britanniam proficisci contendit, quod omnibus fere Gallicis bellis hostibus nostris inde subministrata auxilia intellegebat et, si tempus anni ad bellum gerendum deficeret, tamen magno sibi usui fore arbitrabatur, si modo insulam adisset et genus hominum perspexisset, loca, portus, aditus cognovisset: quae omnia fere Gallis erant incognita. Neque enim temere praeter mercatores illo adit quisquam, neque iis ipsis quicquam praeter oram maritimam atque eas regiones, quae sunt contra Gallias, notum est. Itaque vocatis ad se undique mercatoribus neque quanta esset insulae magnitudo, neque quae aut quantae nationes incolerent, neque quem usum belli haberent aut quibus institutis uterentur, neque qui essent ad maiorum navium multitudinem idonei portus, reperire poterat.

Caesar determines to invade Britain; his reasons for crossing.

XXI. Ad haec cognoscenda, priusquam periculum faceret, idoneum esse arbitratus Gaium Volusenum cum navi longa praemittit. Huic mandat, ut exploratis omnibus rebus ad se quam primum revertatur. Ipse cum omnibus copiis in Morinos proficiscitur, quod inde erat brevissimus in Britanniam traiectus. Huc naves undique ex finitimis regionibus et quam superiore aestate ad Veneticum bellum effecerat classem iubet convenire. Interim consilio eius cognito et per mercatores perlato ad Britannos a compluribus eius insulae civitatibus ad eum legati veniunt, qui polliceantur obsides dare atque imperio populi Romani obtemperare. Quibus auditis, liberaliter pollicitus hortatusque, ut in ea sententia permanerent, eos domum remittit et cum iis una Commium, quem ipse Atrebatibus superatis regem ibi constituerat, cuius et virtutem et consilium probabat et quem sibi fidelem arbitrabatur, cuiusque auctoritas in iis regionibus magni habebatur, mittit. Huic imperat, quas possit adeat civitates horteturque, ut populi Romani fidem sequantur, seque celeriter eo venturum nuntiet. Volusenus perspectis regionibus omnibus, quantum ei facultatis dari XXII. Dum in his locis Caesar navium parandarum causa moratur, ex magna parte Morinorum ad eum legati venerunt, qui se de superioris temporis consilio excusarent, quod homines barbari et nostrae consuetudinis imperiti bellum populo Romano fecissent, seque ea, quae imperasset, facturos pollicerentur. Hoc sibi satis opportune Caesar accidisse arbitratus, quod neque post tergum hostem relinquere volebat neque belli gerendi propter anni tempus facultatem habebat neque has tantularum rerum occupationes sibi Britanniae anteponendas iudicabat, magnum iis obsidum numerum imperat. Quibus adductis eos in fidem recepit. Navibus circiter octoginta onerariis coactis contractisque, quot satis esse ad duas transportandas legiones existimabat, quicquid praeterea navium longarum habebat, quaestori, legatis, praefectisque distribuit. Huc accedebant octodecim onerariae naves quae ex eo loco ab millibus passuum octo vento tenebantur, quominus in eundem portum pervenire possent; has equitibus distribuit. Reliquum exercitum Quinto Titurio Sabino et Lucio Aurunculeio Cottae legatis in Menapios atque in eos pagos Morinorum, ab quibus ad eum legati non venerant, deducendum dedit. Publium Sulpicium Rufum legatum cum eo praesidio, quod satis esse arbitrabatur, portum tenere iussit.

Britain.

XXIII. His constitutis rebus nactus idoneam ad navigandum tempestatem tertia fere vigilia solvit equitesque in ulteriorem portum progredi et naves conscendere et se sequi iussit. A quibus cum id paulo tardius esset administratum, ipse hora diei circiter quarta cum primis navibus Britanniam attigit atque ibi in omnibus collibus expositas hostium copias armatas conspexit. Cuius loci haec erat natura: adeo montibus angustis mare continebatur, uti ex locis superioribus in litus telum adici posset. Hunc ad egrediendum nequaquam idoneum arbitratus locum, dum reliquae naves eo convenirent, ad horam nonam in ancoris expectavit. Interim legatis tribunisque militum convocatis et quae ex Voluseno cognosset, et quae fieri vellet, ostendit monuitque, ut rei militaris ratio, maxime ut maritimae res postularent, ut quae celerem atque instabilem motum haberent, ad nutum et ad tempus omnes res ab iis administrarentur. His dimissis et ventum et aestum uno tempore nactus secundum dato signo et sublatis ancoris circiter millia passuum septem ab eo loco progressus aperto ac plano litore naves constituit.

XXIV. At barbari consilio Romanorum cognito praemisso equitatu et essedariis, quo plerumque genere in proeliis uti consuerunt, reliquis copiis subsecuti, nostros navibus egredi prohibebant. Erat ob has causas summa difficultas, quod naves propter magnitudinem nisi in alto constitui non poterant; militibus autem ignotis locis, impeditis manibus, magno et gravi armorum onere oppressis, simul et de navibus desiliendum et in fluctibus consistendum et cum hostibus erat pugnandum, cum illi aut ex arido aut paululum in aquam progressi, omnibus membris expeditis, notissimis locis audacter tela conicerent et equos insuefactos incitarent. Quibus rebus nostri perterriti atque huius omnino generis pugnae imperiti non eadem alacritate ac studio, quo in pedestribus uti proeliis consueverant, utebantur.

XXV. Quod ubi Caesar animadvertit, naves longas, quarum et species erat barbaris inusitator et motus ad usum expeditior, paulum removeri ab onerariis navibus et remis incitari et ad latus apertum hostium constitui atque inde fundis, sagittis, tormentis hostes propelli ac summoveri iussit; quae res magno usui nostris fuit. Nam et navium figura et remorum motu et inusitato genere tormentorum permoti barbari constiterunt ac paulum modo pedem retulerunt. Atque nostris militibus cunctantibus, maxime propter altitudinem maris, qui decimae legionis aquilam ferebat, contestatus deos, ut ea res legioni feliciter eveniret: "Desilite," inquit, "commiliones, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prodere: ego certe meum reipublicae atque imperatori officium praestitero.⁷ Hoc cum magna voce dixisset, ex navi se proiecit atque in hostes aquilam ferre coepit. Tum nostri cohortati inter se, ne tantum dedecus admitteretur, universi ex navi desiluerunt. Hos item ex proximis navibus cum conspexissent, subsecuti hostibus appropinquantur.

Rout of the enemy.

XXVI. Pugnatum est ab utrisque acriter. Nostri tamen, quod neque ordines servare neque firmiter insistere neque signa subsequi poterant, atque alius alia ex navi, quibuscumque signis occurrerat, se aggregabat, magno opere perturbabantur. Hostes vero notis omnibus vadis, ubi ex litore aliquos singulares ex navi egredientes conspexerant, incitatis equis impeditos adoriebantur, plures paucos circumsistebant, alii ab latere aperto in universos tela coniciebant. Quod cum animadvertisset Caesar, scaphas longarum navium, item speculatoria navigia militibus compleri iussit et, quos laborantes conspexerat, iis subsidia submittebat. Nostri, simul in arido constituerunt, suis omnibus consecutis in hostes impetum fecerunt atque eos in fugam dederunt neque longius prosequi potuerunt, quod equites cursum tenere atque insulam capere non potuerant. Hoc unum ad pristinam fortunam Caesari defuit.

Several states submit to Caesar.

XXVII. Hostes proelio superati, simul atque se ex fuga receperunt, statim ad Caesarem legatos de pace miserunt, obsides daturus quaeque imperasset sese facturos polliciti sunt. Una cum his legatis Commius Atrebas venit, quem supra demonstraveram a Caesare in Britanniam praemisum. Hunc illi e navi egressum, cum ad eos oratoris modo imperatoris mandata deferret, comprehenderant atque in vincula coniecerant: tum, proelio facto, remiserunt et in petenda pace eius rei culpam in multitudinem contulerunt et propter imprudentiam ut ignosceretur, petiverunt. Caesar questus, quod, cum ultro in continentem legatis missis pacem ab se petissent, bellum sine causa intulissent, ignoscere imprudentiae dixit obsidesque imperavit; quorum illi partem statim dederunt, partem ex longinquiore locis arcessitam paucis diebus sese daturos dixerunt. Interea suos remigrare in agros iusserunt, principesque undique convenire et se civitatesque suas Caesari commendare coeperunt.

XXVIII. His rebus pace confirmata post diem quartum, quam est in Britanniam ventum, naves octodecim, de quibus supra demonstratum est, quae equites sustulerant, ex superiore portu leni vento solverunt. Quae cum appropinquarent Britanniae et ex castris viderentur, tanta tempestas subito coorta est, ut nulla earum cursum tenere posset, sed aliae eodem, unde erant profectae, referrentur; aliae ad inferiorem partem insulae, quae est propius solis occasum, magno sui cum periculo deicerentur: quae tamen, ancoris iactis, cum fluctibus complerentur, necessario adversa nocte in altum provectae continentem petierunt.

Fate of the

XXIX. Eadem nocte accidit, ut esset luna plena, qui dies maritimos aestus maximos in Oceano efficere consuevit, nostrisque id erat incognitum. Ita uno tempore et longas naves, quibus Caesar exercitum transportandum curaverat quasque in aridum subduxerat, aestus compleverat, et onerarias, quae ad ancoras erant deligatae, tempestas afflictabat, neque ulla nostris facultas aut administrandi aut auxiliandi dabatur. Compluribus navibus fractis reliquae cum essent funibus, ancoris reliquisque armamentis amissis ad navigandum inutiles, magna, id quod necesse erat accidere, totius exercitus perturbatio facta est. Neque enim naves erant aliae, quibus reportari possent, et omnia deerant, quae ad reficiendas eas usui sunt, et, quod omnibus constabat hiemari in Gallia oportere, frumentum his in locis in hiemem provisum non erat.

XXX. Quibus rebus cognitis principes Britanniae, qui post proelium factum ad ea, quae iusserat Caesar, facienda convenerant, inter se collocti, cum equites et naves et frumentum Romanis deesse intellegerent et paucitatem militum ex castrorum exiguitate cognoscerent, quae hoc erant etiam angustiora, quod sine impedimentis Caesar legiones transportaverat, optimum factu esse duxerunt rebellione facta frumento commeatuque nostros prohibere et rem in hiemem producere, quod iis superatis aut reditu interclusis neminem postea belli inferendi causa in Britanniam transiturum confidebant. Itaque rursus coniuratione facta paulatim ex castris discedere ac suos clam ex agris deducere coeperunt.

XXXI. At Caesar, etsi nondum eorum consilia cognoverat, tamen et ex eventu navium suarum et ex eo, quod obsides dare intermiserant, fore id, quod accidit, suspicabatur. Itaque ad omnes casus subsidia comparabat. Nam et frumentum ex agris cotidie in castra conferebat et quae gravissime afflictæ erant naves, earum materia atque aere ad reliquas reficiendas utebatur et quae ad eas res erant usui ex continenti comportari iubebat. Itaque, cum id summo studio a militibus administraretur, duodecim navibus amissis, reliquis ut navigari commode posset, effectit.

Sudden
British.

XXXII. Dum ea geruntur, legione ex consuetudine una frumentatum missa, quae appellabatur septima, neque ulla ad id tempus belli suspicione interposita, cum pars hominum in agris remaneret, pars etiam in castra ventitaret, ii, qui pro portis castrorum in statione erant, Caesari renuntiarunt, pulverem maiorem, quam consuetudo ferret, in ea parte videri, quam in partem legio iter fecisset. Caesar id, quod erat, suspicatus, aliquid novi a barbaris initum consilii, cohortes, quae in stationibus erant, secum in eam partem proficisci, duas ex reliquis in stationem succedere, reliquas armari et confestim sese subsequi iussit. Cum paulo longius a castris processisset, suos ab hostibus premi atque aegre sustinere et conferta legione ex omnibus partibus tela conici animadvertit. Nam quod omni ex reliquis partibus demesso frumento pars una erat reliqua, suspicati hostes huc nostros esse venturos noctu in silvis delituerant; tum dispersos depositis armis in metendo occupatos subito adorti, paucis interfectis, reliquos incertis ordinibus perturbaverant, simul equitatu atque essedis circumdederant.

XXXIII. Genus hoc est ex essedis pugnae. Primo per omnes partes perequitant et tela coniciunt, atque ipso terrore equorum et strepitu rotarum, ordines plerumque perturbant; et cum se inter equitum turmas insinuerunt, ex essedis desiliunt et pedibus proeliantur. Aurigae interim paulatim ex proelio excedunt atque ita currus collocant, ut, si illi a multitudine hostium premantur, expeditum ad suos receptum habeant. Ita mobilitatem equitum, stabilitatem peditum in proeliis praestant, ac tantum usu cotidiano et exercitatione efficiunt, uti in declivi ac praecipiti loco incitatos equos sustinere et brevi moderari ac flectere et per temonem percurrere et in iugo insistere et inde se in currus citissime recipere consuerint.

The British mode of fighting.

XXXIV. Quibus rebus perturbatis nostris pugnae tempore opportunissimo Caesar auxilium tulit: namque eius adventu hostes constiterunt, nostri se ex timore receperunt. Quo facto ad lacessendum et ad committendum proelium alienum esse tempus arbitratus suo se loco continuit et brevi tempore intermisso in castra legiones reduxit. Dum haec geruntur, nostris omnibus occupatis, qui erant in agris reliqui discesserunt. Secutae sunt continuos complures dies tempestates, quae et nostros in castris continerent et hostem a pugna prohiberent. Interim barbari nuntios in omnes partes dimiserunt paucitatemque nostrorum militum suis praedicaverunt et, quanta praedae faciendae atque in perpetuum sui liberandi facultas daretur, si Romanos castris expulissent, demonstraverunt. His rebus celeriter magna multitudine peditatus equitatusque coacta ad castra venerunt.

Caesar acts on the defensive; severe storms keep the Romans within their camp.

XXXV. Caesar, etsi idem, quod superioribus diebus acciderat, fore videbat, ut, si essent hostes pulsus, celeritate periculum effugerent, tamen nactus equites circiter triginta, quos Commius Atrebas, de quo ante dictum est, Defeat and pursuit of the enemy.

secum transportaverat, legiones in acie pro castris constituit. Commisso proelio diutius nostrorum militum impetum hostes ferre non potuerunt ac terga verterunt. Quos tanto spatio secuti, quantum cursu et viribus efficere potuerunt complures ex iis occiderunt, deinde omnibus longe lateque aedificiis incensis se in castra receperunt.

Caesar makes peace; sets sail for Gaul.

XXXVI. Eodem die legati ab hostibus missi ad Caesarem de pace venerunt. His Caesar numerum obsidum, quem antea imperaverat, duplicavit eosque in continentem adduci iussit, quod propinqua die aequinoctii infirmis navibus hiemi navigationem subiciendam non existimabat. Ipse idoneam tempestatem nactus paulo post mediam noctem naves solvit; quae omnes incolumes ad continentem pervenerunt; sed ex his onerariae duae eosdem, quos reliquae, portus capere non potuerunt et paulo infra delatae sunt.

Sudden attack of the Morini.

XXXVII. Quibus ex navibus cum essent expositi milites circiter trecenti atque in castra contenderent, Morini, quos Caesar in Britanniam proficiscens pacatos reliquerat, spe praedae adducti primo non ita magno suorum numero circumsteterunt ac, si sese interfici nolent, arma ponere iusserunt. Cum illi orbe facto sese defenderent, celeriter ad clamorem hominum circiter millia sex convenerunt. Qua re nuntiata Caesar omnem ex castris equitatum suis auxilio misit. Interim nostri milites impetum hostium sustinuerunt atque amplius horis quatuor fortissimè pugnaverunt et paucis vulneribus acceptis complures ex iis occiderunt. Postea vere quam equitatus noster in conspectum venit, hostes abiectis armis terga verterunt magnusque eorum numerus est occisus.

Conquest of the Morini and Menapii.

XXXVIII. Caesar postero die Titum Labienum legatum, cum iis legionibus, quas ex Britannia reducerat, in Morinos, qui rebellionem fecerant, misit. Qui cum propter siccitates paludum, quo se reciperent, non haberent, quo perfrugio superiore anno fuerant usi, omnes fere in potestatem Labieni venerunt. At Quintus Titurius et Lucius Cotta legati, qui in Menapiorum fines legiones duxerant, omnibus eorum agris vastatis, frumentis succisis, aedificiis incensis, quod Menapii se omnes in densissimas silvas abdiderant, se ad Caesarem receperunt. Caesar in Belgis omnium legionum hiberna constituit. Eo duae omnino civitates ex Britannia obsides miserunt, reliquae neglexerunt. His rebus gestis ex litteris Caesaris dierum viginti supplicatio a senatu decreta est.

LIBER QUINTUS.

I. L. Domitio Ap. Claudio consulibus discedens ab hibernis Caesar in Italiam, ut quotannis facere consuevit, legatis imperat, quos legionibus praefecerat, uti quam plurimas possent hieme naves aedificandas veteresque reficiendas curarent. Earum modum formamque demonstrat. Ad celeritatem onerandi subductionesque paulo facit humiliores, quam quibus in nostro mari uti consuevimus, atque id eo magis, quod propter crebras commutationes aestuum minus magnos ibi fluctus fieri cognoverat; ad onera ac multitudinem iumentorum transportandam paulo latiores, quam quibus in reliquis utimur maribus. Has omnes actuarias imperat fieri, quam ad rem humilitas multum adiuvat. Ea, quae sunt usui ad armandas naves, ex Hispania apportari iubet. Ipse conventibus Galliae citerioris peractis in Illyricum proficiscitur, quod a Pirustis finitimam partem provinciae incursionibus vastari audiebat. Eo cum venisset, civitatibus milites imperat certumque in locum convenire iubet. Qua re nuntiata Pirustae legatos ad eum mittunt, qui doceant nihil earum rerum publico factum consilio, seseque paratos esse demonstrant omnibus rationibus de iniuriis satisfacere. Percepta oratione eorum Caesar obsides imperat eosque ad certam diem adduci iubet; nisi ita fecerint, sese bello civitatem persecuturum demonstrat. Iis ad diem adductis, ut imperaverat, arbitros inter civitates dat, qui litem aestiment poenamque constituent.

II. His confectis rebus conventibusque peractis, in citiorem Galliam revertitur atque inde ad exercitum proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, circuitis omnibus hibernis singulari militum studio in summa omnium rerum inopia circiter sexcentas eius generis, cuius supra demonstravimus, naves et longas viginti octo invenit instructas neque multum abesse ab eo, quin paucis diebus deduci possint. Collaudatis militibus atque iis, qui negotio praefuerant, quid fieri velit, ostendit atque omnes ad portum Itium convenire iubet, quo ex portu commodissimum in Britanniam traiectum esse cognoverat, circiter millium passuum triginta a continenti: huic rei quod satis esse visum est militum reliquit. Ipse cum legionibus expeditis quattuor et equitibus octingentis in fines Treverorum proficiscitur, quod hi neque ad concilia veniebant neque imperio parebant Germanosque Transrhenanos sollicitare dicebantur.

III. Haec civitas longe plurimum totius Galliae equitatu valet magnasque habet copias peditum, Rhenumque, ut supra demonstravimus, tangit. In ea civitate duo de principatu inter se contendebant, Indutiomarus et Cingetorix; e quibus alter, simul atque de Caesaris legionumque adventu cognitum est, ad eum venit, se suosque omnes in officio futuros neque ab amicitia populi Romani defecturos confirmavit quaeque in Treveris gererentur ostendit. At Indutiomarus equitatum peditatumque cogere iisque, qui per aetatem in armis esse non poterant, in silvam Arduennam abditis, quae ingenti magnitudine per medios fines Treverorum a flumine Rheno ad initium Remorum pertinet, bellum parare instituit. Sed posteaquam nonnulli principes ex ea civitate et familiaritate Cingetorigis adducti et adventu nostri exercitus perterriti ad Caesarem venerunt et de suis privatim rebus ab eo petere coeperunt, quoniam civitati consulere non possent, veritus, ne ab omnibus desereretur, Indutiomarus legatos ad Caesarem mittit: Sese idcirco ab suis discedere atque ad eum venire noluisse, quo facilius civitatem in officio contineret, ne omnis nobilitatis discessu plebs propter imprudentiam laberetur: itaque esse civitatem in sua potestate, seseque, si Caesar permetteret, ad eum in castra venturum, suas civitatisque fortunas eius fidei permissurum.

IV. Caesar, etsi intellegebat, qua de causa ea dicerentur quaeque eum res ab instituto consilio deterreret, tamen, ne aestatem in Treveris consumere cogeretur omnibus ad Britannicum bellum rebus comparatis, Indutiomarum ad se cum ducentis obsidibus venire iussit. His adductis, in iis filio propinquisque eius omnibus, quos nominatim evocaverat, consolatus Indutiomarum hortatusque est, uti in officio maneret; nihilo tamen secius principibus Treverorum ad se convocatis hos singillatim Cingetorigi conciliavit, quod cum merito eius a se fieri intellegebat, tum magni interesse arbitrabatur eius auctoritatem inter suos quam plurimum valere, cuius tam egregiam in se voluntatem perspexisset. Id tulit factum graviter Indutiomarus, suam gratiam inter suos minui, et, qui iam ante inimico in nos animo fuisset, multo gravius hoc dolore exarsit.

V. His rebus constitutis Caesar ad portum Itium cum legionibus pervenit. Ibi cognoscit quadraginta naves, quae in Meldis factae erant, tempestate reiectas cursum tenere non potuisse atque eodem, unde erant profectae, revertisse; reliquas paratas ad navigandum atque omnibus rebus instructas invenit. Eodem equitatus totius Galliae convenit numero millium quattuor principesque ex omnibus civitatibus, ex quibus perpaucos, quorum in se fidem perspexerat, relinquere in Gallia, reliquos obsidum loco secum ducere decreverat, quod, cum ipse abesset, motum Galliae verebatur.

VI. Erat una cum ceteris Dumnorix Aeduus, de quo ante ab nobis dictum est. Hunc secum habere in primis constituerat, quod eum cupidum rerum novarum, cupidum imperii, magni animi, magnae inter Gallos auctoritatis cognoverat. Accedebat huc, quod in concilio Aeduorum Dumnorix dixerat sibi a Caesare regnum civitatis deferri; quod dictum Aedui graviter ferebant, neque recusandi aut deprecandi causa legatos ad Caesarem mittere audebant.

Dumnorix

Id factum ex suis hospitibus Caesar cognoverat. Ille omnibus primo precibus petere contendit, ut in Gallia relinqueretur, partim quod insuetus navigandi mare timeret, partim quod religionibus impediri sese diceret. Posteaquam id obstinate sibi negari vidit, omni spe impetrandi adempta principes Galliae sollicitare, sevocare singulos hortarique coepit, uti in continenti remanerent; metu territare: non sine causa fieri, ut Gallia omni nobilitate spoliaretur; id esse consilium Caesaris, ut, quos in conspectu Galliae interficere vereretur, hos omnes in Britanniam traductos necaret; fidem reliquis interponere, iusiurandum poscere, ut, quod esse ex usu Galliae intellexissent, communi consilio administrarent. Haec a compluribus ad Caesarem deferebantur.

Death of Dumnorix.

VII. Qua re cognita Caesar, quod tantum civitati Aeduae dignitatis tribuebat, coercendum atque deterrendum, quibuscumque rebus posset, Dumnorigem statuebat; quod longius eius amentiam progredi videbat, prospiciendum, ne quid sibi ac reipublicae nocere posset. Itaque dies circiter viginti quinque in eo loco commoratus, quod Corus ventus navigationem impediabat, qui magnam partem omnis temporis in his locis flare consuevit, dabat operam, ut in officio Dumnorigem contineret, nihilo tamen secius omnia eius consilia cognosceret; tandem idoneam nactus tempestatem milites equitesque conscendere in naves iubet. At omnium impeditis animis Dumnorix cum equitibus Aeduorum a castris insciente Caesare domum discedere coepit. Qua re nuntiata Caesar intermissa profectio atque omnibus rebus postpositis magnam partem equitatus ad eum insequendum mittit retrahique imperat; si vim faciat neque pareat, interfici iubet, nihil hunc se absente pro sano facturum arbitratus, qui praesentis imperium neglexisset. Ille enim revocatus resistere ac se manu defendere suorumque fidem implorare coepit saepe clamitans, liberum se liberaeque esse civitatis. Illi, ut erat imperatum, circumstant hominem atque interficiunt; at equites Aedui ad Caesarem omnes revertuntur.

VIII. His rebus gestis Labieno in continente cum tribus legionibus et equitum millibus duobus relicto, ut portus tueretur et rem frumentariam provideret quaeque in Gallia gererentur cognosceret consiliumque pro tempore et pro re caperet, ipse cum quinque legionibus et pari numero equitum, quem in continenti reliquerat, ad solis occasum naves solvit et leni Africo proventus media circiter nocte vento intermisso cursum non tenuit et longius delatus aestu orta luce sub sinistra Britanniam relictam conspexit. Tum rursus aestus commutationem secutus remis contendit, ut eam partem insulae caperet, qua optimum esse egressum superiore aestate cognoverat. Qua in re admodum fuit militum virtus laudanda, qui vectoriis gravibusque navigiis non intermisso remigandi labore longarum navium cursum adaequarunt. Accessum est ad Britanniam omnibus navibus meridiano fere tempore, neque in eo loco hostis est visus; sed, ut postea Caesar ex captivis cognovit, cum magnae manus eo convenissent, multitudine navium perterritae, quae cum annotinis privatisque, quas sui quisque commodi fecerat, amplius octingentae uno erant visae tempore, a litore discesserant ac se in superiora loca abdiderant.

IX. Caesar exposito exercitu et loco castris idoneo capto, ubi ex captivis cognovit, quo in loco hostium copiae consedissent, cohortibus decem ad mare relictis et equitibus trecentis, qui praesidio navibus essent, de tertia vigilia ad hostes contendit eo minus veritus navibus, quod in litore molli atque aperto deligatas ad ancoram relinquebat, et praesidio navibusque Quintum Atrium praefecit. Ipse noctu progressus millia passuum circiter duodecim hostium copias conspicatus est. Illi equitatu atque essedis ad flumen progressi ex loco superiore nostros prohibere et proelium committere coeperunt. Repulsi ab equitatu se in silvas abdiderunt locum nacti egregie et natura et opere munitum, quem domestici belli, ut videbantur, causa iam ante praeparaverant: nam crebris arboribus succisis omnes introitus erant praecclusi. Ipsi ex silvis rari propugnabant nostrosque intra munitiones ingredi prohibebant. At milites legionis septimae testudine facta et aggere ad munitiones adiecto locum ceperunt eosque ex silvis expulerunt paucis vulneribus acceptis. Sed eos fugientes longius Caesar prosequi vetuit, et quod loci naturam ignorabat, et quod magna parte dici consumpta munitioni castrorum tempus relinquere volebat.

Bad news of the fleet.

X. Postridie eius diei mane tripertito milites equitesque in expeditionem misit, ut eos, qui fugerant, persequerentur. His aliquantum itineris progressis, cum iam extremi essent in prospectu, equites a Quinto Atrio ad Caesarem venerunt, qui nuntiarent superiore nocte maxima coorta tempestate prope omnes naves afflictas atque in litore eiectas esse, quod neque ancorae funesque subsisterent neque nautae gubernatoresque vim pati tempestatis possent: itaque ex eo concursu navium magnum esse incommodum acceptum.

Labienus builds new ships.

XI. His rebus cognitis Caesar legiones equitatumque revocari atque in itinere resistere iubet, ipse ad naves revertitur; eadem fere, quae ex nuntiis litterisque cognoverat, coram perspicit, sic ut amissis circiter quadraginta navibus reliquae tamen refici posse magno negotio viderentur. Itaque ex legionibus fabros deligit et ex continenti alios arcessi iubet; Labieno scribit, ut, quam plurimas posset, iis legionibus, quae sunt apud eum, naves instituat. Ipse, etsi res erat multae operae ac laboris, tamen commodissimum esse statuit omnes naves subduci et cum castris una munitione coniungi. In his rebus circiter dies decem consumit ne nocturnis quidem temporibus ad laborem militum intermissis. Subductis navibus castrisque egregie munitis easdem copias, quas ante, praesidio navibus reliquit, ipse eodem, unde redierat, proficiscitur. Eo cum venisset, maiores iam undique in eum locum copiae Britannorum convenerant summa imperii bellique administrandi communi consilio permissa Cassivellauno; cuius fines a maritimis civitatibus flumen dividit, quod appellatur Tamesis, a mari circiter millia passuum octoginta. Huic superiore tempore cum reliquis civitatibus continentia bella intercesserant; sed nostro adventu permoti Britanni hunc toti bello imperioque praefecerant.

XII. Britanniae pars interior ab iis incolitur, quos natos The people. in insula ipsi memoria proditum dicunt, maritima pars ab iis, qui praedae ac belli inferendi causa ex Belgis transierant (qui omnes fere iis nominibus civitatum appellantur, quibus orti ex civitatibus eo pervenerunt) et bello illato ibi permanserunt atque agros colere coeperunt. Hominum est infinita multitudo creberrimaeque aedificia fere Gallicis consimilia, pecorum magnus numerus. Utuntur aut aere aut taleis ferreis ad certum pondus examinatis pro nummo. Nascitur ibi plumbum album in mediterraneis regionibus, in maritimis ferrum, sed eius exigua est copia; aere utuntur importato. Materia cuiusque generis, ut in Gallia, est praeter fagum atque abietem. Leporem et gallinam et anserem gustare fas non putant; haec tamen alunt animi voluptatisque causa. Loca sunt temperatiora quam in Gallia remissioribus frigoribus.

XIII. Insula natura triquetra, cuius unum latus est The island. contra Galliam. Huius lateris alter angulus, qui est ad Cantium, quo fere omnes ex Gallia naves appellantur, ad orientem solem, inferior ad meridiem spectat. Hoc pertinet circiter millia passuum quingenta. Alterum vergit ad Hispaniam atque occidentem solem; qua ex parte est Hibernia, dimidio minor, ut existimatur, quam Britannia, sed pari spatio transmissus atque ex Gallia est in Britanniam. In hoc medio cursu est insula quae appellatur Mona; complures praeterea minores subiectae insulae existimantur; de quibus insulis nonnulli scripserunt dies continuos triginta sub bruma esse noctem. Nos nihil de eo percontationibus reperiebamus, nisi certis ex aqua mensuris breviores esse quam in continenti noctes videbamus. Huius est longitudo lateris, ut fert illorum opinio, septingentorum millium. Tertium est contra septentriones; cui parti nulla est obiecta terra, sed eius angulus lateris maxime ad Germaniam spectat. Hoc millia passuum octingenta in longitudinem esse existimatur. Ita omnis insula est in circuitu vicies centum millium passuum.

XIV. Ex his omnibus longe sunt humanissimi, qui Cantium incolunt, quae regio est maritima omnis, neque multum a Gallica differunt consuetudine. Interiores plerique frumenta non serunt, sed lacte et carne vivunt pellibusque sunt vestiti. Omnes vero se Britanni vitro inficiunt, quod caeruleum efficit colorem, atque hoc horridiore sunt in pugna aspectu; capilloque sunt promisso atque omni parte corporis rasa praeter caput et labrum superius. Uxores habent deni duodenique inter se communes et maxime fratres cum fratribus parentesque cum liberis; sed si qui sunt ex his nati, eorum habentur liberi, quo primum virgo quaeque deducta est.

XV. Equites hostium essedarii que acriter proelio cum equitatu nostro in itinere conflixerunt, tamen ut nostri omnibus partibus superiores fuerint atque eos in silvas collesque compulerint; sed compluribus interfectis cupidius insecuti nonnullos ex suis amiserunt. At illi intermisso spatio imprudentibus nostris atque occupatis in munitione castrorum subito se ex silvis eiecerunt impetuque in eos facto, qui erant in statione pro castris collocati, acriter pugnaverunt, duabusque missis subsidio cohortibus a Caesare atque his primis legionum duarum, cum hae perexiguo intermisso loci spatio inter se constitissent, novo genere pugnae perterritis nostris per medios audacissime perruperunt seque inde incolumes receperunt. Eo die Quintus Laberius Durus tribunus militum interficitur. Illi pluribus submissis cohortibus repelluntur.

British

fighting.

XVI. Toto hoc in genere pugnae, cum sub oculis omnium ac pro castris dimicaretur, intellectum est, nostros propter gravitatem armorum, quod neque insequi cedentes possent neque ab signis discedere auderent, minus aptos esse ad huius generis hostem, equites autem magno cum periculo proelio dimicare, propterea quod illi etiam consulto plerumque cederent et, cum paulum ab legionibus nostros removissent, ex essedis desilirent et pedibus dispari proelio contenderent. Equestris autem proelii ratio et cedentibus et insequentibus par atque idem periculum inferebat. Accedebat huc, ut nunquam conferti, sed rari magnisque intervallis proeliarentur stationesque dispositas haberent, atque alios alii deinceps exciperent integrique et recentes defatigatis succederent.

XVII. Postero die procul a castris hostes in collibus The Britons repulsed. constiterunt rarique se ostendere et lenius quam pridie nostros equites proelio lacessere coeperunt. Sed meridie, cum Caesar pabulandi causa tres legiones atque omnem equitatum cum Caio Trebonio legato misisset, repente ex omnibus partibus ad pabulatores advolaverunt, sic uti ab signis legionibusque non absisterent. Nostri acriter in eos impetu facto repulerunt neque finem sequendi fecerunt, quoad subsidio confisi equites, cum post se legiones viderent, praecipites hostes egerunt, magnoque eorum numero interfecto neque sui colligendi neque consistendi aut ex essedis desiliendi facultatem dederunt. Ex hac fuga protinus, quae undique convenerant auxilia discesserunt, neque post id tempus unquam summis nobiscum copiis hostes contenderunt.

XVIII. Caesar cognito consilio eorum ad flumen Caesar crosses the Thames. Tamesim in fines Cassivellauni exercitum duxit; quod flumen uno omnino loco pedibus, atque hoc aegre, transiri potest. Eo cum venisset, animadvertit ad alteram fluminis ripam magnas esse copias hostium instructas. Ripa autem erat acutis sudibus praefixis munita, eiusdemque generis sub aqua defixae sudes flumine tegebantur. His rebus cognitis a captivis per fugisque Caesar praemisso equitatu confestim legiones subsequi iussit. Sed ea celeritate atque eo impetu milites ierunt, cum capite solo ex aqua extarent ut hostes impetum legionum atque equitum sustinere non possent ripasque dimitterent ac se fugae mandarent.

XIX. Cassivellaunus, ut supra demonstravimus, omni Tactics of Cassivellaunus. deposita spe contentionis dimissis amplioribus copiis, millibus circiter quattuor essedariorum relictis, itinera nostra servabat paulumque ex via excedebat locisque impeditis ac silvestribus sese occultabat atque iis regionibus, quibus nos iter facturos cognoverat, pecora atque homines ex agris in silvas compellebat et, cum equitatus noster liberius praedandi vastandique causa se in agris eiecerat, omnibus viis semitisque essedarios ex silvis emittebat et magno cum periculo nostrorum equitum cum his confligebat atque hoc metu latius vagari prohibebat. Relinquebatur, ut neque longius ab agmine legionum discedi Caesar pateretur, et tantum in agris vastandis incendiisque faciendis hostibus noceretur, quantum labore atque itinere legionarii milites efficere poterant.

The Trinobantes submit to Caesar.

XX. Interim Trinobantes, prope firmissima earum regionum civitas, ex qua Mandubracius adulescens Caesaris fidem secutus ad eum in continentem Galliam venerat, cuius pater in ea civitate regnum obtinuerat interfectusque erat a Cassivellauno, ipse fuga mortem vitaverat, legatos ad Caesarem mittunt pollicenturque sese ei dedituros atque imperata facturos; petunt, ut Mandubracium ab iniuria Cassivellauni defendat atque in civitatem mittat, qui praesit imperiumque obtineat. His Caesar imperat obsides quadraginta frumentumque exercitui Mandubraciumque ad eos mittit. Illi imperata celeriter fecerunt, obsides ad numerum frumentumque miserunt.

So do other tribes.

A British "town."

XXI. Trinobantibus defensis atque ab omni militum iniuria prohibitis, Cenimagni, Segontiaci, Ancalites, Bibroci, Cassi legationibus missis sese Caesari dedunt. Ab his cognoscit non longe ex eo loco oppidum Cassivellauni abesse silvis paludibusque munitum, quo satis magnus hominum pecorisque numerus convenerit. Oppidum autem Britanni vocant, cum silvas impeditas vallo atque fossa munierunt, quo incursionis hostium vitandae causa convenire consuerunt. Eo proficiscitur cum legionibus; locum reperit egregie natura atque opere munitum; tamen hunc duabus ex partibus oppugnare contendit. Hostes paulisper morati militum nostrorum impetum non tulerunt seseque alia ex parte oppidi eiecerunt.

Magnus ibi numerus pecoris repertus, multique in fuga sunt comprehensi atque interfecti.

XXII. Dum haec in his locis geruntur, Cassivellaunus ad Cantium, quod esse ad mare supra demonstravimus, quibus regionibus quattuor reges praeerant, Cingetorix, Carvilius, Taximagulus, Segovax, nuntios mittit atque his imperat, uti coactis omnibus copiis castra navalia de improvviso adorianur atque oppugnent. Ii cum ad castra venissent, nostri eruptione facta multis eorum interfectis, capto etiam nobili duce Lugotorige suos incolumes reduxerunt. Cassivellaunus hoc proelio nuntiato, tot detrimentis acceptis, vastatis finibus, maxime etiam permotus defectione civitatum, legatos per Atrebatem Commium de deditioe ad Caesarem mittit. Caesar, cum constituisset hiemare in continenti propter repentinos Galliae motus, neque multum aestatis superesset, atque id facile extrahi posse intellegeret, obsides imperat et, quid in annos singulos vectigalis populo Romano Britannia penderet, constituit; interdicit atque imperat Cassivellauno, ne Mandubracio neu Trinobantibus noceat.

Four Kentish kings defeated.

Cassivellaunus treats for peace.

XXIII. Obsidibus acceptis exercitum reducit ad mare, naves invenit refectas. His deductis, quod et captivorum magnum numerum habebat et nonnullae tempestate depierant naves, duobus commeatibus exercitum reportare instituit. Ac sic accidit, uti ex tanto navium numero tot navigationibus neque hoc neque superiore anno ulla omnino navis, quae milites portaret desideraretur; at ex iis, quae inanes ex continenti ad eum remitterentur et prioris commeatus expositis militibus et quas postea Labienus faciendas curaverat numero sexaginta, perpaucae locum caperent, reliquae fere omnes reicerentur. Quas cum aliquamdiu Caesar frustra expectasset, ne anni tempore a navigatione excluderetur, quod aequinoctium suberat, necessario angustius milites collocavit ac summa tranquillitate consecuta, secunda inita cum solvisset vigilia, prima luce terram attigit omnesque incolumes naves perduxit.

Caesar returns to Gaul.

III.—Protinus: also written protenus: it refers to time, “forthwith,” or to place, “onwards.” Here it means “without interruption.”—Accessit astu: for the more common accessit ad astu. Astu is the Greek ἄστν in Roman characters. The City of Athens was called ἄστν in opposition to the harbour towns, Piraeus, Phalērum and Munychia.—Nullis defendentibus, abl. abs.: the city had no defenders but the Acropolis had.—Cuius: the burning city (Herodotus viii, 56).—Domos suas: p. 285, 1: decline domus: p. 238.—Universos . . . dispersos: equivalent to si universi essent . . . si dispersi essent: "if they were all united . . . if they were all separated."—Pares: scil. hostibus.—Regi: Eurybiades: he was admiral, not king.—Qui . . . praeerat, for the indicative: p. 307, 13. (a).—Minus quam vellet: virtual oblique: it refers to what was passing in the mind of Themistocles: p. 307, 11, note.—De servis suis: the preposition de with the abl. is often used for the partitive genitive: cf. French de in a partitive construction. The slave's name was Sicinnus.—Suis verbis: "in his own words," i.e., in the words of Themistocles.—Qui si = et si ille: see note on qui cum . . . parentibus, Chap. I.—Confecturum: i.e., Themistocles testabatur regem esse confecturum.—Hoc eo valebat: "the meaning of this was": cf. id valeret, Chap. II.—Depugnandum: note the intensive force of de in depugno, devinco, decerto.—Angusto mari: the bay of Salamis.

Chapter V.—Ut posset: distinguish in meaning from ut potuerit: p. 295, 2.—Iterum: "a second time"; rursus, "again," said of things repeated more than once.—Ab eodem: Themistocles.—Gradu depulsus est: "he was disconcerted," literally, "he was driven from his foothold."—Id agi: "that this was the intention."—Pons: the bridge extended from Abydos on the Asiatic side of the Hellespont to Sestos on the European, and consisted of a number of boats connected by cables.—Quem . . . fecerat: p. 307, 13, (a).—Qua: scil. via: so eadem, scil. via: "he returned in less than 30 days by the same route by which he had advanced." Nepos ("Agesilaus") makes it a year: the real time was four months. The retreat occupied 46 days.—Sex mensibus . . . diebus triginta: ablative of time within which: the comparative minus has no influence on the construction.—Altera: "This is a second victory."—Quae . . . possit: "of such importance that it may be compared to the victory of Marathon."—Quae = talis ut: p. 296, 5. As the land forces of the Greeks at Marathon were inferior, so the naval forces of the Greeks at Salamis were inferior.—Tropaeo: here = victoria.

Chapter VI.—Phalerico portu: the most ancient of the Athenian ports was Phalerum, to the east of the Piraeus. Both were connected by the "long walls" with the city.—Triplex: the three basins were the Piraeus proper, Munychia and Zeia.—Moenibus circumdatus: in the active we say either urbem muro (abl.) or urbi (dat.) murus circumdatur: in the passive, urbs muro (abl.) or urbi (dat.) murus circumdatur.—Restituit: Themistocles both rebuilt the old walls and extended the boundaries of Athens, enclosing the newly acquired parts with new walls.—Nacti: from nanciscor.—Qua negarent: 296, 5, (b): "for denying":—Quae . . . possiderent: final: "for their enemy to acquire": p. 294, 5.—Alio . . . atque: "had a different object than they wished to appear: note the force of atque (ac) after words expressing similarity and dis-similarity.—Principatu: "the first place" (hegemony) in Greece. The Spartans had held this before the Persian wars.—Qui . . . vetarent: p. 294, 5.—Desierunt: i.e., the Athenians.—Reliqui . . . praecepit: construe (Themistocles) praecepit ut reliqui legati tum exirent . . . interim (praecepit ut) servi, etc.—Satis alti tuendo: "high enough to protect them."—Sive ... esset: dependent clause of oblique narration: p. 305, 2.—Ex sacellis sepulchrisque: this is only partially true (Thucydides, I, 193, sq.).

Chapter VII.—Dedit operam ... duceret: "took care to spin out the time." Note that longius and longissime may be applied to time, but not longe: diu is the regular word.—Causam interponens: Nepos is fond of present participles; Caesar would have said causa interposita.—Sunt consecuti = advenerunt: "arrived." The others were Aristides and Habronichus.—Imperium: "military power" belonged to the kings of Sparta; potestas, "civil power," to the Ephors.—Quibus ... haberetur: oblique narration, hence the subjunctive: p. 305, 2.—Qui ... explorarent: for mood: p. 294, 5.—Se ... retinerent = me retinere = imperat. of direct narration: p. 306, 3.—Gestus ... mos: see Vocab. under mos.—Praedixit = praecepit: in this sense praedico follows the construction of verbs of commanding: p. 292, 1.—Ut ne: for ne.—Esset remissus: dependent clause of oblique narration: p. 305, 2.—Magistratus senatumque: referring to the board of Ephors, five in number, and to the Gerusia or Senate of Sparta, which consisted of the two kings and twenty-eight other members.—Quod = id quod: dependent clause of oblique narration: p. 305, 2.—Deos ... penates: deos publicos, the gods generally worshipped throughout Greece, as Zeus, Apollo, etc.: deos patrios, the guardian gods of Athens, as Athene, Poseidon: penates, the gods of each family.—Quo facilius: p. 294, 4.—Oppositum agrees with the predicate propugnaculum by attraction.—Bis: at Marathon 490 B.C.; at Salamis 480 B.C.—Qui ... intuerentur = quippe qui ... intuerentur: p. 298, 5.—Si ... vellent: p. 305, 2.—Quos ... miserant: p. 307, 13, (a).—Se remitterent: direct narration = me remittite.

Chapter VIII.—Tamen: i.e., in spite of all his successes.—Ob eundem timorem: i.e., of his becoming too powerful.—Testularum suffragiis: see Vocab. under testula. He refers to the ostracism of Themistocles (B.C. 471), on the charge of taking bribes from the Persians. The institution of ostracism was one of the reforms of Cleisthenes. The Athenian law provided that "at any political crisis a special meeting could be called, at which the people could declare by their vote that the presence of any individual was prejudicial to the interest of the state." If six thousand citizens voted, by writing the name of any individual on a piece of tile (testula, Gk. δοσπρακον), that such a person should be banished, he was required to withdraw from the boundaries of Attica, and remain in exile for ten years, or until recalled. He did not, however, lose his citizenship or property.—Argos: what case, gender and number? See Vocab.—Habitatum: supine.—Hic: i.e., at Argos.—Cum ... viveret: for cum causal, see p. 297, 4.—Qui ... accusarent: for qui final, see p. 294, 5.—Quod ... fecisset: is this a charge of Nepos or of the ambassadors? p. 297, 3. What would fecerat mean?—Rege Perse = rege Persarum or rege Persico.—Hoc crimine: the charge quod societatem ... fecisset.—Proditionis: p. 281, 12.—Quod ... videbat: what does the indicative imply? p. 297, 3.—Eius = Corcyrae.—Timere ne ... indicerent: p. 294, 8.—Admetum cum quo, etc.: according to Thucydides (I, 136) Admetus had been thwarted by Themistocles in pressing some demands at Athens, so that the statement here is probably incorrect.—In praesentia:

see Vocab. under praesentia.—Quo: p. 294, 4.—Religione: “reverence.”—Receptum: “when received.”—In fidem reciperet: “promised him his protection”: p. 299, 8.—Quam=et eam, scil. fidem: “and this pledge he redeemed”: see note on quae contumelia, Chap. I.—Publice: “in the name of the state.”—Consuleret sibi: see Vocab. under consulo.—Enim: scil. dixit.—Propinquo: i.e., so near Greece.—Quod . . . esset: the sufficiency of the guard is not vouched for by Nepos: p. 297, 3: probably the opinion of Admetus stated by the author.—Hic: i.e., at Pydna.—Escendit: others have ascendit. Caesar usually has conscendit.—Naxum: this island was in revolt against the confederacy of Delos. It was reduced by the Athenians to the position of a tributary state.—Quis sit: p. 291, 1.—Pervenisset, conservasset: oblique, p. 306, note.—Viri . . . misericordia: “pity for so illustrious a man”: objective genitive: p. 281, 7.—Ephesum: at that time under the rule of Persia.—Exponit: historic present.—Gratiam rettulit: see Vocab. under gratia.

Chapter IX.—Xerxe regnante: as Xerxes reigned 485-465 B.C. and Artaxerxes 465-425 B.C., and as the flight of Themistocles was probably in 460 B.C., his withdrawal to Asia was in the reign of Artaxerxes, not of Xerxes.—Aetate proximus de iis: “the nearest in point of time of those”: for the use of de see note on de servis suis, Chap. IV.—Eiusdem civitatis: i.e., of Athens.—Epistulam: Thucydides (I, 137) gives the letter which is substantially the same as given by Nepos.—Veni: “I am come.”—Graiorum: partitive genitive after qui: p. 280, 3.—Idem: “I, however”: often idem introduces a contrast.—Ipse: scil. coepi from the coepit following.—Litteris: the statement from nam cum to liberatus does not occur in Thucydides. Herodotus (viii, 110) says that the message sent to Xerxes by Sicinnus was verbal, not written.—Id agi: see note on id agi, Chap. V.—Quam . . . adeptus: see note on quae contumelia (Chap. I): for the indicative, p. 307, 13, (a).—Quas=de quibus.—Annum . . . tempus, not “annual” but “a year’s time.”

Chapter X.—Huius: does not agree with animi.—Admirans cupiensque: here equivalent to causal clauses: “because he admired his magnanimity and wished.”—Veniam: “permission.”—Commodius . . . verba fecisse: “to have spoken with greater facility.” In Perside: scil. terra.—Cum . . . esset pollicitus: for cum causal, see p. 297, 4.—Illud: “the following,” referring to the clause illum . . . oppressurum.—Asiam: i.e., as if to the Roman province of Asia, which comprised Caria, Lydia, Mysia, and Phrygia except Lycaonia.—Magnesiae: this was Magnesia on the Maeander, in Caria. Another Magnesia was in Northern Lydia, near Sardis, called Magnesia ad Sipylum.—Donarat: = donaverat.—Quae . . . praeberet: for quae final, see p. 294, 5: so unde . . . sumeret and ex qua . . . haberet.—Oppidum: i.e., Magnesia.—In quo: scil. sepulchro. Thucydides (I, 138) says that the remains of Themistocles, according to his wish, were buried secretly in Attica. In the time of Pausanias, the tomb of Themistocles was pointed out near the harbour of Piraeus.—Potissimum: adverb: “above all others.”—Neque negat: “yet admits,” “without denying”: literally, “but he does not deny.”—Venenum: the common report was that his death was caused by drinking bull’s blood. Thucydides (I, 138) says that he committed suicide.—Quoniam . . . concederetur: virtual oblique: p. 307, 11, note.

ARISTIDES.

Chapter I.—Themistocli: genitive with aequalis, “a contemporary.”—De principatu: “for the first position in the state.”—Obtrectarunt = obtrectaverunt: see Vocab. under obtrecto.—In his: “in the case of these men.”—Quanto . . . innocentiae: “how much eloquence outweighs integrity”: for the mood of antestaret: p. 291, 1: for the case of innocentiae, p. 278, 7.—Quamquam . . . excellerebat: p. 302, 1, (a).—Quem . . . audierimus: “at least of those whom we have heard of.” Qui consecutive is often used to express limitation; as, quod sciam, “As far as I know.”—Collabefactus: according to Grote, the rivalry arose from the fact that Aristides was opposed to the policy of Themistocles, which aimed at making Athens a sea-power.—Testula illa: note illa, “that well-known”: see note on testularum suffragiis (Them., viii).—Qui quidem cum intellegeret: “and when he observed.” Note the intensive force of quidem after a relative = $\gamma\epsilon$ in Greek: for qui cum see note on qui cum . . . parentibus (Them., I).—Cedens: “as he was retiring from the struggle.”—Scribentem: “as he was writing”: i.e., the name of Aristides on the tablet. No name was officially proposed for ostracism, and the voter could write any name he wished. Plutarch tells the story that the man could not write, and asked Aristides to write his own name, which he did.—Quod . . . laborasset: scil. Aristides: for the subjunctive see p. 307, 11, note: see Vocab. under laboro.—Postquam . . . quam: quam is regularly used for postquam when post or postquam has just preceded. The pluperfect is used with postquam when a definite time is stated (as here, sexto anno); otherwise, the perfect indicative is used. Aristides was banished 484 B.C., and recalled 480 B.C., about the time of the battle of Salamis.—Populi scito: “a decree of the people” = $\psi\eta\phi\sigma\mu\alpha$. The resolutions of the plebs in the Comitia Tributa at Rome were called plebis scita (scitum, from scisco, to approve).

Chapter II.—Interfuit pugnae: p. 278, 7. He had no command, though he was one of the ten generals the following year.—Facta est: it is said that he joined the Athenian army the night before the battle.—Praetor: here = $\sigma\tau\rho\alpha\tau\eta\gamma\omicron\varsigma$, general. Contrary to usage Aristides was made sole commander of the Athenians at Plataeae, though Pausanias led the united Greeks.—Huius imperii memoria: “the record of this command.”—Multa: scil. sunt illustria facta, from the illustre factum before: “there are many striking instances.”—Factum est: join with ut summa . . . Athenienses: the treasury of the Confederacy of Delos was at Delos; but after the first ten years of the league (about 466 B.C.) it was transferred to Athens.

Chapter III.—Quos = et eos: quo: p. 294, 4.—Ad . . . constitueret: the order is: Aristides delectus est qui constitueret quantum pecuniae quaeque civitas daret ad classes aedificandas exercitusque comparandos. Constitueret: p. 294, 5.—Quantum pecuniae: p. 280, 3.—Daret: p. 291, 1.—Qua . . . abstinentia: abl. of quality: p. 284, 12.—Quam quod: “than the fact that,” a quod-clause used in apposition to the subject: p. 293, 2, top of page.—Cum . . . praefecisset: on cum (though) concessive, see p. 303, 5.—Qua efferretur: “wherewith to be buried.”—

Qui: an old ablative form used in quicum = quocum. For the subjunctive see p. 294, 5.—Reliquerit: p. 295, 1.—Ut . . . collocarentur: according to Plutarch they received each 3,000 drachmas (about $530 of our money).

HANNIBAL.

Chapter I.—Verum est . . . ut . . . superarit: the construction of verum est ut with the subjunctive (instead of acc. with inf.) is on the analogy of ut after impersonal verbs and phrases like accidit ut, verisimile est ut, falsum est ut, etc.—Non est infitandum: scil. nobis: "we must not deny."—Cum eo . . . Italia: construe, nam quotienscumque (Hannibal) congressus est in Italia cum eo (populo). This is not true, as Hannibal was defeated by Marcellus at Nola in Campania, B.C. 215.—Nisi . . . esset: he refers to the opposition of the peace party at Carthage which was led by Hanno.—Videtur: Latin prefers the personal construction with verbs of saying, seeming, etc.—Ut deposuerit: construe ut deposuerit animam priusquam (deposuit) id, i.e., odium.—Qui quidem: for causal qui, see p. 298, 5: "since he, indeed."—Animo: "in his heart," "in intention."

Chapter II.—Ut omittam: see Vocab. under omitto.—Absens: equivalent to a concessive clause: "though he was not with him."—Ut . . . conatus sit: for mood, p. 295, 1.—Italiae: p. 278, 6.—Ad quem cum: Roman ambassadors visited Antiochus at Ephesus and found Hannibal there.—Qui . . . explorarent darentque operam: p. 294, 5.—Ut . . . adducerent: cf. in suspicionem alicui venio, "I am suspected by some one": see Vocab. under suspicio. The Roman ambassadors pretended to be friends of Hannibal in order to make Antiochus distrust him.—Tamquam . . . sentire: "of entertaining, as though corrupted by them, opinions different from those he had before": sentire depends on suspicionem: note the force of atque with alia: see note on alio . . . atque (Them., Chap. VI).—Neque . . . fecissent: supply cum from the preceding: "and when they were successful in their scheme, and when Hannibal discovered it and found himself excluded from the king's privy councils, then he went to the king at a time appointed."—De fide sua: scil. erga regem Antiochum: "of his loyalty to King Antiochus."—Puerulo me: abl. abs.: p. 284, 14.—Iovi optimo maximo: Nepos substitutes "Jove, the best and the greatest" for Baal, the supreme deity of the Carthaginians.—Vellemne: "whether I would like": dependent question: p. 291, 1.—Ab eo petere . . . ne dubitaret: p. 306, 3. Note that dubito in the sense of hesitate takes the infinitive: in the sense of doubt, if negative, it takes quin with subjunctive: p. 296, 6.—Tenentem: scil. me: "while I held my hand upon it." It was customary when taking a solemn oath to lay one's hands on the horns of the altar or, at least, to touch some part of it.—In amicitia . . . fore: = amicum esse futurum: "that I would never be friendly."—Conservavi: a pres. perfect, "I have kept."—Reliquo tempore: "for the rest of my life."—Eadem mente: abl. of quality: p. 284, 12.—Celaris = celaveris: fut. perf.: p. 301, 2, (2), (a): so also posueris.

Chapter III.—Hac . . . aetate: abl. of quality depending on Hannibal understood: p. 284, 12.—Qua diximus: = "which we have said": abl.

qual.—Suffecto : a magistrate was called suffectus who was elected to complete the unexpired term of another magistrate who had died or been deposed.—Hoc : Hasdrubal. He was assassinated by a Spaniard whose master had been killed by Hasdrubal.—Delatum : “reported.”—Annis : more commonly annos : see p. 285, 6.—Proximo triennio : p. 284, 2.—Foederatam : the Carthaginians held the part of Spain south of the Ebro ; the Romans occupied the part north of the Ebro. Saguntum was south of the river, but was in alliance with Rome, which guaranteed her independence.—Comparavit : Hannibal rather divided his army into three parts.—Saltum : either “pass,” or “chain,” near the coast.—Nemo unquam : this is not correct, as we know that the Gauls often made inroads into the Roman territory through the Alpine passes. According to Polybius, Hannibal crossed by the Little St. Bernard Pass (Alpes Graiae), but Livy says he crossed by Mt. Genève (Alpes Cottiae).—Alpicos : “Alpine tribes.” The mountain villagers annoyed Hannibal in his ascent, but there was no pitched battle, as Nepos would have us believe.—Concidit : distinguish this in meaning and derivation from concidit.—Itinera muniit : note the expression, iter munire, “to build a military road.”—Ornatus : “fully equipped.” Note the antithesis in the latter part of the sentence.

Chapter IV.—Confixerat . . . pepulerat : there was no regular battle at the Rhone, though the Romans routed the Numidian cavalry which Hannibal sent out to reconnoitre.—Clastidii : Nepos confuses the battle of Clastidium with that at the river Ticinus. After passing the Ticinus, Hannibal took Clastidium.—Decernit . . . dimittit : historic presents.—Apud Trebiam : Scipio was not present at Trebia, for he had not yet recovered from the wound he received at the battle of Ticinus. The battle of Trebia was fought in December, 218 B.C.—Inde : “after that” : in the spring of 217 B.C.—Appenninum : scil. montem.—Dextro oculo : Livy says (xxii, 1) that he lost the sight of one eye completely.—Lectica : Livy says that he was at this time carried by the only elephant left.—C. Flaminium : he gave his name to the Via Flaminia, the great road leading north from Rome which he repaired when he was ensor.—Praetorem : C. Centenius was not praetor but propraetor.—Obviam : see Vocab. under obviam.—Paulum : Lucius Aemilius Paulus was wounded at Cannae, 216 B.C., and refused to save himself by flight.

Chapter V.—Romam : Hannibal did not march at once on Rome after the battle of Cannae. In 211 B.C., five years after the battle of Cannae, he went there and encamped for a short time on the hills around the city.—Fabius Maximus : appointed dictator in 217 B.C., the year before Cannae. The escape from Maximus took place in 217 B.C., not after Cannae, as Nepos states.—Clausus : concessive : “though enclosed.”—Dedit verba : see Vocab. under do.—Obducta nocte : see Vocab. under obduco.—M. Minucius Rufus : the dilatory policy of Fabius caused the Romans to appoint Minucius, the Master of the Horse, to a command equal to that of the dictator. Half of the army was given him, and he was drawn into an engagement with Hannibal, in which he was saved only by the timely arrival of Fabius. He then resigned his command.—Ti. Sempronius Gracchus : this happened in 212 B.C. Marcellus, not Gracchus, was consul at this time. The correct expression is bis consulem, “who had been twice consul," not iterum consulem, "who had been consul a second time": so also quintum (adv.), not quinquies consulem. He was cut off by Mago, at Campi Veteres, in Lucania, near Beneventum. M. Claudius Marcellus, the conqueror of Syracuse, was slain, not after, but during his fifth consulship, 208 B.C., near Venusia.—Sustulit: from tollo.—Pari modo: by getting him into an ambush in the neighborhood of Venusia.—Longum est: "it would be tedious." The indicative is often used in expressions of necessity, propriety for the subjunctive as apodosis of an implied condition as here = si ennumerarem. . . longum esset: cf. p. 301, 3.

Chapter VI.—Hinc: from Italy.—Defensum: p. 289, 1. This was in 203 B.C., when the Romans, having conquered Spain and confined Hannibal to Bruttium and Lucania, crossed over to Africa and threatened Carthage.—Fugarat = fugaverat.—In praesentiarum: see Vocab. under praesentia. Quo. . . congregederetur: p. 294, 4.—Condiciones non convenerunt: "the terms were not agreed upon." We might also say de condicionibus non convenerunt, "they did not agree on the terms."—Incredibile dictu: p. 175. The statement here is absurd. It is not known where Zama was. Polybius says it was five days' march west of Carthage. Others say that Hadrumetum and Zama were about one hundred miles apart.—Biduo: scil. spatio.—Oppressit: "crushed." Paucis diebus: p. 284, 2.

Chapter VII.—Nihilo secius: see Vocab. under nihilo.—Resque . . . gessit: "and he carried on the war."—Consules: the Romans marked their year by the names of the consuls. These were in office B.C. 200.—His magistratibus: either abl. of time when, or abl. absolute.—Qui. . . agerent: p. 294, 5.—Quod . . . fecissent . . . donarent . . . peterent: the subjunctives show that the words of the ambassadors were used: p. 297, 3. Note that we say either donare coronam homini or donare corona hominem.—Cum iis = secum: so obsides eorum = obsides sui.—Ut. . . Fregellis essent: "might be allowed to live at Fregellae."—Ex senatus consulto: the presiding magistrate was said senatum consulere, hence "an order of the senate" was called senatus consultum.—Rogarent. . . foret . . . haberent: subjunctive of dependent clauses of oblique narration: p. 305, 2.—Rex: two magistrates called Suffetes were elected at Carthage for a fixed period. The word Suffetes is connected with the Hebrew word Shophetim, "judges." Nepos translates it by reges.—Vectigalibus: the vectigalia were taxes raised from conquered lands, crown lands, imports and exports.—Quae. . . penderetur: p. 296, 5; so also reponeretur.—Senatus daretur: dare senatum, "to grant a hearing in the senate"; for subjunctive, p. 299, 8.—Quae comprehenderent: p. 294, 5.—Si possent consequi: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Publicarunt = publicaverunt: all moneys realized from goods confiscated became a part of the state treasury (publicum aerarium).

Chapter VIII.—Consulibus: 193 B.C.—Africam accessit: "landed in Africa in the territory of the Cyrenaeans."—Si. . . inducerentur: "in the hope that they might," etc.: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Antiochi spe fiduciaque: objective genitive, p. 281, 7: "by their hope in, and reliance upon, Antiochus."—Cui. . . persuaserat: the truth is that Hannibal had tried to persuade Antiochus to invade Italy and had failed.—Huc: to Cyrene.—Desperatis rebus: see Vocab. under desperare.—Memoria: “tradition”: the usual account is that he was wounded in 203 B.C. in Cisalpine Gaul, and that he died of his wound on his return to Africa.—Interfectum: note the zeugma: “he perished by shipwreck and was assassinated by his slaves.”—Propius Tiberi: prope is not usual with a dative in good Latin, the regular construction being the accusative or the ablative with ab: as, tam prope urbem, or ab urbe, “so near the city.” So also propius and proxime.—Thermopylis: Antiochus was defeated there by the Romans (191 B.C.). He then withdrew to Asia, and was in the following year defeated at Magnesia in Lydia.—Etsi . . . videbat: p. 303, 2.—Praefuit . . . navibus: p. 278, 7.—lisque: scil. navibus: abl. of instrument: p. 283, 5.—Quo . . . superior: i.e., ipse fuit superior in eo cornu in quo rem gessit.

Chapter IX.—Fugato: at Magnesia (190 B.C.).—Verens ne dederetur: p. 294, 8.—Si . . . potestatem: “if he (Hannibal) had given them power over him”: i.e., “if he had fallen into their hands”: p. 301, (3), (b).—Quo . . . conferret: p. 291, 1.—Nisi quid providisset: quid=aliquid: “unless he took some precaution”: p. 306, note.—Illorum . . . his: both pronouns refer to the Gortyni.—Statuas aëneas: perhaps hollow with movable heads.—Domi: p. 285, 3.

Chapter X.—Suis rebus: “his property.”—Poenus: i.e., Hannibal.—Apud quem: “at whose court.”—Eodem animo: p. 284, 12.—Minus . . . robustum: “not strong enough.” Minus+adj.=“not.”—Utrobique=terra marique.—Quem si removisset: scil. Hannibal: p. 306, note.—Erant decreturi: “they had intended to decide the matter”: p. 290, 3, middle of page.—Imperavit colligi: the infinitive passive is sometimes used with impero. What is the regular construction? p. 292, 1.—Cum effecisset: “when he had collected”: p. 300, 10.—A ceteris . . . defendere: “to be content only to defend themselves from the others.” Note that habeo is used with an adverb. The expression is equivalent to esse with an adjective: cf. $\epsilon\chi\omega$ in Greek.—Id . . . consecuturos: scil. esse dixit.—In qua . . . veheretur: p. 291, 1.—Magno iis . . . praemio: p. 279, 12.—Fore=id futurum esse.

Chapter XI.—Deducitur: see Vocab. under deduco.—Quarum: scil. classium.—Priusquam . . . daretur: p. 299, 7.—Caduceo: a herald's staff was originally an olive branch twined with garlands. Afterwards the garlands were changed to serpents. Hermes (Mercury) as the messenger of the gods is represented with a caduceus.—Mittit: historic present: hence the imperfect subjunctive faceret: p. 290, 2, foot of page.—Quod . . . dubitabat: p. 297, 3.—Quin . . . esset scriptum: p. 296, 6.—Soluta: an ordinary letter would consist of two wax tablets fastened together with a string.—Quae . . . pertinerent: consecutive relative: p. 296, 5.—Posset: p. 297, 4.—Conici coepta sunt: the passive of coepi is used when the dependent inf. is passive.—Nova re: “by the novelty of the attack.”—Consilio: “by stratagem.”

Chapter XII.—Dum . . . geruntur: p. 299, 4.—Patres conscripti: “the Senators”: so called because the Senate probably consisted originally of the heads of families making up the citizens of Rome: conscripti=“enrolled in the list of citizens.”—Qui . . . existimarent: qui causal: p. 298, 5.—Qui . . .

...peterent: qui final: p. 294, 5.—Dederet: supply ut before dederet from the preceding ne.—Ipsi . . . comprehenderent: for imperat. of direct: = vos, si potestis, comprehendite.—Inventuros: scil. dixit eos esse.—Ei . . . muneri: p. 279, 12.—Ne usu veniret: literally, "lest it should come in actual experience": usu is an ablative of manner, or, if an old form for usui, a dative of purpose.—Puer ab ianua: "the door-boy," "the slave at the door": cp. Horace, Od. I, 29, 7; puer ex aula, "the hall-boy," "the waiter."—Consuerat = consueverat.

Chapter XIII.—Acquievit: a euphemism for mortuus est.—Septuagesimo: Hannibal was born in 247 B.C., and would have been 63, 64, 65 years of age at these dates, according as the consuls mentioned held office 183, 182, 181 respectively.—Annali suo: scil. libro: "in his chronicle."—Nonnihl temporis: partitive genitive: "some time."—Ad Rhodios: "addressed to the Rhodians."—Huius: Hannibal.

NOTES ON CAESAR.

BOOK IV.

Chapter I.—Qui fuit annus: “Which was the year of the consulship of,” etc.—Consulibus: abl. of quality: literally, “of Pompey and Crassus consuls.”—Quo: “into which.”—Quod: “the fact that,” explaining causa transeundi: p. 293, 2.—Complures annos: p. 284, 4.—Bello: abl. of instr.: p. 283, 5.—Agricultura: p. 282, 1.—Pagos: “Cantons,” country districts of undefined extent: cp. French pays. Trace the origin of our words pagan, heathen.—Singula millia: “a thousand from each canton”: p. 69, 8, (a).—Qui . . . manserunt . . . alunt: the perfect combined with the present denotes repetition: “The rest who remain at home, maintain.”—Domi: p. 286, top of page.—Anno post: p. 284, 3.—Ratio atque usus: see Vocab. under ratio.—Agri . . . nihil: p. 280, 3. The ager privatus was “the land belonging to the individual,” as opposed to the ager publicus, “the land belonging to the state”: ager separatus was “land marked out by boundaries.”—Longius = diutius (see note on dedit operam, Nepos, Them. VII): longe may be said of space, but not of time: though longius, and longissime may be said of both.—Frumento: “on corn”: vivo like vescor takes the abl. of means: p. 283, 10.—Maximam partem: adverbial acc.—Multum sunt: see Vocab. under multum.—A pueris: “from boyhood”: cp. ἐκ παιδων.—Nullo . . . assuefacti: “as they are trained to no systematic performance of duty”: literally, “trained to no set duty or system.” Caesar refers to the restraints of civilized society, education, etc.: assuefacio is used also with the dative.—Quod . . . faciant: virtual oblique narration: “because, as they say, they do so.”—Immani . . . magnitudine: p. 284, 12.—In eam . . . ad-duxerunt: “they have brought themselves up to such hardy habits”: the imperfect subjunctive in haberent . . . lavarentur is irregular; we should expect the pres.: p. 295, 2.—Locis frigidissimis: see Vocab. under loca.—Vestitus: p. 280, 3.

Chapter II.—Mercatoribus . . . habeant: the construction is, mercatoribus est aditus ad eos (i. e., Germanos) magis eo (consilio) ut habeant (eos) quibus vendant (ea) quae ceperint bello: eo: “for this reason.”—Quibus: final = ut eis: p. 294, 5.—Quae . . . ceperint = taliam quae ceperunt: p. 296, 5.—Quam quo = quam eo quod, “than for the reason that”: for subjunctive desiderent: p. 297, 3.—Quin etiam: see Vocab. under quin.—Impenso . . . pretio: see Vocab. under impensus.—Summi . . . laboris: p. 280, 4.—Equestribus proeliis: “in cavalry engagements.”—Pedibus: “on foot.”—Eodem . . . vestigio: see Vocab. under vestigium.—Eorum moribus: “according to their notions”: abl. of cause.—Inertius: “more indolent” or “more unskilful.”—Quamvis pauci: “however few.”

Chapter III.—Publice: “as a nation” opposed to privatim, “as an individual.”—Quam latissime: p. 143, note.—A suis finibus: “on the side of their territories”: so below a Suebis.—Hoc . . . posse: “by this (they suppose) is shown the fact that a great number of states cannot withstand their power": the subject of significari are the words magnum... posse.—Agri: subject of dicuntur: note the personal use: see note on videtur (Nep., Hannibal, Chap. I).—Succedunt: see Vocab. under succedo.—Ut... Germanorum: see Vocab. under captus.—Paulo: join with humaniores. Note that propterea quod like the simple quod takes the indicative when stating facts: p. 297, 3.—Moribus assuefacti: "made familiar with Gallic habits": see note on nullo... assuefacti (Caes., B. IV, Chap. I).—Cum: "although," answered by tamen: p. 303, 5.—Ac... redegerunt: "and they reduced them to a state of far less importance and strength," i.e., than they originally had. The distinction between multum and multo is this: the former is used with verbs, and the latter with comparative adjectives and adverbs.

Chapter IV.—Causa: "condition."—Multis... locis: in is omitted with locus when qualified with an adjective.—Vi contendere: "to dispute a passage by force."—Reverti: note that the forms of revertor from the present are passive in form, and from the perfect are active.—Tridui: scil. spatii: p. 280, 4.—Equitatu: abl. of instrument or of accompaniment with cum omitted.—Priusquam... certior fieret: p. 299, 8.—Reliquam partem: p. 284, 4.—Eorum copiiis: "with their supplies": i.e., the supplies of the Menapii.

Chapter V.—Quod sunt: p. 297, 3.—Student: see Vocab. under studeo.—Nihil... existimavit: "he thought that no confidence at all should be placed in them": nihil=an emphatic non.—Est... consuetudinis: "now this is a characteristic of Gallic custom": p. 279, 2.—Uti... cogant... quaerant... circumstat... cogant: explanatory of hoc.—Audierit aut cognoverit: indirect questions, p. 291, 1. The latter verb implies personal experience. Note the change in number in circumstat and cogant. The questions are put by the individuals comprising the vulgus. Decline vulgus: p. 230, foot note.—Rebus: "the facts" they hear from the merchants.—Auditionibus: "hearsays."—In vestigio: see Vocab. under vestigium.—Quorum... poenitere necesse est: "of which they are bound to repent at once": eos poenitere is the subject of necesse est, literally, "of which that they repent is necessary."—Plerique: scil. viatores.—Ficta respondeant: depending on cum: see Vocab. under fictus.

Chapter VI.—Qua... cognita: the relative serves as the connecting link of the two chapters: "now as he knew this custom": see note on quae contumelia (Nepos, Them., Chap. I).—Ne... occurreret... proficiscitur: note that proficiscitur is a historic present, and has the force of a secondary tense in sequence: p. 290, 2, foot of page.—Ea... facta: scil. fuisse.—Uti... discederent... quae postulassent: p. 305, 2.—Fore parata: fore with a perf. part. pass. in indirect represents a fut. perf. in direct.—Qua spe: "and by hope of this": cp. hoc metu (Caes., B. V, Chap. XIX).—Clientes: "dependents" on certain persons belonging to patrician families of Rome who acted as patroni or counsellors in the law courts for the clientes. Hence perhaps our present meaning. Caesar means that the Treveri were the protectors of the Eburones and Condruſi.—Ea quae cognoverat: the relative is merely explanatory to ea, and not a part of Caesar's thoughts; hence, the indicative: p. 307, 13, (a), (b).—Imperato: "levied": abl. absolute. What two meanings has impero?

Chapter VII.—Quibus in locis: Caesar often repeats the antecedent in the relative clause.—Haec: here refers to what comes after: "as follows."—Neque priores . . . inferre: in direct speech we should have: nos Germani neque priores . . . inferimus.—Lacessantur: a reported speech generally depends on an historical tense and the subjunctives are usually imperfect or pluperfect. Here Caesar uses the present or perfect subjunctive (possederint) as more vivid.—Quin . . . contendant: "still (they say) they do not decline to fight, if they are attacked."—Quin: p. 294, 7.—Resistere neque deprecari: the infinitives are explanatory of consuetudo, and might have been replaced by ut with the subjunctive: p. 293, 3.—Attribuant . . . patiantur: what would these be in direct narration? : p. 306, 3.—

Chapter VIII.—Quae visum est: scil. respondere: literally, "which it seemed good to reply."—Si . . . remanerent: the tense is due to respondit: p. 307, 8. The succeeding present subjunctives give vividness to the narrative.—Verum: "fair," "just."—Qui . . . potuerint: the perfect gives vividness and includes the present: "since they (hitherto) have not been capable, and are not (now) capable": qui causal: p. 298, 5.—Tantae praesertim: praesertim strengthens a previous statement by adding a fresh reason: "which can be granted rightly, and that too, to so vast a horde."

Chapter IX.—Post diem tertium: "the third day from that time": "the next day but one," as the Romans reckoned inclusively.—Propius se: see note on propius Tiberi (Nepos, Hannibal, Chap. VIII).—Ne . . . quidem: i.e., no more than their other demands.—Aliquot diebus ante: abl. of difference: so also with post: p. 283, 7; 284, 3.—Interponi: "was introduced": interponere means, "to throw an obstacle in the way": cf. hoc decreto interposito: "this decree having put an end to the discussion."

Chapter X.—Mosa . . . influit: the reading in the text is Kraner's suggestion. At present both the Meuse and the Rhine flow into the German Ocean, and are connected by the Waal. The Meuse can be said to flow into the Rhine only by regarding the Meuse when joining the Waal as "flowing into the Rhine."—Insulam . . . Batavorum: the word Batavi still exists in the form Betuwe (meaning "good meadow"), a name applied to one of the islands in the Rhine.—Ex Leopontii: "in the country of the Leopontii": the name of the people is put here, as we often find in Caesar, for the country. The source of the Rhine is in Mount St. Gothard.—Longo spatio: "after a long distance": abl. abs.—Citatus fertur: "flows with a swift stream."—Sunt qui . . . existimantur: note the indicative with sunt qui, referring to a definite antecedent. Distinguish in meaning the expressions sunt qui credunt and sunt qui credant: p. 296, 5, (a).—Piscibus . . . ovis . . . vivere: see note on frumento vivunt (Caes., B. IV, Chap. I).—Capitibus: here caput is “the mouth” of a river: other writers use it in the sense of “the source.”

Chapter XI.—Amplius . . . millibus: abl. of extent or difference: p. 283, 7; 286, 3. Note that amplius, plus, minus in such cases have no influence on the construction.—Ut . . . constitutum: see Caes., B. IV, Chap. IX.—Uti . . . praemitteret: the construction is uti praemitteret (nuntios) ad eos equites qui antecessissent agmen: the qui clause is a consequence relative clause (p. 296, 5).—Pugna prohiberet: p. 282, 1.—Potestatem faceret: see Vocab. under potestas.—Fidem fecisset: “would give them assurance”: note that the verb either agrees with the nearest nominative or the expression principes ac senatus may be taken together as equivalent to a noun of multitude.—Quae . . . ferretur: virtual oblique: p. 307, 11.—Daret: equivalent to imperative da in direct narration: p. 306, 3.—Eodem illo pertinere: “pointed in that same direction”: see Vocab. under pertineo.—Eodem illo pertinere is explained by the substantival clause ut.—Qui abessent: virtual oblique: p. 307, 11.—Convenirent = convenite of the direct: p. 306, 3.—Mittit: scil. nuntios: note the historical present as seen in the sequence of the subsequent verbs: p. 290, 2, foot of page.—Qui nuntiarent: p. 294, 5.—Et . . . sustinerent: scil. hostes: “and to hold the enemy in check.”—Quoad . . . accessisset: p. 306, note.

Chapter XII.—At: see note on at (Nepos, Them., Chap. III).—Ubi primum: p. 298, 2.—Quorum . . . quinque millium numerus: note the double genitive after numerus: for quinque millium: p. 280, 4.—Cum . . . haberent: p. 297, 4.—Octingentos: see note on amplius . . . millibus (Caes., B. IV, Chap. XI).—Quod ii . . . redierant: p. 297, 3.—Nihil timentibus nostris: nihil may be taken as either the object of timentibus, or as an emphatic non.—Indutiis: dat. of purpose: p. 279, 12.—Rursus resistentibus: scil. nostris: “and when our men had come once more to a halt.”—Consuetudine sua = ex consuetudine sua: “according to their custom.”—Subfossis . . . deiectis: these ablative absolutes are not co-ordinate in time: “after stabbing our horses from beneath, and, in consequence, unhorsing many of our men.”—Deiectis: scil. de equis.—Prius . . . quam . . . venissent: the object of the Romans would be to reach the main body of the army: p. 299, 8.—Interficiuntur: historical present.—Genere natus: p. 282, 3.—Quoad potuit: p. 298, 3.—Cecidisset: distinguish from cecidisset.—Id: “this mishap.”

Chapter XIII.—Neque iam: “no longer.”—Sibi: p. 279, 11.—Qui . . . intulissent: dependent clause in oblique narration: p. 305, 2: so augerentur . . . reverteretur.—Summae dementiae esse: “was the height of madness,” predicate genitive: p. 279, 2.—Quantum . . . auctoritatis: p. 280, 3.—Essent consecuti: p. 291, 1.—Nihil spatii = nihil temporis: p. 280, 3.—Ne . . . praetermitteret: explanatory of consilio: “not to let pass a battle day,” i. e., a favorable chance for bringing on a battle.—Pugnae may be either (1) a genitive like tempus committendi proelii, or (2) a dative of purpose.—Quod: explaining res; “the fact that.”—Postridie eius diei mane : “early next day.”—Postridie = posterī die : a locative of time.—Simul . . . simul = et . . . et : “both . . . and.”—Sui purgandi causa : “to clear themselves.” Notice that though sui is plur., purgandi is sing.—Quod . . . commississent : “for having contrary to what had been agreed upon and to what they themselves had asked, begun a battle on the day previous” : the subjunctives are those of oblique narration, representing what the Germans said : p. 305, 2. With contra atque : cf. alter ac. We should have expected contra id quod esset dictum.—De indutiis fallendo impetrarent : “that they might obtain their object in regard to the truce by deception” : this final clause depends on venerunt, and is in apposition to sui purgandi causa, which is equivalent to an ut-clause.—Oblatos : scil. fuisse.

Chapter XIV.—Acie triplici instituta : “drawing up his men in a triple line.” The whole legion was so arranged in three lines that intervals of the first line were covered by the second. The first line consisted of four cohorts, the second of three and the third of three. Each interval was equal to the front of a cohort. The men stood usually ten deep, so that a cohort presented a front of between thirty and forty men, according to the number in a legion. The cohorts were arranged thus :

4	3	2	1
	7	6	5
10		9	8

Cohorts 1, 2, 3, 4 would first engage the enemy, and if they failed, or were tired, 5, 6, 7 would advance through the intervals and take their place, while the first line would reform and get breath. The third line was held in reserve and only brought into action if the first two lines proved unsuccessful.—Millium : scil. passuum : an omission for the sake of euphony, and only used with the form millium.—Prius . . . quam . . . possent : the subjunctive implies Caesar's purpose in making the march : p. 299, 8.—Discessu suorum : scil. principum : “by the withdrawal of their chiefs.”—Perturbantur : equivalent to perturbantur dubitatione : “were distracted with doubt” : an historic present as shown by sequence of tense.—Ne . . . an . . . an : for utrum . . . an . . . an.—Uno loco : for omission of in, see note on multis locis, B. IV, Chapter IV.—Puerorum mulierumque : “consisting of women and children” : genitive of definition : p. 281, 8.

Chapter XV.—Suos : their wives and children.—Ad confluentem Mosae et Rheni : either where the Waal (which flows into the Meuse) leaves the Rhine, or where the Waal joins the Meuse.—Fuga desperata : Cicero uses desperare fugam ; Caesar always desperare de fuga except in the ablative absolute.—Ex tanti belli timore : “freed from the alarm of so serious a war” ; or concessive, “great though the alarm of the war had been.”—Quadringentorum . . . millium : gen. of description.—Apud eum = in castris : “with him.”

Chapter XVI.—Iustissima : “most valid.”—Quod explains illa : “namely that.”—Suis . . . voluit : “he wished them to have fears for the safety of their own dominions as well.”—Timere may take a dative of the person or thing for the safety of which fear is entertained.—Quoque : i.e., as well as make others fear for their safety.—Accessit quod : “there was added the fact that” : p. 293, 2.—Qui . . . postularent : p. 294, 5.—Intulissent : after the virtual oblique narration implied in postularent : p. 305, 2.—Dederent : ut is often omitted after verbs of command.—Cur . . . postularet? : “Why should he demand that anything should be under his rule or authority?”—Imperii . . . potestatis : scil. esse = “belong to.” The former refers to military authority, which was practically unlimited outside the city ; the latter is official power delegated to one by virtue of his office.—Quod . . . premerentur : the subjunctive of oblique narration introduced by orabant : “because (as they alleged) they were being hard pressed” : p. 307, 11.—Si . . . prohiberetur : “if he was prevented from doing so by being engrossed with political affairs” : with prohibeo we have quominus, ne or the infinitive as here : p. 294, 6.—Transportaret : i.e. (Ubii orabant ut) exercitum transportaret : “(the Ubii asked that) he would merely lead his army across the Rhine,” i.e., make merely a military demonstration.—Id . . . futurum : “that this would be enough to aid them (for the present), and to give them hope for the future.”—Sibi = Ubiis.—Ad : “as regards.”—Opinionem eius exercitus : exercitus = objective genitive to opinionem : “the opinion that others had of his army.”—Nomen atque opinionem = “prestige.”—Ariovistus pulso et . . . facto : translate the participles by nouns ; “by the defeat of Ariovistus and the occurrence of the very recent battle.”—Opinione et amicitia populi Romani : populi Romani is objective genitive to opinione and subjective to amicitia : “by the reputation the Roman people had and the friendship they had for the Roman people.”—Tuti : passive in meaning from tueor : occasionally deponent verbs have perf. participles in a passive sense.

Chapter XVIII.—Diebus decem quibus : “in ten days from the time that timber began to be collected” : abl. of time within which : p. 284, 2. Coepa erat : p. 146, 4.—Quibus . . . petentibus : “to whose request for peace and friendship” = quibus quum peterent.—Fuga comparata, hortantibus iis : these ablative absolutes are not co-ordinate ; the latter depends on the former : “had made preparations for flight owing to the advice of those of the Tencteri and Usipetes.”—Finibus suis exceserant : excedo may take either acc. or abl., or abl. with ex.—In solitudinem ac silvas : a hendiadys : “into the uninhabited forest.”

Chapter XIX.—Succis : “cut down and destroyed” : it was now some time before harvest. Caesar did not wish so much to use the corn as to prevent the Ubii from obtaining it.—Uti . . . demigrarent : depends on the idea of ordering contained in nuntios dimisisse : “telling them to” : p. 292, 1. Translate this into direct narration.—Hunc : “that this was the rendezvous.”—Delectum : here is “a place for holding a levy,” a rendezvous. Usually it means “a levy.”—Medium . . . regionum : “that lies almost in the centre of the districts that the Suebi held.”—Quarum rerum causa : “for which.” Note the repetition of the antecedent with the relative—Ut . . . liberaret : these clauses are in apposition to omnibus rebus his.—Satis . . . profectum : scil. fuisse : “that enough had been successfully accomplished.”

Chapter XX.—Exigua . . . reliqua : abl. abs. : “when but little of the summer was left.”—Ad septentriones vergit : see Vocab. under vergo.—Quod . . . intellegebat : p. 297, 3.—Si . . . deficeret : so adisset, perspexisset, cognovisset : p. 305, 2.—Magno . . . adisset : “he thought it would be of great advantage to him merely to have visited the island” : the clauses si, adisset, perspexisset, cognovisset are subjects of fore.—Sibi usui : p. 279, 12.—Quisquam . . . quicquam : p. 132, 3.—Contra Gallias : the divisions of Gaul : Belgica, Celtica, Aquitania.—Incolerent : p. 291, 1. So also haberent, uterentur, essent.

Chapter XXI.—Priusquam . . . faceret : “before he made the attempt,” “before running the risk” : p. 299, 8.—In Morinos : see note on ex Lepontiis, B. IV, Chap. X.—Inde : the country of the Morini : see Vocab. under Morini.—Qui polliceantur : p. 294, 5.—Dare : there is usually a future infin. with an accusative of a noun or pronoun with verbs of promising, etc., p. 289, 4.—Ut . . . permanerent : “to adhere to that policy.”—Commium : the Atrebates were defeated at the Sambre (B. II, 23). Some escaped and settled in Berkshire. Commius was probably selected owing to the fact that being king on the continent he would have more influence over his countrymen in Britain.—Magni . . . habebatur : p. 280, 5.—Huic . . . civitates : the order is imperat huic (ut) adeat civitates quas possit (adire) : for the omission of ut, see note on dederent, B. IV, Chap. XVI.—Possit : virtual oblique.—Fidem sequantur : “be loyal to” : literally, “support the protection of (i.e., given by) the Roman people.”—Quantum : neut. sing. adj. with partitive genitive = “as much of opportunity as,” etc. Translate : “as far as he had an opportunity.”—Qui . . . auderet : causal : “inasmuch as he did not dare” : p. 298, 5.—Revertitur . . . renuntiat : historical presents, as seen by the sequence in perspexisset : p. 290, 2, at foot of page.

Chapter XXII.—Dum . . . moratur : p. 299, 4.—Qui . . . excusarent : p. 294, 5.—Superioris temporis : p. 280, 4.—Quod . . . fecissent : virtual oblique : p. 307, 11.—Populo Romano : dative, “against the Roman people” : probably in imitation of the Greek μάχεσθαι τῷ.—Seque . . . pollicerentur : construe legatique venerunt qui pollicerentur se facturos (esse) ea quae imperasset : the pluperfect of the indirect corresponds to the fut. perf. of the direct narration : “whatever you shall have ordered us to do, we will do.”—Has . . . occupationes : “this business consisting of such trifles” : p. 281, 8.—Britanniae : = bello Britannico : “to his expedition against Britain.”—Quibus refers to the hostages : eos to the Morini.—In fidem : see Vocab. under fides.—Quicquid . . . habebat : “all the war ships he had” : partitive genitive.—Ab millibus passuum octo : “eight miles off” : distance is expressed in Caesar by accusative, ablative, or ablative with ab as here.—Quominus : = ut eo minus : p. 294, 6.

Chapter XXIII.—Tempestatem : “weather,” good or bad, according to the context.—Tertia vigilia : the night was divided into four watches. Caesar started (with the infantry) from Port Itius, which some say was Boulogne : others, Wissant. The portus superior was Ambletuse. He landed on the 27th of August, probably at Deal.—Solvit: scil. naves: “he set sail.”—Cum . . . esset administratum: “since this was somewhat slowly carried out.”—Id refers to the embarkation of the cavalry.—Hora diei circiter quarta: about 9.45 a.m., as the first hour at this season was at 5.3 a.m. and sun-set at 7.—Expositas: here for collocatas, instructas.—Ita join with continebatur: “was so closely bounded by precipitous mountains.”—In litus: “to the beach,” “to the water’s edge.” The cliffs of Dover answer the description.—Ad egrediendum: scil. ex navibus: “for disembarking.”—Dum . . . convenirent: idea of expectation is implied: p. 299, 6.—Monuitque . . . administrarentur: the first and second ut = “as”: the third is closely connected with quae; hence ut quae = quippe quae, so that ut must be understood with administrarentur: “and he enjoined upon them that everything should be carried out at the slightest hint and at the right time, as the mode of warfare, and, most of all, the marine service required, subject as it was to sudden and uncertain changes”: for the omission of ut see note on dederent (B. IV, Chap. XVI).—Aperto ac plano litore: see note above on tertia vigilia.

Chapter XXIV.—At: see note on Them., Chap. III.—Quo genere: scil. militum: p. 283, 10. Tacitus (Agr. 12), however, says: in pedite robur: quaedam nationes in curru proeliantur.—Prohibebant: a conative imperfect: “tried to prevent.”—Quod . . . poterant: p. 297, 3.—Militibus: join with disiliendum erat: “the soldiers had to leap down.”—Autem: the order of the clauses is inverted; cum illi, “whereas they (the Britons)” should come first and should be answered by militibus autem: “the soldiers on the other hand.”—Ignotis locis, impeditis manibus: abl. abs.: “in ignorance of the locality, and with hands encumbered.”—Ex arido: “from the dry land,” “standing on dry ground.”—Omnino: with imperiti: “totally unpractised in this kind of warfare”: p. 281, 9.—Non . . . utebantur: “did not show the same spirit and eagerness as they had been accustomed to display in engagements with foot soldiers.” The Romans had not before this been trained to fight while wading in the water or against warriors mounted on chariots.

Chapter XXV.—Inusitator: “somewhat novel.”—Motus ad usum expeditior: “and their movement in actual service less difficult,” i.e., than those of the merchantmen. The war ship (navis longa) though longer than the merchantman (navis oneraria) was not so wide, and could be more easily handled because it was of lighter burden. It was fitted with oars as well as sails.—Ad latus apertum: “on the right flank of the enemy”: the shield protected the left side.—Usui nostris: p. 279, 12.—Paulum modo: “only a little.”—Atque at the beginning of a new sentence is rare, and usually makes a strong contrast between what follows and what precedes: “and then.”—Qui . . . aquilam ferebat = aquilifer: “the eagle bearer.” The eagle (aquila) was the standard of the Roman legion, as the signa and vexilla were the standards of the cohorts and centuries.—Nisi vultis = si non vultis.—Praestitero: “I intend to perform” = (quidquid accidet), praestitero: “(whatever happens) I shall have performed.”—Inter se: “each other,” the Latins have no reciprocal pronoun corresponding to the Greek ἀλλήλους.—Hos . . . conspexissent: “and when those on board the nearest ships had been the first to see them": with ex navibus, cp. ex equis pugnare: "to fight on horseback."

Chapter XXVI.—Nostrī tamen . . . hostes vero: the clauses are inverted: see note on autem, B. IV, Chap. XXIV.—Atque alius alia ex navi: after atque supply quod from the previous clause: "and further, because some from one ship and some from another."—Aliquos singulares: "some isolated men."—Ubi . . . conspexerant: "whenever they saw": in iterative action, the pres., imperf., and future of the principal clause have respectively the perf., plupf., and fut. perf. in the subordinate clause. Note the force of the imperfects.—Ab latere aperto: see Caesar, B. IV, Chap. XXV, note on ad latus apertum.—Plures: agrees with hostes and in contrast to paucos.—Quos conspexerat: "whomever he saw": see note above on ubi conspexerant.—Submittebat: give the force of impf.—Suis copiis consecutis: "and when all their comrades had come up to them."—Neque . . . potuerunt: "and yet were not able."—Hoc . . . defuit: "this was the only thing that Caesar lacked to maintain his previous good fortune."

Chapter XXVII.—Simul atque . . . receperunt: p. 298, 2.—Ex fuga: "after the flight."—Obsides daturōs: scil. se esse.—Imperasset: p. 305, 2.—Supra: see B. IV, Chapter XXI.—Demonstraveram: perf. more usual.—Praemissum: scil., fuisse.—Cum . . . deferret: "since he was bearing the commands of Caesar in the character of ambassador": p. 297, 4.—Ut ignosceretur: scil. multitudini ab eo: "that the common people would be pardoned by him": p. 278, 4.—Quod . . . intulissent: "of their having waged war against him": virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Ultrō: "of their own accord."—Arcessitam: "as they had to be brought."

Chapter XXVIII.—His rebus: "on these terms," or "by these means."—Post diem quartum quam: post is regarded as governing diem, but really belongs to quam, forming postquam. The regular construction would be quarto die postquam.—Superiore portu: probably Ambleteuse, north from Boulogne.—Leni vento: abl. abs.—Solverunt: scil. ancoras: "set sail."—Sui . . . periculo: "peril to themselves."—Cum completerentur: "when they were nevertheless getting filled with water in spite of the fact that they dropped their anchors."—Tamen opposes ancoris iactis.—Adversa nocte: "in the face of night."

Chapter XXIX.—Nocte: night of August 30th, 55 B.C.—Qui dies: regularly the construction would be: quo die luna consuevit, etc., the highest or spring tides occur a day after new moon and a day after full moon.—Incognitum: in the Mediterranean there are no tides or very slight ones at certain points. One would suppose that Caesar's soldiers would have observed the tide on the west coast of France, the previous year, when they were fighting the Veneti.—Exercitum transportandum curaverat: see Vocab. under curo.—Quae . . . deligatae: "which were riding at anchor."—Funibus . . . amissis: "owing to the loss of their ropes, anchors, and the rest of their tackling": causal abl. absolute. The abl. absolute is often equivalent to a causal clause.—Id quod . . . accidere: "as was unavoidable."

able.”—Quod : acc. subject of accidere ; the phrase quod accidere is subject of neesse est.—Quibus possent : = ut eis possent : “on which they could be conveyed home” : consequence clause : p. 296, 5.—Usui : p. 279, 12.—Omnibus constabat : “it was agreed by all” : dative of indirect object. We also find inter omnes constare.—Hiemari oportere : “that winter had to be passed.”—In hiemem : “to last till winter.”

Chapter XXX.—Principes : subject of duxerunt.—Hoc . . . quod : “for the reason that” : p. 293, 2.—Hoc : abl. of means.—Etiam angustiora : “even narrower” than usual.—Optimum . . . producere : “thought the best thing to do was to renew the war, to keep our men from corn supplies and to prolong the campaign to the winter.”—Factu : p. 175.—His superatis . . . interclusis : conditional abl. absolute : “if these were defeated and prevented from returning” = Si superati essent . si interclusi essent.—Reditu : abl. of separation : p. 282, 1.—Suos . . . deducere : “to call back their men” from the interior to the sea-coast.

Chapter XXXI.—Ex eventu navium : “from the accident to his vessels” : objective genitive : p. 281, 7.—Ex eo, quod : “from the fact (namely) that” : p. 293, 2.—Quod accidit : “which actually did occur” : for the indicative see p. 307, 13 (a).—Subsidia : “resources.”—Cotidie : said of daily repetition : in dies, in dies singulos, in diem, said of daily increase or decrease.—Quae . . . naves earum = earum navium quae : antecedent expressed in relative clause.—Cum . . . administraretur : either impersonal or with res understood as subject.—Reliquis . . . effecit : literally : “he so arranged that it might be suitably sailed with the rest” : “he made sailing possible with the rest.”—Navigari : impersonal.

Chapter XXXII.—Dum . . . geruntur : p. 299, 4.—Fruentatum : p. 289, 1. Caesar had with him in Britain the 7th and 10th legions.—Interposita : “having arisen.”—Hominum : “inhabitants.”—Ventitaret : frequentative : “were coming to and fro.”—Portis : what were the names of the gates of a Roman camp?—In statione : “on sentry duty.”—Quam consuetudo ferret : “than was usual” : ut consecutive is sometimes omitted after quam : p. 296, 5 (c).—In ea parte . . . quam in partem : the antecedent repeated in the relative clause.—Id quod erat : “the truth,” “what really was the fact.” See note, Chap. XXXI, on quod accidit.—Aliquid novi . . . consilii : “some new design” : partitive genitive : p. 280, 3.—Cohortes : with iussit.—In stationibus : see in statione above.—In stationem succedere : see Vocab. under statio.—Nam quod : “for since” : nam is to be taken with delituerant and quod with erat.—Incertis ordinibus : abl. abs. : “since their lines were broken” : see ordo in Vocab.—Circumdederant : scil. nostros.

Chapter XXXIII.—Ex essedis : “on war chariots” : cp. ex equo pugnare.—Pugnae : = pugnandi.—Per omnes partes : i.e., up and down between the two armies.—Ipsa terrore equorum : “by the very terror caused by their horses” : subjective genitive : p. 280, 6.—Ordines : scil. hostium.—Cum . . . insinuaverunt : “whenever they work their way” : note the iterative use of cum : see note on ubi . . . conspexerant, B. IV, Chap. XXVI.—Turmas : refers to the divisions of the British horse.—

Illi: the warriors, though some take it to mean the retainers (clientes): cp. Tacitus (Agr. 12): Auriga honestior: clientes propugnant.—In declivi ac praecipiti loco: “when the ground is sloping and even steep”: since the verb esse has no pres. part. the prepositional abl. abs. (abl. + prep.) is used for it.—Brevi: scil. tempore: “in an instant.”

Chapter XXXIV.—Quibus rebus: either (1) causal ablative, “owing to these facts,” “wherefore”; (2) ablative of means with perturbatis: “to our men confused by these attacks from the fact that the mode of fighting was new.”—Namque=Greek καὶ γάρ: “and (this was evident) for,” etc.—Quo facto: concessive abl. abs.: “though this happened.”—Ad lacesendum: scil. hostes: “for skirmishing with the enemy.”—Quae: . . . continherent: consecutive relative: p. 296, 5.—Quanta . . . daretur: “what a splendid opportunity was presented of securing booty and of freeing themselves for ever.”—Liberandi: sing., though sui is plur.—Daretur: subjunctive: p. 291, 1, and p. 307, 11.—His rebus: “by these representations,” referred to in the previous sentence.

Chapter XXXV.—Idem: subject of fore and explained by the clause ut . . . effugerent: “that they (the Britons) would escape owing to their speed.” They had greater mobility than the Romans.—Diutius: join this with non: “they could no longer withstand.”—Quos tanto spatio . . . potuerunt: “and pursuing them so far as their strength and speed allowed.”—Quos=et eos.—Cursu et viribus: abl. of instrument: p. 283, 5.—Occiderunt: scil. nostri milites. Distinguish in meaning occiderunt.

Chapter XXXVI.—Numerum obsidum duplicavit: = duplicem numerum obsidum imperavit: hence his is a dative.—Quem . . . imperaverat: see Book IV, Chap. XXVII.—Propinqua die aequinoctii: causal abl. abs. The date of the equinox was September 24th. As Caesar landed August 27th and left about September 24th, we can see how stubbornly the Britons must have fought, as he got no further than the shore.—Infirmis navibus: a causal abl. abs.—Hiemi . . . subiciendam: scil. esse: “that his voyage ought not to be exposed to a storm.”—Eosdem . . . portus: see note on tertia vigilia (B. IV, Chap. XXII).

Chapter XXXVII.—Ex navibus: refers to the duae onerariae referred to at the end of Chap. XXXVI.—Proficiscens: “in the act of setting out”=cum proficisceretur.—Non ita magno: “with not so very large a number”: this use of ita is confined to negative sentences.—Si . . . nollent: dependent clause of oblique narration after iusserunt: p. 307, 11.—Orbe facto: in cases of extreme danger the Romans formed a circle with their baggage in the centre while the soldiers faced the enemy. We should say “forming a square.”—Suis auxilio: p. 279, 12.—Amplius horis: the ordinary construction would be horas: see note on amplius . . . millibus, B. IV, Chap. XI.

Chapter XXXVIII.—Siccitates: the plural may refer to successive periods or to the dryness in different localities.—Quo se recipent non haberent: “did not know where to retreat”: with this meaning of habere compare that of the Greek ἔχω: οὐκ εἶχον ὅπου τράποιμτο. Note that quo se recipent would be a deliberative subjunctive in direct=quo nos recipiamus? “to what place are we to retreat?”—Quo perfugio . . .

fuerant usi: quo is attracted into the case of perfugio: “which (i.e. the swamps) they had used as a refuge.”—Omnino: “in all.”—Ex litteris: “in accordance with Caesar’s despatch.”—Supplicatio: either a thanksgiving for national success as here or a day of humiliation for national disaster.

BOOK V.

Chapter I.—In Italiam: = in Galliam Cisalpinam: Italy Proper did not till 27 B.C. include Liguria, Gallia Cisalpina and Illyricum, though as here it often was applied to all the country south of the Alps. Caesar usually spent his winters at Lucca or Ravenna.—Consuerat: = consu-everat.—Imperat (ut) curarent: note the historic present imperat shown by the sequence of tense.—Possent: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Quam quibus: = quam (eas naves) quibus.—In nostro mari: the Mediterranean.—Atque id: scil. facit.—Propter crebras commutationes: refers to the varying currents in the channel.—Ad onera: scil. transportanda from the transportandam following.—In reliquis . . . maribus: the different parts of the Mediterranean went under various names.—Actuarias: “as rowing vessels,” note that impero can take an inf. if that inf. is pass. What would be the regular construction? p. 292, 1.—Usui: p. 279, 12.—Conventibus: Caesar as proconsul held assizes or courts of justice in the chief cities of Northern Italy.—Qui doceant: p. 294, 5.—Paratos satisfacere: = paratos ad satisfaciendum: the inf. with esse paratos is on the analogy of velle, which is equivalent to paratos esse.—Fecerint: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Qui . . . aestiment . . . constituent: p. 294, 5: litis aestimatio in criminal law is the assessment of the amount of damages a convicted person has to pay.

Chapter II.—Citeriorem Galliam: otherwise called Gallia Cisalpina.—Ad exercitum: wintering in Belgium (Book IV, Chap. XXXVIII).—Singulari militum studio: abl. abs.—Cuius: attracted into the case of the antecedent: quod would be regular.—In summa . . . inopia: prepositional abl. abs.: see note on in praecipiti ac declivi loco (B. IV, Chap. XXXIII); “though they were in the greatest need of all kinds of materials.”—Neque . . . possint: “and they were almost ready to be launched in a few days”: literally, “and there was not much short of that point but that they might be launched.” We should expect ut instead of quin: p. 293, 1, A.—Deduci: see Vocab. under deduco.—Huic rei: “for carrying out this object,” i.e., collecting the fleet at Portus Itius.—Expeditis: “in fighting trim,” i.e., without heavy baggage.—Ad concilia: i.e., the assembly of the Gallic tribes which Caesar held at Samarobriua (Amiens).

Chapter III.—Alter: “the latter,” i.e., Cingetorix.—In officio: see Vocab. under officium.—Ab amicitia . . . defecturos: see Vocab. under deficio.—Gererentur: dep. clause in oblique narration: p. 305, 2.—Cogere: depends on instituit at the end of the sentence.—Per aetatem: might mean that they were too old or too young.—In silvam . . . abditis abdo with in and accusative involves the idea of removal as well as concealment: “having been removed to the Ardennes wood and concealed there.”—Quoniam . . . non possent: Caesar is not stating their real motive, but what they alleged to be their motive : p. 297, 3.—Note the meaning of consulere with a dative: see Vocab. under consulo.—Sese . . . noluisse : the inf. depends on the notion of saying contained in legatos mittit.—Quo facilius : p. 294, 4.—Laberetur : “would fall away from their allegiance,” “would revolt.”

Chapter IV.—Dicerentur . . . deterreret : p. 291, 1.—Nominatim : “personally,” in the summons: the selection of the rest would be left to Indutiomarus.—Consolatus : “reassured him” in regard to the safety of his son and relatives who were to accompany Caesar to Britain.—Principibus . . . convocatis hos : note the irregularity for principes . . . convocatos without the redundant hos.—Quod = namque id.—Cum . . . tum : “both . . . and.”—Merito eius : “as a reward for (by reason of) his service” : p. 281, 7.—Eius : Cingetorix.—Se : Caesar.—Magni interesse : p. 282, 14.—Qui . . . fuisset : subjunctive of causal relative : p. 298, 5; and of oblique narration : p. 305, 2 : “and since he had already been unfriendly disposed towards us.”—Inimico . . . animo : abl. of quality : p. 284, 12.—Hoc dolore : “at this grievance.”

Chapter V.—Equitatus : the nobility who served as cavalry.—Numero : abl. of respect : p. 284, 13.—Perspexerat : “he had observed.”—Obsidum loco : “as hostages.”

Chapter VI.—Magni animi, magnae . . . auctoritatis : p. 280, 4.—Accedebat huc quod : “to this was added the fact that,” “there was the further consideration that” : p. 293, 2.—Huc = ad hoc . . . neque recusandi aut deprecandi causa : see Vocab. under deprecor : “and they did not dare to send envoys to Caesar to contradict this or to beg for mercy at his (Caesar's) hands.”—Omnibus . . . precibus : “by all kinds of entreaties.”—Navigandi : objective genitive depending on insuetus : p. 281, 7.—Timeret . . . diceret : the reasons given by Dumnorix were not regarded by Caesar as real reasons : p. 297, 3.—Quod . . . diceret = quod religionibus impediretur, ut dicebat : “because (as he said) he was prevented by religious scruples.” Perhaps because Britain was the centre of Druidism.—Territare : historical inf.—Non . . . fieri dixit omitted before oblique narration.—The clause ut . . . spoliaretur is the subject of fieri : so also in the next part of the sentence the clause ut . . . necaret is in apposition to consilium.—Interponere : the historical inf.—Ex usu : see Vocab. under usus.—Communi consilio : cf. publico consilio : see Vocab. under consilium.

Chapter VII.—Caesar : subject of statuebat.—Quod . . . tribuebat : so quod . . . videbat below : p. 297, 3.—Quibuscumque rebus posset : virtual oblique : p. 307, 11.—Longius : “too far.”—Prospiciendum : scil. statuebat : “he made up his mind that he should adopt measures.”—Temporis = anni.—Dabat operam : see Vocab. under opera.—Milites peditesque = pedites equitesque : the cavalry in a legion numbered 300, the infantry 4,200.—Onnium impeditis animis : “when the attention of all was taken up” with the embarkation.—Retrahiq̄ue imperat : see note on actuaris (B. V, Chap. I).—Si vim faciat neque pareat : virtual oblique : p. 307, 11.—Pro sano : “as a sane man.”—Qui . . . neglexisset : see note on qui . . . fuisset (B. V, Chap. IV).

Chapter VIII.—Portus: see note on tertia vigilia (B. IV, Chap. XXIII).—Pro tempore et pro re: “as time and circumstances demanded.”—Pari numero . . . quem . . . reliquerat: instead of quem we should have expected atque or ac: “with the same number of cavalry as he had left”: Caesar took half of his whole force of cavalry with him.—Aestu: the ebb tide carrying the ships from the shore.—Eam partem insulae: see note on aperto ac plano littore (B. IV, Chap. XXIII).—Annotinis: “those of the year before”: in Chap. I he calls them veteres.—Sui . . . commodi: either a phrase governed by causa understood, “for the sake of his own convenience,” or a descriptive genitive depending on quas.—Quisque: i.e., merchants or the like.—Amplius octingentae: note that amplius, plus, minus have no influence on the construction: see on amplius . . . millibus, B. IV, Chap. XI.—Superiora: “farther up the country.”

Chapter IX.—Consedissent: p. 291, 1.—Qui . . . essent: p. 294, 5.—Praesidio navibus: p. 279, 12.—De tertia vigilia: de with a word of time originally means, “starting from” a point: hence “after the third watch was set.”—Navibus: “for his ships,” dative of remote object with metuo, timeo.—Quod . . . relinquebat: p. 297, 3.—Ut videbantur: “apparently”: note the personal use of videor.—Testudine facta: see Vocab. under testudo.—Fugientes: acc. after prosequi: eos governed by vetuit.—Quod . . . ignorabat . . . volebat: p. 297, 3.—Munitioni castrorum: “for the construction of the camp”: cf. castra munire, “to encamp.”

Chapter X.—Postridie eius diei: literally, “on the day following that day”: postridie = posterius die, a locative of time: eius diei: genitive of description: (see note, B. IV, Chap. XIII).—Aliquantum itineris: p. 280, 3.—Extremi: “the rear of the enemy.” Others take it to mean “the rear of the expeditionary force” of Caesar. In that case iam in conspectu means “still in sight of Caesar,” who remained behind in the camp.—Qui nuntiarent: p. 294, 5.—Subsisterent . . . possent: subjunctives of dep. clause of oblique narration: p. 305, 2.

Chapter XI.—Resistere: “halt.”—Coram perspicit: “he in person sees.”—Sic ut: literally, “to the extent that”: cf. use of tantum.—Magno negotio: “with great trouble.”—Fabros: “ship carpenters”; a corps of fabri, “wrights,” skilled in mechanical arts, was attached to each legion, under a praefectus fabrum.—Quam plurimas posset: virtual oblique: as many as Labienus thought he could build: p. 307, II.—Iis legionibus: “with the aid of those legions”: abl. of instrument: p. 283, 5.—Quae sunt apud eum: not an integral clause of oblique narration: p. 307, 13, (a).—Multae operae ac laboris: p. 280, 4.—Subduci: see Vocab. under subduco.—Ne . . . intermissis: “not even the night time making any interruption in the continuance of the labor of the soldiers.”—Eodem: “to the same position,” i.e., to the camp by the river.—Summa . . . administrandi: “the supreme command in, and conduct of, the war.”—Communi consilio: “by common consent”: cf. publico consilio.—Circiter . . . octoginta: i.e., from near Deal, where he probably landed.

Chapter XII.—Quos = et eos: the subject of proditum (esse) is the clause quos natos (esse) in insula: “and they state that the tradition is that they were indigenouſ,“ literally, “born in the iſland itſelf.”—Pars: ſcil. incolitur.—Iis nominibus civitatum: = nominibus earum civitatum: “by the names of thoſe ſtates.”—Quibus . . . ex civitatibus: for the repetition of the antecedent with the relative, ſee note on quibus in locis (B. IV, Chap. VII).—Aere: “bronze,” a mixture of copper and tin and different from brass, a mixture of copper and zinc.—Taleis ferreis: “iron bars.”—Plumbum album: “tin”: Caesar here reverses the facts.—Praeter fagum atque abietem: probably Caesar did not meet with theſe, and hence denied their exiſtence. They are certainly plentiful now in Britain.—Animi voluptatiſque cauſa: “for amuſement and pleaſure.”—Loca: ſee note on locis frigidiffimis (B. IV, Chap. I).

Chapter XIII.—Inferior: ſcil. angulus: this is Land’s End, off the coaſt of Cornwall.—Alterum: ſcil. latus.—Dimidio minor: Great Britain is ſaid to contain 84,000 ſquare miles: Ireland 36,000 ſquare miles.—Pari ſpatio tranſmiſſus: literally: “of the ſame interval of ſpace acroſs as from Gaul to Britain”: tranſmiſſus is a genitive depending on pari ſpatio, abl. of deſcription: p. 284, 12.—Mona: the Iſle of Man answers the deſcription, though Angleſey is called Mona in Tacitus.—Subiectae: “adjacent.” He probably refers to the Hebrides, Orkney, and Shetland iſlands off the coaſt of Scotland; but is, of courſe, wrong with regard to their poſition.—Bruma: a contraction for brevima = breviffima: ſcil. dies: 21ſt December.—Ex aqua: “by the water clock”: (clepsydra), made on the principle of the ſand-glaſs.—Ut . . . opinio: “as their belief is.”—Angulus: i.e., at Kent.

Chapter XIV.—Lacte et carne vivunt: vivo takes the conſtruction of vescor: abl. of means.—Hoc: ſcil. vitro: “thereby,” “by this.”—Horridiore . . . aspectu: abl. of quality: cf. capillo . . . promiſſo: p. 284, 12.—Deni duodenique: “companies of ten or twelve”: he probably refers here to the pre-Aryan race of Britain. Join inter ſe with communes: “common to one another.”—Quo: literally “whither,” “to whoſe houſe.” Translate “by whom.”—Deducta eſt: “was led home as a bride”: cf. ducere uxorem in matrimonium.

Chapter XV.—Ut: consecutive: “with the reſult that.” Note that the perfect ſubjunctive expreſſes a ſingle fact: p. 295, 2.—Compluribus interfectis: i.e., of the Britons.—Insecuti: i.e., noſtri milites Britannos cupidius insecuti.—Imprudenter noſtris: “while our men were off their guard.”—In statione: ſee note on in statione, B. IV, Chap. XXXII.—Subsidio: “as a reinforcement”: p. 279, 12.—His primis: a regular ſyſtem of promotion prevailed in the Roman army, and the firſt cohort contained the moſt experienced veteran ſoldiers.—Novo genere pugnae: the light armed infantry of the Britons, armed with only broadsword and targe, and the charioteers were more mobile than the legionary ſoldiers.—Tribunus militum: there were ſix to each legion, each having under him ten centurions. See Vocab. under tribunus.

Chapter XVI.—Quod . . . poſſent . . . auderent: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11: the feelings of the ſoldiers, not of Caesar, are repreſented.—Cedentes: ſcil. hostes governed by insequi.—Illi: i.e., the Britons.—Cederent . . . deſilirent . . . contenderent: virtual oblique narration: p. 307, 11.—Dispari . . . proelio: “in an unequal mode of fighting”; when the Roman ranks were broken, the Britons were more effective soldiers owing to their greater mobility: cf. note on novo genere pugnae (B. V, Chap. XV).—Equestris . . . ratio: “whereas when the fighting was between cavalry, the danger was equalized whether they were retreating or pursuing.”—Cedentibus et insequentibus: scil. Britannis: p. 278, 6.—Rari magnisque intervallis: “scattered and with wide intervals between the detachments.”—Exciperent: “relieved.”—Integri et recentes: “the unwounded and fresh.”

Chapter XVII.—Lenius: “with less energy.”—Sic uti . . . non ab-sisterent: “so vehemently that they did not abstain from attacking the companies and legions” —Subsidio: ablative: p. 278, foot note.—Praecipites . . . egerunt: “drove in headlong flight.”—Sui colligendi: “of recovering themselves,” “of rallying.”—Ex hac fuga: “after this rout.”—Summis . . . copiis: “with their full strength.”

Chapter XVIII.—Uno omnino loco: “at one ford and no more.”—Alteram: “opposite.”—Cum capite . . . exstarent: “though they had only their heads above water.”—Capite: abl. of difference: p. 283, 7.

Chapter XIX.—Contentionis: “of rivalry.”—Itinera nostra serva-bat: “dogged our march.”—Ex via: “from the high road”; the imper-fects express repeated action.—Magno periculo nostrorum equitum: subjective genitive: p. 280, 6.—Hoc metu: see note on qua spe (B. IV, Chap. VI).—Relinquebatur ut: “the only thing left to do was that Caesar”: p. 293, 1, top of page.—Neque . . . discedi . . . pateretur: “should neither allow any wide departure from the main column of the legions.”—Discedi: an impersonal infinitive.—Et tantum . . . noceretur: “and that so much injury should be inflicted upon the army by way of devastating the fields and causing conflagration.” Note the impersonal use of noceretur: p. 278, 4.—Quantum . . . poterant: “as the legionary soldiers were able to effect by their exertions on the march,” literally, “by their exertions and march” (hendiadys).

Chapter XX.—Civitas: the Trinobantes inhabited Essex and the southern part of Suffolk. Their chief town was Camalodunum (now Colchester), afterwards a Roman colony.—Caesaris fidem secutus: “having accepted the protection of Caesar,” said of the inferior. The superior was said recipere in fidem.—Ipse: “while he himself.”—Ab iniuria Cassivellauni: “from injury on the part of Cassivellaunus”: subjective genitive: p. 280, 6.—Qui praesit . . . obtineat: p. 294, 5.

Chapter XXI.—Ab . . . prohibitis: “secured from all wrong-doing on the part of the soldiers”: subjective genitive: p. 280, 6.—Cenimagni: see Vocab. for the position of these tribes.—Convenerit: “have mustered”: dependent clause in oblique narration: p. 305, 2; part of the news given to Caesar.—Cum . . . munierunt: “whenever they fortify”: see note on ubi . . . conspexerant: B. IV, Chap. XXVI.

Chapter XXII.—Dum . . . geruntur: p. 299, 4.—His: the petty kings of Kent.—Castra navalia: see Vocab. under castra.—Multum aestatis: p. 280, 3.—Extrahi: “be wasted on delays.”

Chapter XXIII.—Deductis: see Vocab. under deduco.—Duobus commeatibus: “in two relays”: p. 283, 5.—Quae...portaret: “such as carried”: consecutive relative: p. 296, 5.—Et prioris commeatus: i.e., “both those of the first relay after landing their troops.”—Prioris commeatus: genitive of description: p. 280, 4.—Quas: supply eae before quas in apposition to quae: the inanes are (1) the first relay; (2) those built by Labienus.—Aequinoctium: about September 21st.—Secunda...vigilia: “at the beginning of the second watch,” about 9 p.m.

EXERCISES IN LATIN PROSE.

BASED ON NEPOS AND CAESAR.

N.B.—No exercise should be attempted until the text has been mastered. The exercises on Nepos should be done orally.

EXERCISE I.

Themistocles, Chapter I.

1. Neocles, the father of Themistocles, married a lady of Halicarnassus.
 2. A lady of Halicarnassus married¹ Neocles, the father of Themistocles.
 3. None of his countrymen can be considered superior to him. 4. In early youth he neglected his property. 5. His property was neglected by him. 6. Did he not devote himself to public affairs? 7. Let us begin from the beginning of his life. 8. He transacted many important affairs. 9. Many important affairs were transacted by them. 10. This reproach was not removed by Themistocles without great exertion. 11. He became so great that no one was considered equal to him. 12. He was so careless of his property that his father disinherited him. 13. He lived a dissolute life, and was disinherited by his father. 14. He was so ready in speaking that he often appeared in private trials.

EXERCISE II.

Themistocles, Chapter I.

1. He had great vices and great virtues. 2. His virtues were more numerous than his vices. 3. In serving his friends, he served himself. 4. He soon began to speak in the courts. 5. He explained in words very easily the measures which he saw to be necessary. 6. Could he not conjecture very truly what was about to be? 7. He was found to be a man of the greatest energy. 8. He judged that energy was necessary for the transaction of business. 9. Will he not devote himself to his friends in early youth? 10. Hence it happened that the Athenians thought that no one had ever been born equal to him.

EXERCISE III.

Themistocles, Chapter II.

1. The people elected Themistocles general in the war. 2. They built a fleet of one hundred vessels. 3. This fleet was built by them with the money which came in from the mines. 4. When he had built this fleet, he pursued the pirates. 5. The fleet was of great service to Greece during the Persian war. 6. It consisted of two hundred ships. 7. When the city was abandoned, the people put all their possessions on board of their ships. 8. After this report was brought to Athens, the citadel was committed to the elders. 9. The fleet of the Persians consisted of war ships and transports. 10. The messengers who were sent to Delphi brought the following reply. 11. The Athenians were more skilful in naval battles than the other Greeks. 12. The number of the ships with which the Persians crossed the sea was twelve hundred.

EXERCISE IV.

Themistocles, Chapter II.

1. The king of Persia carried on war against Greece by land and sea. 2. War was carried on by the king against Greece. 3. The Athenians sent men to Delphi to consult the priestess. 4. What shall we do? 5. They asked what they should do. 6. The priestess gave an answer, but no one knew what it meant. 7. Themistocles ordered them to leave the city and put all their goods on board of their ships. 8. The elders will protect the citadel, but the rest will go on board of the ships. 9. He persuaded them to obey the command of the god. 10. He persuaded them that all their property should be removed to Salamis. 11. The elders moved to the citadel to protect themselves. 12. Their plan was to abandon the city to the Persians. 13. Themistocles said that their ships were the wooden walls of which the god spoke.

EXERCISE V.

Themistocles, Chapter III.

1. We are opposed to this plan, but they are in favor of it. 2. The Athenians decided to carry on war by land and sea. 3. Leonidas, King of Sparta, was sent to seize the pass of Thermopylae. 4. The Lacedaemonians seized the pass to prevent the barbarians from advancing into Greece. 5. Men were sent along with Leonidas to prevent the advance of the enemy. 6. The Greek fleet of three hundred vessels engaged the Persian fleet at Artemisium. 7. The two fleets then moored nearer the island of Salamis to meet the attack of the Persians. 8. Our fleet will be stationed between Euboea and Greece. 9. They left Artemisium to avoid being surrounded by the forces of the king. 10. We did not dare to depart for fear that the enemy would surround us with all their forces.

EXERCISE VI.

Themistocles, Chapter III.

1. The result was that the Athenians did not remain at Artemisium. 2. There is danger that the enemy will surround them. 3. If they had remained there, the enemy would have surrounded them. 4. If they remain there, they will all perish. 5. There was a danger that they would be defeated in this battle. 6. Had the Persian fleet sailed round the island of Euboea, they would have surrounded the Athenian fleet. 7. They were threatened by danger from two sides. 8. The result was that they decided to sail to the city. 9. Had they not withstood the Persians at the pass, we should all have perished. 10. The object of Themistocles was to reach Athens. 11. Had they fought with all their fleet, they would have defeated the Persians.

EXERCISE VII.

Themistocles, Chapter IV.

1. After taking Thermopylae, the king will destroy the city with fire. 2. Themistocles advised them to protect themselves. 3. I advised him not to destroy our homes with fire. 4. You will be a match for the forces of the king if they are all scattered. 5. He will advise his comrades to remain where they are. 6. As the enemy are in flight, I advise you not to remain here but to pursue them. 7. When the army of the king was defeated by Themistocles, the Persians had at once (statim) to withdraw from Greece. 8. I do not believe that there is any treachery. 9. Has not Themistocles himself sent me a faithful slave? 10. A messenger came by night to tell the king the designs of the Greeks. 11. He will come from Themistocles who commands their fleet, and the king will believe that the Greeks will be defeated.

EXERCISE VIII.

Themistocles, Chapter IV.

1. He said to the king that the city would be destroyed by fire. 2. "We shall all perish," said he, "if we remain in this place." 3. He said that they would all perish if they remained in that place. 4. The king was not influenced by the words of the Persian commander. 5. A faithful slave was sent to say that the Greeks were in flight. 6. "You will finish the war," said he, "if you defeat us now." 7. They said that he would finish the war if he defeated them. 8. If we attack the enemy we shall crush them. 9. He said that if they attacked the enemy they would crush them. 10. He engaged the enemy in battle in a place so unfavorable that they were not able to extend their line. 11. The place was favorable to us but unfavorable to them. 12. He said that he could not influence the king. 13. They were so terrified by the flames that they would not remain.

EXERCISE IX.

Themistocles, Chapter V.

1. The object of the king was to conquer Greece. 2. Though Greece had been liberated, the Greeks were afraid that the king would return. 3. His forces were so great that he could easily have conquered us. 4. He was informed by Themistocles that the bridge would be destroyed. 5. He is afraid that we will return. 6. The bridge which is built over the river will be broken down within ten days. 7. You did not return though you promised to do so. 8. The king of Persia had a very great fleet. 9. Was not the king defeated in battle by the Athenians? 10. Do you think that Europe will succumb to Asia? 11. His foresight was such that none of the Athenians can be compared to him.

EXERCISE X.

Themistocles, Chapter VI.

1. This harbor, as it was small, the Athenians did not use. 2. They built another harbor to protect the city. 3. He surrounded the city with walls so high that they protected the city. 4. They declared that it was unnecessary to build such high walls. 5. The walls that had been built could not protect any city. 6. The man was sent to say that the walls were not being built. 7. He had no sufficient reason for saying this. 8. He said in our presence that he would send an ambassador to declare that the walls were not being built. 9. By this victory he will gain such glory that none can be called his equal. 10. He knew that ambassadors would be sent by the enemy to deny this. 11. He gained such pre-eminence by his victory that he was easily the first man in Athens.

EXERCISE XI.

Themistocles, Chapter VI.

1. He carried out his plans without sparing any one. 2. In carrying out his plans no one was spared. 3. The result was that they undertook to build a wall. 4. Since all knew that the walls were being built by the Athenians, why did he deny the fact? 5. He instructed all to build walls high enough to keep out the enemy. 6. The result was that their walls protected them. 7. After the walls began to be built, the enemy sent ambassadors to the Athenians. 8. He alone went as ambassador to order the Athenians to desist. 9. When you have not forbidden us to build, shall we desist from the work? 10. The result was that all, whether slave or freeman, desisted from building the walls.

EXERCISE XII.

Themistocles, Chapter VII.

1. It is right that you should send men in whom you have confidence. 2. They said that it would not be right to send men in whom they had no confidence. 3. Whenever he went to the magistrates, he requested them to hold him as a hostage. 4. "Do not," said he, "let the ambassadors of the enemy go till I am sent back." 5. We have, according to the common rights of all nations, protected our homes with walls. 6. That you may the more easily protect your city, you have surrounded it with walls. 7. The fleet of the king has often suffered shipwreck near the city. 8. You are doing wrong, since you do not take into consideration what will be of advantage to all Greece. 9. If you wish to recover your own ambassadors, send me back again to Athens. 10. He wished to protract the time as long as possible.

EXERCISE XIII.

Themistocles, Chapter VIII.

1. They condemned him for treachery in his absence. 2. Ambassadors were sent to accuse him of treachery. 3. They will take refuge at the court of the king as he is our friend. 4. The king received them under his protection because he had been himself a suppliant. 5. He promised to give the captain of the ship a gift when he reached Ephesus. 6. The captain did not allow anyone to disembark till he had landed Themistocles. 7. After he had ordered Themistocles to consult for his own safety, he landed him at Ephesus. 8. He knew that it was unsafe to land at the island of Naxos, as there was an Athenian army there. 9. As you have made me this promise, I will tell you who I am. 10. If you save me from my enemies, I will show my gratitude. 11. When they reached the house the king had fled.

EXERCISE XIV.

Themistocles, Chapter IX.

1. He said that he had done much harm to the king. 2. He had informed the king that the bridge would be destroyed. 3. The object of the enemy is to destroy the bridge. 4. He was informed that the enemy intended to surround him. 5. My object in doing this is to free you from fear. 6. He will tell the king to receive you as a friend. 7. Do you know that you will have in me a good friend of your king? 8. Everybody knows that I have been driven from Greece because I am a friend of the king. 9. He talked over the matter with me after he learned that I had returned home. 10. When you come here, stay at my house.

EXERCISE XV.

Themistocles, Chapter X.

1. He will devote himself to literature for a year. 2. It is said that he was so learned in the Persian tongue that he spoke it more readily than many a Persian. 3. It will be said that he received presents from the king. 4. The king promised to give him a city from which he might obtain bread. 5. Another city was given him to supply him with wine. 6. There are some who say that he died of poison. 7. Did he take poison because he could not make good the promises he had made to the king? 8. If you are willing to adopt my plans, I will supply you with forces to crush the Greeks. 9. As I have made this promise to you, I will make it good. 10. There are some who say that he was buried in Attica. 11. Others say that it was not lawful to bury any one accused of treason in Attica, and that he was buried at Magnesia.

EXERCISE XVI.

Aristides, Chapter I.

1. Why do you consider me worthy of punishment? 2. I asked him why he considered me worthy of punishment. 3. Although he was the only man among them surnamed the Just, he was condemned to exile. 4. The citizens restored him to his native land six years after he was expelled. 5. We can easily see how much Themistocles surpassed him in ability. 6. It is said that Aristides asked a citizen why he was being condemned to exile. 7. When they were asked what crime Aristides had committed, they replied that he was surnamed the Just. 8. I am not pleased with this man because he is called the Just. 9. The punishment for such a crime was exile for ten years. 10. He knew that he could not check an excited populace.

EXERCISE XVII.

Aristides, Chapter II.

1. The battle was fought before he returned. 2. We shall all participate in the battle. 3. Before the supreme command was transferred to Aristides, the Athenians defeated a large army of the barbarians. 4. The result will be that the supreme command will be transferred (use futurum esse ut) to the Athenians. 5. He performed many illustrious acts in that war, but none was more illustrious than this. 6. In consequence of the victory, the Athenians became the leaders of the Greeks. 7. The result of this was that he was defeated by us. 8. Almost all the states of Greece joined the Athenian alliance. 9. When the battle was fought, they selected him as general. 10. Before that time the supreme power was in the hands of the Lacedaemonians.

EXERCISE XVIII.

Aristides, Chapters II, III.

1. This man was chosen to repel the barbarians. 2. They asked him to determine how many ships each state should contribute. 3. The allies contributed yearly a large amount of money to the common treasury. 4. What place do you wish to be the treasury? 5. They afterwards transferred it from Delos to Athens. 6. His poverty was so great that he left no money to his children. 7. Though he was in charge of important business he died in poverty. 8. How many ships have you built? 9. His daughters will be maintained at the public expense. 10. Must we choose such a one as leader? 11. Order them to raise two hundred talents.

EXERCISE XIX.

Hannibal, Chapter I.

1. Hannibal surpassed all other commanders in valor as much as the Romans surpassed all other nations. 2. He was vanquished by the envy of his own countrymen. 3. We do not doubt that he almost vanquished Rome. 4. Even after his countrymen exiled him, he never ceased to hate us. 5. If he had not been a great leader he would not have defeated you so often. 6. Does he not need help from others? 7. His hatred against the Romans was so great that it never left him. 8. Though he fought for fifteen years in Italy, he was never defeated by us. 9. Will you drive a man of such valor from the country, my countrymen?

EXERCISE XX.

Hannibal, Chapter II.

1. No one doubted that he was a powerful king. 2. Do not conceal it from them. 3. Tell him that you have bribed Hannibal to be our friend. 4. They had been sent by the Romans to discover the disposition of the king. 5. Prepare war against Rome and make me your leader. 6. I am afraid that he has other views. 7. When they went to the king at the appointed time, they told him that they could never be the friends of Rome. 8. There is no doubt they will do this to no purpose. 9. I shall always be of the same mind as I am now.

EXERCISE XXI.

Hannibal, Chapter III.

1. Will he set out with his father for Spain? 2. After the death of his father, he commanded the cavalry. 3. When Hasdrubal was killed Hannibal became commander of the whole army. 4. Do you think that he can take it by storm? 5. Within three years all the tribes of Spain were subdued by him. 6. After raising three very large armies, he crossed the Alps, a feat which no commander had ever performed before him. 7. Leaving one army in Spain, and sending another to Africa, he led a third into Italy. 8. After defeating the Alpine tribes who attempted to obstruct his march, he built a road across the mountains. 9. He defeated all the nations whom he engaged in battle.

EXERCISE XXII.

Hannibal, Chapter IV.

1. When the Romans first met him in battle they were defeated. 2. Scipio was wounded in the battle fought near that city. 3. Hannibal met the Romans a second time in battle and defeated them. 4. Two Roman consuls were killed by him in the same year. 5. After crossing the Apennines he was attacked with a disease of the eyes (of one of his eyes), of which he never afterwards had the proper use. 6. It is said that he was carried in a sedan chair. 7. Do you think that anyone ever routed so many Roman generals? 8. The consul of the previous year was defeated by him in battle and fled. 9. After crossing the Alps, he routed one consul at Ticinus, and both in the following year at Trasimenus. 10. After defeating two armies, he seized the mountain passes.

EXERCISE XXIII.

Hannibal, Chapter V.

1. Shall we now set out for Rome? 2. We shall be resisted by no one. 3. Will he dupe our general again? 4. Have you heard how he extricated himself? 5. So terrified were the Romans that no one left the camp. 6. All know how great a general he is. 7. He has defeated all our generals. 8. Whenever he pitched his camp, no one dared to oppose him. 9. He met no resistance after the battle of Cannae. 10. Not many days after this battle, he ambushed and defeated another army.

EXERCISE XXIV.

Hannibal, Chapter VI.

1. He will be recalled from Italy to carry on war in Africa. 2. When the two leaders met they could not agree upon terms of peace. 3. As it was impossible to agree, the Carthaginians had to fight. 4. I am afraid they have ambushed our army. 5. As the resources of the country are exhausted, I wish to make peace. 6. Collecting an army, he met the Romans at Zama. 7. Within two days his army marched to Hadrumetum. 8. By making peace now, I shall be stronger by and by (say, in a short time). 9. If I escape now, I shall engage them again when I can. 10. He collected another army from the soldiers who had escaped.

EXERCISE XXV.

Hannibal, Chapter VII.

1. Let us send envoys to demand his surrender. 2. These wars were carried on by the Romans for many years. 3. Ambassadors were sent from Carthage to Rome to sue for peace. 4. The ambassadors thanked the Romans because they had brought the war to an end. 5. After the war was over, they recalled him. 6. Being elected chief magistrate, he showed the same diligence in peace as he had previously displayed in war. 7. They begged the Romans to return their hostages. 8. After making this request we returned home. 9. Two men are elected annually at Carthage to govern the country. 10. The new imposts will supply money to pay the Romans.

EXERCISE XXVI.

Hannibal, Chapter VIII.

1. Antiochus was persuaded by Hannibal to set out for Italy. 2. If the Romans had attacked Carthage with a fleet of five ships, the city would have been taken. 3. When he learned that Hannibal was approaching the river, he marched to meet him with a large army. 4. If he had been punished in the same way, he would never have undertaken this war against us. 5. Despairing of success, he set sail for Italy, but was killed soon after by his slaves. 6. Would he ever have formed this plan had he known that we would desert him? 7. In carrying out his plans, he was willing to obey me, and I will never desert him. 8. Though he was defeated in battle, he escaped in safety from the field (acies). 9. No one will ever persuade him to desert the city of Carthage.

EXERCISE XXVII.

Hannibal, Chapter IX.

1. Hannibal was afraid that the Cretans would surrender him to the Romans. 2. When he came to Crete, he considered what he would do. 3. When he was in great danger, he formed the following plan. 4. I never thought that they would take my money from me. 5. He knew that the Cretans would carry off the gold if they were able. 6. Let them find out, if they can, where I have deposited it. 7. I will pretend that the gold has been deposited in this temple. 8. Do you suppose the Cretans will believe you? 9. They will carry away this money unless we prevent it. 10. The fame of Cretan avarice has gone forth to all the earth.

EXERCISE XXVIII.

Hannibal, Chapter X.

1. When he reaches Pontus he will win over all the tribes of that great country. 2. All through his life he had no object but to make war on

Rome. 3. He knew that it was impossible to gain a victory over the king by arms alone. 4. In winning over these tribes, his object was to collect a large army. 5. Is not the enemy superior both in men and in ships? 6. This done, he ordered the fleet to attack. 7. I will take care that you know in what ship the king is. 8. If you kill the king you shall have a great reward. 9. He said that if they killed the king they should have a great reward. 10. Calling the marines together, he told them that he would crush the enemy by stratagem. 11. Take the king prisoner, but do not kill him.

EXERCISE XXIX.

Hannibal, Chapter XI.

1. Both sides launched their vessels, and the battle began. 2. The marines did not know where the king was. 3. Tell us when we shall attack their fleet. 4. I kept wondering what he found in the letter. 5. The king did not hesitate to open the letter. 6. There can be no doubt that he will be unable to withstand our attacks. 7. They could not understand why the whole fleet attacked the ship of the king. 8. Do you think that he will rout the enemy by such a stratagem? 9. By seeking your own safety you have vanquished your fleet. 10. He said that he was seeking the king in order to give him the letter.

EXERCISE XXX.

Hannibal, Chapter XII.

1. Hannibal happened to be at that time at the court of Prusias. 2. When the ambassadors were dining with the consul, mention was made of him. 3. So long as this man lives, he will be our enemy. 4. Seize him, if you can; you will easily find out where he is. 5. The boy happened to see the envoys coming. 6. He ordered him to find out if the doors were all beset. 7. O that we may find him! 8. Let us beg the king to surrender our enemy. 9. O that we had sent an envoy to them. 10. When the boy returned, he told Hannibal that all the doors of the house were beset. 11. He knew then that he must surrender or die.

EXERCISE XXXI.

Hannibal, Chapter XIII.

1. It is not agreed whether he died in the year 183 B.C. or not. 2. There are some who say that he died in the consulship of Claudius and Fabius. 3. He died at the age of seventy, and in the same year as Scipio.

4. He wrote several books of his campaigns in Asia. 5. It is said that these books were written in Greek. 6. Hannibal employed two Greeks as instructors. 7. It is impossible to decide which of the two is the better general. 8. Though occupied with such important affairs he had time to write books. 9. We can easily see by comparing the deeds of these two that Hannibal was a greater general than Scipio.

EXERCISE XXXII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter I.

1. Next year a large number of Germans crossed the Rhine. 2. For several years the Suebi had harassed them and prevented them from tilling their lands. 3. The men who serve in the field are supported by those who remain at home. 4. No one is allowed to remain longer than a year in one place. 5. They spend a large part of their time in hunting. 6. The boys are not trained to any duty and they do nothing against their will. 7. On account of this daily exercise they become men of extraordinary strength. 8. They have no clothing except the skins of the animals they capture in the chase. 9. Even in the coldest weather they bathe in the rivers. 10. They are so powerful that they send forth every year from home a hundred thousand armed men.

EXERCISE XXXIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter II.

1. All the booty they take in war they sell to the merchants, for they import nothing. 2. The Gauls take especial delight in imported horses, while those of the Germans are small and deformed. 3. Caesar tells us that the Germans often leap from their horses in battle. 4. To render these horses more active, they train them daily. 5. They train their horses to remain in one place, so that the riders may be able to find them where they leave them. 6. To prevent the people from becoming effeminate, they do not import wine. 7. They wish to have some one to whom they may sell what they can export. 8. The animals they use at home are small. 9. Do not think that any one uses a saddle. 10. They think that nothing is more disgraceful than to flee from the battle.

EXERCISE XXXIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter III.

1. It is said to be their special glory to have extensive territory. 2. We must make them weaker than ourselves. 3. After they had driven their enemies from the territory (abl. abs.), they made them tributary. 4. They are more civilized than the people of the other states. 5. Though they often attempted to expel us from our lands, they were unable to do so. 6. If they had been more civilized, would they have been weaker? 7. The river Rhine is the boundary on one side; on the other, the lands of the Suebi. 8. This nation is the most civilized of all the Germans. 9. Are they not rather weaker than their neighbors? 10. Though the most powerful nation of all Germany, they did not wish a neighboring nation near them. 11. They did not expel a neighboring tribe, but made it subject.

EXERCISE XXXV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter IV.

1. For several years we have withstood them. 2. Driven from our homes we have been wandering about Germany for three years. 3. They prevented us from crossing by placing forces on each side of the river. 4. He pretended to be going home, but returned within a few days. 5. After seizing our city they expelled us before our forces arrived. 6. After proceeding a journey of many days, they were informed that you had crossed the river. 7. Tell us if they have completed the work in one night. 8. He learned that they intended to cross the river and occupy these villages the rest of the winter. 9. They seized our ships and crossed the river that night. 10. They were so alarmed at his approach that they returned home.

EXERCISE XXXVI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter V.

1. What have you heard of (de) this matter? 2. I asked him what he had heard of the matter. 3. From what district do you come? 4. I asked him from what district he had come. 5. I must not answer you according to your wishes. 6. He compelled the man to repent of his act. 7. Do they listen to every traveller who visits them? 8. They are fickle in forming their plans and very eager for change. 9. Do not be the slave of hearsay. 10. These idle tales often influence them in forming their plans.

EXERCISE XXXVII.—(Review.)

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters I-V.

1. The people of this tribe were eager for hunting. 2. They live on flesh and milk, are clothed (vestio) with skins, and even in winter bathe in their rivers. 3. They do not allow the merchants to bring wine into the country because they believe it enfeebles the constitution. 4. The horses that the Germans employ are small. 5. We buy them at a high price. 6. After devastating the lands of their neighbors they made them tributaries. 7. After wandering throughout Germany for three years, they came to a land which the Menapii inhabited. 8. So alarmed were they at the approach of the Germans that they stationed guards to prevent them from crossing. 9. The Germans had no ships, and therefore could not cross the river. 10. Pretending to return home, they suddenly turned, fell upon the Menapii, and seized their ships.

EXERCISE XXXVIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VI.

1. On learning that ambassadors had been sent to him by the enemy, he set out for the camp. 2. To avoid meeting the enemy, he marched more quickly than usual. 3. They said that they had been induced to cross the Rhine by the Gauls, who had sent ambassadors to them. 4. They declared that everything they had in the camp was in the hands of the enemy. 5. After levying a troop of cavalry from them, he decided to carry on war with the enemy. 6. On his arrival there, he ascertained that the chiefs whom Caesar had summoned had assembled. 7. Several ambassadors came to Caesar to ask him why he was carrying on war against them. 8. On his arrival at the army he was informed that the Germans had been induced to make war upon him. 9. After the departure of the ambassadors from the camp, he induced the soldiers to undertake the war against the Germans. 10. Caesar found out that the Germans were withdrawing from the Rhine into the territory of the Condrusi. 11. He decided to summon the chiefs to calm the feelings of the Gauls. 12. He soon had to face a severer war than he expected.

EXERCISE XXXIX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VII.

1. Corn began to be collected. 2. He began to pick out cavalry. 3. While Caesar was advancing, deputies met him from the German army. 4. They said that they could be useful friends to the Romans, if Caesar would allow them to hold lands in that place. 5. The Germans have waged war on the Roman people for many years. 6. No one makes war on us without being defeated. 7. Do not refuse to give us lands. 8. No one can conquer the Suebi in war, for they are the bravest men in the world. 9. We can easily defend ourselves if we are assailed by others. 10. We have never been the first to make war on others, still we do not refuse to assert our rights, if we are attacked.

EXERCISE XL.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VIII.

1. If you remain in this place, there will be no friendship between you and me. 2. It is not right for those who cannot protect their own lands to seize those of others. 3. There are no vacant lands in Gaul on which you can settle. 4. If you are willing, you will be allowed to settle in the territory of the Ubii. 5. The ambassadors have come to my camp to complain of the wrongs done by you. 6. Why do you complain of the wrongs done by the Ubii and not ask aid from me. 7. If he had complained of wrongs done by us, would he have asked aid from us? 8. If he had seized the lands of others, he would now possess them. 9. You will not be allowed to hold lands in Gaul, especially since you cannot protect them with your arms. 10. You may, if you wish, settle in the lands of the Ubii, whose deputies have come to my headquarters to seek my aid.

EXERCISE XLI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters IX and X.

1. We shall report to our people what you have asked. 2. When you have deliberated on these matters, return to our camp. 3. Do not move your camp nearer our lines. 4. You will never be able to obtain this request from me. 5. Our cavalry had been sent a few days before across the river to plunder. 6. This river divides into several branches and forms many islands, which are inhabited by savage tribes. 7. This river rising in the Alps flows a long distance in a rapid course. 8. After forming this island, it flows for about eighty miles before it empties into the ocean. 9. When the deputies did not gain their request, they returned to their camp. 10. He suspected that the cavalry that had gone across the Meuse to collect forage several days before would soon return. 11. Caesar says that the inhabitants of these islands live on fish.

EXERCISE XLII.—(Review.)

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters VI-X.

1. On his arrival at the army, he learned that the enemy had been ordered to leave the Rhine. 2. After collecting a supply of corn, he set out against the Germans, who were a few days' march from his camp. 3. We have not been the first to make war upon you; still, we never decline to fight if we are attacked. 4. We can be serviceable to the Romans, if they are willing to be friends with us. 5. Allow us to retain the lands we have already won with the sword. 6. The Suebi are the only ones in the world to whom we are willing to yield. 7. Not even the gods are a match for the Suebi. 8. The envoys said that they would ask him not to advance nearer. 9. This river, after receiving a tributary from the Rhine, forms many large islands, inhabited by fierce tribes whose diet consists of fish and eggs of birds.

EXERCISE XLIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XI.

1. He sent forward envoys to tell the soldiers not to fight. 2. When the deputies were returning, they met Caesar on the march. 3. We beg of you to wait till we shall send word to the Ubii. 4. He said that the cavalry would soon return, if an opportunity was granted them. 5. Caesar, knowing the reason why the delay was asked for, told the deputies to meet him next day. 6. I asked you to settle the matter within the space of three days. 7. I order you to hold out as long as you can, if the enemy attack you. 8. Do not attack them, but hold out until I come. 9. Since a delay of three days has been granted, I shall not advance any further to-day. 10. I shall not advance more than four miles to-day, but to-morrow assemble to hear my demands.

EXERCISE XLIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XII.

1. As soon as the enemy caught a glimpse of us, they were thrown into disorder. 2. We were five thousand in number, though they were only eight hundred. 3. We had no fear of the enemy on that day, for they had asked for a truce. 4. After stabbing many of our horses, they put our cavalry to flight. 5. The brave Piso came to the rescue of his brother, who was surrounded by the enemy. 6. He inspired such terror that our men did not stop till they reached their camp. 7. The enemy attacked our lines so quickly that they threw our men into confusion. 8. We did not think that they would attack us, as they had asked for an armistice a little before. 9. In this battle Piso, while rescuing his brother from peril, was thrown from his horse and killed. 10. As soon as his brother noticed that Piso had fallen, he rushed forward against the enemy and was slain.

EXERCISE XLV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XIII.

1. We will neither hear the ambassadors nor accept their terms. 2. He ordered all the forces after they were led out of the camp to follow him at once. 3. It is the height of folly to listen to terms from men who have once been guilty of treachery. 4. Caesar decided to wait till the Gauls formed their plans. 5. When a number of the enemy came to the camp to apologize for their conduct, he seized them at once. 6. He started at once with all his forces against the enemy, after he had seized their deputies. 7. They tried to secure a truce by treachery, but Caesar ordered them to be seized because they had attacked him the day before. 8. When all these matters were arranged, it luckily happened that the enemy came in great numbers to the camp. 9. The Romans knew what prestige they had gained by this battle. 10. No opportunity should be granted the Gauls to form new plans.

EXERCISE XLVI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XIV.

1. After covering a distance of eight miles, he reached the camp of the enemy. 2. He gave the enemy no time to form their plans or to take up arms. 3. He reached the camp of the enemy before they knew that he was coming. 4. They did not know whether they should defend the camp or seek safety by flight. 5. When Caesar came to the camp of the enemy, the Germans were so alarmed at his sudden arrival that the women and children took to flight. 6. While the cavalry was pursuing the enemy, the rest of the soldiers burst into the camp and quickly put to rout those who had taken up arms to defend themselves. 7. So terrified were the enemy that they did not stop till they had crossed the Rhine. 8. Caesar sent forward the cavalry to make an attack against the enemy.

EXERCISE XLVII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XV.

1. When the Germans heard the shouts in the rear, they threw away their arms. 2. After they have thrown away their arms, they will fly to the river. 3. When they saw that a large number of their comrades had fallen, they despaired of their own safety. 4. When they reached the river, many of them plunged in and perished. 5. Many who plunged into the river were drowned in the strong current. 6. Our soldiers to a man returned to our camp in safety, though the loss of the enemy was very great. 7. So many of the Germans were now killed that the rest threw down their arms in despair. 8. Rushing out of the camp they plunged into the river, where they were overwhelmed by the force of the current. 9. When the Germans said they feared the cruelty of the Gauls, Caesar allowed them to remain with him.

EXERCISE XLVIII.—(Review.)

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XI-XV.

1. He sent forward cavalry to devastate the lands of the enemy. 2. He gave them an opportunity of sending ambassadors to Rome. 3. You shall have the same terms as were proposed by Caesar. 4. I sent a man to order the soldiers to throw away their arms. 5. They did not desist from flight till they came in sight of our camp. 6. When his brother saw him fall in battle, he rushed against the enemy. 7. We ought to hear the envoys, and listen to the terms they propose. 8. When these matters had been arranged, the Germans came to our camp for the purpose of clearing themselves of this charge. 9. We could not find out what the Germans were intending to do in regard to this matter. 10. When they reached the river many threw themselves headlong into it and perished in the current.

EXERCISE XLIX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XVI

1. The Germans were easily influenced to cross the Rhine. 2. Caesar thought that when the barbarians learned the power of the Roman people, they would be anxious for their own safety. 3. He sent messengers to demand the surrender of those who had taken part in the war. 4. They earnestly prayed him to bring aid to them, because they were attacked by their enemies. 5. Unless you unite your forces with those of the Gauls, you will not defeat your enemies in battle. 6. Caesar decided to cross the Rhine in order that the Germans, who had come into Gaul, might fear for their own interests. 7. On the arrival of the deputies, they said that they did not think that Caesar had any right to claim authority across the Rhine. 8. They thought that the friendship of Caesar would be of great help to them in future, if they could obtain it.

EXERCISE L.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XVIII.

1. Caesar led his army across the Rhine on the eighteenth day after he began to build the bridge. 2. When he had completed the bridge, he left soldiers at both ends to protect it. 3. When the ambassadors of the enemy asked him to grant them peace, he ordered them to bring hostages to him. 4. He urged the barbarians to hide themselves in the woods. 5. When the enemy asked for peace, he told them that they must obey him. 6. After leaving all their lands, they hid themselves in the woods, to which they had carried all their goods. 7. When he had led his army across the river, ambassadors came from the enemy to ask him for peace. 8. When the deputies arrived from several states, he promised them peace and friendship.

EXERCISE LI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XIX.

1. When the enemy heard that the bridge had been built over the river, they sent messengers in every direction to order their friends to move everything from the towns. 2. When he had delayed a few days in this district, he found out that the enemy had departed to their homes on learning that the Romans had built a bridge. 3. When this was done, those who could bear arms met together in the territory occupied by the Suebi, and there awaited the return of the Romans. 4. When the bridge was built, the enemy urged the women and children to take refuge in the woods. 5. He afterwards went into the territory of the Ubii, whom he had promised to free from the oppression of the Suebi. 6. The place selected by them was about the centre of the district which the enemy held. 7. Caesar thought that he had fully accomplished the objects of his expedition, when he had inspired the Germans with fear and protected the Ubii from wrong. 8. After taking vengeance on the Sugambri and spending in all eighteen days across the Rhine, he returned to Gaul.

EXERCISE LII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XX.

1. Since Caesar was not able to find out from the Gallic traders the nature and extent of the island, he decided to visit it in person. 2. If he reached the coast of Britain, he would be able to discover the harbors that were suitable for mooring his war vessels. 3. The Gallic traders who alone were accustomed to go there, had not been able to tell him anything about the inhabitants of the island. 4. He therefore decided to go to the island personally to get a knowledge of the customs and institutions of the people. 5. He decided to go to Britain to prevent the inhabitants from sending aid to the Gauls. 6. Can the merchants tell us anything about this district?

EXERCISE LIII.—(Review.)Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XV-XX.

1. As he learned that the Germans could easily be induced to enter Gau¹, he decided to bridge the Rhine and carry on war against them.
2. When the deputies of the Germans came to our camp, they told Caesar that they did not think that he had any jurisdiction across the Rhine. 3. After the completion of the bridge many deputies came from the states bordering on the Rhine, asking him to make peace with them. 4. After tarrying a few days in that district, to cut down the grain, he advanced against the Ubii. 5. In almost all the Gallic wars, the Britons had supplied aid to the Gauls. 6. Knowing nothing personally of the extent of the island, he resolved, even if little of the summer remained, to go and find out what manner of people dwelt on it.

EXERCISE LIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXI.

1. Before he set out for Britain, he ordered his lieutenant to cross the channel in a war ship. 2. He instructed his lieutenant to explore the sea coast of Britain, and to report to him the character and size of its harbors. 3. The lieutenant soon returned since he did not dare to entrust himself to the savages. 4. When he advised the ambassadors of the enemy to give hostages and obey the commands of the Roman people, they said that they would execute all his orders. 5. When he was assembling his fleet with the intention of crossing the channel, the inhabitants of Britain, learning of his design through traders, sent deputies to him. 6. After five days the lieutenant returned to Caesar and told him all he had learned of the sea coast of the island.

EXERCISE LV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXII.

1. The Morini excused themselves for making war on the Romans on the ground that they were savages. 2. Very opportunely deputies came to Caesar from the Morini, while he was collecting his ships to convey his troops. 3. They said that they had made war on the Roman people because they were unacquainted with our custom. 4. Caesar promised to take them under his protection. 5. Caesar had no desire to carry on war against the Gauls, for he wished to cross as quickly as possible to Britain. 6. The wind prevented the eighteen ships, in which the cavalry were being transported, from reaching the harbor. 7. When they had promised to execute all his orders, and had collected a large force of cavalry, Caesar set sail with the seventh and tenth legions and a fleet of eighty ships. 8. After giving his lieutenant an army to lead against the enemy, he decided to hold the port with a sufficient garrison.

EXERCISE LVI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXIII.

1. He waited at anchor till he obtained weather suitable for sailing. 2. He decided to wait at anchor till the other ships, which had set sail from the upper port, should arrive. 3. He advised his soldiers to carry out all his instructions promptly and according to command. 4. We must wait till the weather is favorable for embarkation. 5. When he had obtained a place suitable for disembarkation, he moored his ships along the shore. 6. When the cavalry had embarked on the vessels that he had collected in the harbor, Caesar gave the signal for sailing. 7. Finding the enemy ready to hurl their weapons from the steep cliffs upon him as he landed, he decided that he must wait till the rest of the army arrived. 8. Then he weighed anchor, and with favorable wind and tide he proceeded to a more open place on the coast.

EXERCISE LVII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXIV.

1. The barbarians sent their cavalry ahead to prevent our men from disembarking. 2. We could not land because the water was so shallow that the ships could not approach the shore. 3. We were compelled to form our line among the waves because the ships had to be brought to in deep water. 4. When we leaped down from the vessels into the water, the enemy spurred on their horses down to the shore, and hurled their darts at us. 5. Our men were so terrified by the enemy that they did not show the same spirit that they were accustomed to exhibit in battles. 6. When the savages heard of Caesar's plan, they sent their cavalry and charioteers ahead to prevent his landing. 7. The enemy, who were thoroughly familiar with the ground, advanced into the water to meet us.

EXERCISE LVIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXV.

1. The war ships advancing a short distance from the transports were moored on the right of the enemy. 2. When the enemy were dislodged by the arrows of our men, they withdrew from their position. 3. The eagle-bearer ordered the men to leap down from the ships into the water if they did not wish to let the eagle fall into the hands of the enemy. 4. Do not permit such a disgrace, my comrades. 5. The form and appearance of the Roman galleys were so unusual to the barbarians that they fell back in alarm when Caesar moored his vessels on their right flank. 6. When the standard bearer saw that the soldiers were hesitating, he charged them not to betray the eagle to the enemy. 7. With a loud voice, he declared that he at any rate would do his duty to his country, and leaping into the water he advanced against the enemy.

EXERCISE LIX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXVI.

1. As our men disembarked singly, they rallied round any standard they met. 2. When we saw that our men were disconcerted, we sent assistance to them. 3. We were unable to overtake the retreating enemy for we had no cavalry in the army. 4. The enemy, as they knew the ground, could attack our men en masse as they disembarked singly from their ships. 5. We were not able to follow the enemy very far, for the cavalry had been prevented from crossing by the wind. 6. As soon as the men who had taken up their position on shore formed in line, they made a fierce attack on the enemy.

EXERCISE LX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter I.

In this tribe no one is allowed by law to remain longer than a year on his own land, and private property is, therefore, a thing unknown amongst them. One half of the population till the land, and the other half serve in the army. Those who remain at home this year to till the land, serve in the field next year. In this way systematic training in war is never relaxed. The inhabitants of this state are of gigantic stature, live on flesh and milk, and are clothed with the skins of the animals they capture in the chase—a sport in which they spend a great portion of their time. Every day the young men are trained (exerceo) in exercises which render them so hardy that even in the depth of winter they wear only the scanty covering of skins, and bathe in the rivers. To such a pitch of bodily strength have they brought themselves that they are regarded the most warlike of all the Germans.

EXERCISE LXI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter II.

The inhabitants of this state prohibit by law the importation of wine, because they believe it weakens the body and renders men effeminate. Traders, in fact, are seldom permitted to enter their boundaries, and then rather to purchase the booty captured from the enemy than to sell anything to the natives. They do not take pride in the expensive horses of which the Gauls are so fond, but the native horses, though small and unshapely, are still capable of great exertions, owing to their daily training. All the inhabitants ride without saddles, quickly dismount to fight on foot, while the horses stand still and afford a ready refuge in case their riders are hard pressed by the enemy. In this way the cavalry often escape from the field in safety, and owing to their superior training they exhibit great daring even against great odds.

EXERCISE LXII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter III.

The inhabitants of those states of Germany bordering on the Rhine are more civilized than those of the other states of that nation, owing to the fact that they trade with the merchants and conform to the habits of the Gauls, who dwell on the opposite bank of the river. Most of the states are small, but that of the Ubii is larger and more highly civilized than the others. The Suebi made repeated attempts to dispossess the Ubii of their lands, but though they were unsuccessful in this, they merely made them weaker than they were before, while permitting them to retain possession of their own lands. All the Germans consider it a mark of the greatest distinction to have extensive tracts of waste lands on the side of their neighbors, for they fancy in this way they can protect their lands against their enemies.

EXERCISE LXIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter IV.

Although the Usipetes withstood the attack of the Suebi for several years, they were finally driven from their lands by their enemies. Wandering about Germany for the space of three years, they came to a district inhabited by the Menapii, who occupied lands on both sides of the Rhine. In consternation at the approach of such a host, the Menapii posted a guard on the east side of the river to prevent the Usipetes from crossing. The Usipetes tried by every possible means to cross the river, but were unable to do so owing to the scarcity of boats and the vigilance of the Menapii, who had sentinels stationed along the river. The Usipetes had, therefore, recourse to the following stratagem. Pretending to return home, they advanced three days in that direction; then turning suddenly round, they surprised the Menapii, who were caught napping, cut them to pieces, captured the ships of the latter, crossed the river and seized their property before the rest of their countrymen could come to the aid of the Menapii. In this way, they maintained themselves in this district during the rest of the winter.

EXERCISE LXIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter V.

When our soldiers came to a town of the Gauls, the inhabitants often compelled them to stop, even against their will, and to tell all the news they had heard from the people through whose lands they had passed. Often, too, when merchants came into the towns of the Gauls, the common folk surrounded them and asked them such questions as the following: "Where do you come from?" "What news do you bring?" "Have you heard anything of the enemy?" After receiving replies on these points, the Gauls formed their plans, but such slaves were they to idle rumours that they often changed their plans as soon as they had formed them: so fickle are they in disposition. Often the merchants told them things without any foundation, for every one knows that the Gauls can be entrusted with no secret. Caesar, therefore, gave instructions to the merchants to tell nothing that was transpiring in the Roman camp, for he was well aware that if this were done, the enemy would quickly mass their forces.

EXERCISE LXV.—(Review.)Caesar, B. IV, Chapters I-V.

Of all the German tribes, the Suebi are the most warlike, for they have adopted the following custom in regard to war. Every year they put into the field a hundred thousand men, who are maintained by those that remain at home. Those that serve in the field this year, remain at home next year. In this way neither the tillage of the soil nor the practise of war was interfered with. The people have no private land, live on flesh and milk, are clothed with skins, and spend the greater part of their time in the chase. By this daily exercise they become hardy, and even in the dead of winter they are accustomed to bathe in the rivers. They prohibit the importation of wine, for, as they maintain, the constitution is weakened and the people are rendered effeminate by its use. Rarely do they allow even the traders to come into their country, and then only to sell them the spoil they have taken in war. When travellers come to a town of this people, everybody crowds around them and asks them all sorts of questions, but travellers invent answers, for they never entrust a secret to the Gauls, who are so fickle that they often undertake important enterprises on the vaguest rumors.

EXERCISE LXVI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VI.

Caesar had the suspicion that the Gauls would follow their usual practise, and he ascertained, on his arrival at headquarters, that his suspicions were well founded. The Gauls had sent delegations to the several states of the Germans, and everything was ready for a war against the Romans. Anxious to avoid facing two powerful enemies at one time, he summoned a council of the Gallic chiefs, addressed them in kind words, and assured them that he was their friend. Though he had found out from his soldiers that the Gauls had acceded to all the demands of the Germans, and that the Germans had been induced by them to leave the Rhine and to enter Gaul to liberate it from the power of Rome, he concealed these facts from the deputies that were sent to him. At once he raised a detachment of cavalry and made preparations for war against the Germans.

EXERCISE LXVII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VII.

At once Caesar selected his cavalry, and began his march to the spot where he had heard the Germans were encamped. After marching several days, he met the enemy, who sent an embassy to him. One of the ambassadors spoke as follows: "We have not been the aggressors in this war, and we have always followed the traditions of our ancestors, never to attack a nation unless it first attacks us; if, however, we are attacked we never shrink from battle, and we never ask our foes for quarter. We came into Gaul on the invitation of the Gauls themselves. To you, Romans, we can be of service, but you ought to allow us either to retain the lands we have obtained by right of conquest, or to assign us other lands in Gaul. The Suebi alone are a match for us in arms, for there is no other people in the world whom we cannot defeat."

EXERCISE LXVIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter VIII.

It is not fair that you should seize the lands of others since you are not able to protect your own borders. There are no unoccupied lands in Gaul, and, therefore, it would be impossible to give lands to so large a number of people without doing wrong to others. So long as you remain on this side of the Rhine you and I cannot be friends, for it would not be right that my friends, the Gauls, should be without protection against the wrongs committed by the Germans. You may, if you wish, settle in the lands of the Ubii, whose ambassadors are in my camp complaining of the wrongs done by the Suebi. They have asked my aid in this war against the Suebi.

EXERCISE LXIX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter IX.

The ambassadors of the Germans who came to the Roman camp requested that a delay of three days be given them to discuss the proposals of the Roman commander. They told Caesar that all his proposals had to be laid before their people. If this time were given for discussing the proposals, they would return to his headquarters, and they requested, in the meantime, that he would not advance any further into their territory. Caesar knew well the reason why this delay was asked for. The enemy had few cavalry with them, for the greater part of the horse had been sent across the Meuse for the purpose of obtaining fodder, and they were waiting for its arrival. On its arrival, there was no doubt but that the Germans would attack the Roman camp. This was the reason why the delay was asked for by the Romans.

EXERCISE LXX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter X.

The Rhine is a river of Germany, which takes its rise in the Alps, and for a long distance it flows with a rapid current through the lands of several states. It divides, as it approaches the sea, into several branches, and forms large islands which are inhabited by a fierce and barbarous people, who live chiefly on fish and the eggs of birds. It receives a tributary called the Meuse, which has its cradle in the Vosges Mountains, and flows into the Rhine about eighty miles from the sea. The Waal, also, is a tributary of the Rhine. The island of the Batavi is formed by the junction of the Meuse and Rhine. The Vosges Mountains begin in the territory of the Gauls, but extend to the frontiers of Germany, and in these mountains several rivers take their rise.

EXERCISE LXXI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XI.

After these days, according to agreement, the ambassadors met Caesar on his arrival at a place about twelve miles from their own encampment. When Caesar did not grant their demands, they earnestly begged him that he would not advance further into their lands. They also entreated him to send some of his officers in advance, to keep his soldiers in check and to prevent them from making an attack against their people. They further requested him to allow them an opportunity to send ambassadors to their neighbors, for they said that if their neighbors would accede to their demands they also themselves would accept the proposals Caesar made. Caesar knew well that the object of this proposal was to gain time until the cavalry, which the enemy had been waiting for, should arrive. He told the envoys that he should advance four miles further to get water, and bade as many as possible on the next day to assemble at headquarters, but he sent orders to his advanced guard not to attack the enemy till he should be on the field in person.

EXERCISE LXXII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XII.

The enemy, as we have said, had sent most of their cavalry across the Meuse, and these had not yet returned. They, therefore, had not more than eight hundred cavalry in camp, while our men numbered five thousand. When our men were least of all expecting it, the enemy made a vigorous attack on them, and at once threw our ranks into confusion. According to their custom they dismounted, stabbed our horses, unhorsed the riders, drove the rest in flight and made such havoc that the advanced guard of our cavalry did not stop till they came up with the main body of the infantry. Among those who fell in this skirmish was Piso, a man most valiant. He met his death in an attempt to rescue his brother, who had been surrounded by the enemy.

EXERCISE LXXIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XIII.

At the very time when the Germans were sending ambassadors and suing for peace, they treacherously, without provocation, made an attack on the Roman lines. From what Caesar knew of the fickleness of the Gauls, he realized what the effect of defeat would be. He considered it would be the height of folly to wait till the enemy were reinforced by the arrival of their cavalry, and he thought it wise to allow the enemy no time to perfect their plans. Calling a council of war, he gave orders to his officers to bring on the battle early next day. Even then the Germans exhibited the same treacherous spirit as they had on the day before, for they came in numbers to the Roman camp for the purpose, as they alleged, of clearing themselves of the charge of beginning a battle. Caesar, ordering the arrest of all the deputies, then left the camp, and commanded his cavalry to follow closely the main body of the infantry.

EXERCISE LXXIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XIV-XV.

Caesar, by the rapidity of his march, gave no time to the enemy to form their plans, for he covered the distance of eight miles, which lay between his camp and the enemy, before they were aware of his advance. On his arrival, therefore, they were utterly at a loss what to do. On his arrival, indignant at the treachery the enemy had displayed the day previous, Caesar ordered the soldiers to make a general attack on the camp of the Germans. When once the Romans entered the camp, they began an indiscriminate massacre of the enemy. Some of the latter retreated to the baggage waggons, where they held out a short time; others took to flight, and in their haste they threw away their arms and military standards. Many of the Germans did not stop in their flight till they reached the river Rhine, and in their attempts to swim across perished in the stream. Our men, however, returned to the camp without much loss.

EXERCISE LXXV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XVI.

When Caesar noticed that the Germans were easily induced by the Gauls to cross the Rhine and to make war on the Roman people, he resolved to lead his forces across the river to make the Germans understand the extent of the power of the Roman army. Another reason was this, that a part of the Germans who had as yet refrained from taking part in the war, had formed a junction with those who had crossed the river. When Caesar demanded the surrender of the aggressors in this war, they sent the following reply: "If you consider it wrong for the Germans to cross the Rhine, why do you claim any power in our territory? When the Ubii sent ambassadors to you, and earnestly implored you to send aid to them, nothing would have prevented you from doing so, had you been in Gaul at that time. Your army has such a name and reputation that even the most distant tribes of Germany feel protected by your alliance with it."

EXERCISE LXXVI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XVIII, XIX.

The bridge across the Rhine was built with such speed that the whole work was completed within ten days, from the time that the timber began to be collected from the neighboring district. When our army crossed, many chiefs came to the headquarters of Caesar to offer submission; others, however, left their lands and took all their effects to the woods. The lands of the latter Caesar caused to be devastated with fire and sword; but those of the inhabitants who were well affected, he willingly spared. When the Suebi, the most powerful of the German tribes, learned that the bridge had been built, they called a council of war, and resolved to collect as many men as possible to await the arrival of the Romans, and to fight a pitched battle in a central part of their territories. Caesar, however, did not march against them, for he considered that all the objects aimed at had been attained. He had struck terror into the hearts of the Germans, he had wreaked vengeance on the Sugambri, and had saved the Ubii from attack. After cutting down the bridge, he returned to Gaul.

EXERCISE LXXVII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XX.

Caesar decided to visit Britain before winter set in, to prevent the Britons from assisting the Gauls. He thought it would be of advantage to ascertain the size of the island, the kind of the inhabitants, and the extent of their power, for almost nothing was known to Rome. Merchants had told him that if he visited it, he would find on the sea coast a people possessing ships and harbors. The ships they use both for visiting the localities that lie opposite the island, and for making war on their enemies. Their skill in war, accordingly, was considerable, and time would fail me to enumerate the wars they have carried on. They live under institutions which have been extolled by almost all who have investigated them, and no one has ever visited the island without learning something which proved of advantage to himself.

EXERCISE LXXVIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XX-XXI.

Roman merchants had occasionally touched at Britain, but they were unable to give any information as to the size of the island, the qualities of the harbors, the character or habits of the inhabitants. Caesar desired to look at these with his own eyes, and the fleet which had been used in the Venetic war¹ was ordered to assemble in the channel. He directed Caius Volusenus, an officer whom he could trust, to take a galley and reconnoitre the coast of the island, while he himself followed to Boulogne,² where his vessels were waiting for him. The gathering of the flotilla and the object had been reported to Britain, and envoys from various tribes were waiting there with offers of hostages and humble protestations. Caesar received them graciously, and sent back with them a Gaul surnamed Commius, whom he had made chief of the Atrebatas, to tell the people that he was coming over as a friend, and that they had nothing to fear.

EXERCISE LXXIX.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XX-XXI.

When Caesar was on the point of setting out for Britain, he summoned from all sides traders, to ascertain the size of the island and the character of the inhabitants that dwell there. From these he learned very little, for they were very chary of risking their lives among the barbarians who inhabited the island. He, therefore, selected Caius Volusenus, an officer in whom he had the greatest confidence, and commanded him to reconnoitre the island in a war-ship, as far as his opportunities would allow him to do so. When the officer had inspected the coast, he returned five days after his departure, and reported the results of his observations to Caesar. Summer had almost closed, and there was slight hope of finishing the campaign that year, as the winter in these northern climates sets in early. He mustered all the men-of-war he could, and proceeded with all speed to carry on war against the Britons.

EXERCISE LXXX.

Caesar, B. IV, XXII.

Volusenus had just returned to the camp after an absence of five days, unable to find anything of importance about Britain or its people. The ships that had arrived at port were unable to carry over more than two legions, but for Caesar's purpose they were sufficient. Leaving Sabinus and Cotta in charge of the rest of the army, he despatched Rufus to the coast to look after the vessels. The general, thinking that nothing should interfere with his design of crossing into Britain, also started at once for the port from which there was the shortest sea passage to Britain, and there he awaited for several days the arrival of the cavalry. But the latter did not come up till after Caesar left Gaul, for they were wind bound about eight miles, so that they could not reach the harbor from which they intended to sail.

EXERCISE LXXXI.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXIII.

"I have called you together, officers, in order that I may convey my wishes to you personally. All arrangements are completed; the troops will embark during the present watch. As soon as wind and tide are favorable, I shall give you the signal for embarkation. Thereupon let all embark, weigh anchor, and set sail at once. When you have gone forward about seven miles, you will see a large island; there the ships of the enemy are stationed. Hem them in on all sides, and, if possible, let not a single man escape. Meantime let all await on the open shore till the signal is given."

Turn the above also into oblique narration.

EXERCISE LXXXII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XXIII-XXIV.

When he obtained fair weather, he set sail about midnight and reached Britain at 10 a.m. On his arrival at the island, many difficulties presented themselves to him. In the first place, the shore was not suitable for disembarkation, for it was so steep that the enemy could hurl from the cliffs their darts on our soldiers, who had taken up their position on the shore. Our ships, too, could be moored only in deep water owing to their size, and, therefore, the soldiers were compelled to leap down from their vessels into the water, form in line, and meet the onset of the enemy. Besides, the soldiers knew little of the locality, while the enemy knew every shoal. Under these circumstances our men did not exhibit the bravery that usually characterized them on such occasions.

EXERCISE LXXXIII.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapters XXIII, XXIV.

A council of war was called, and the general addressed his staff as follows: "I consider it a fortunate thing that we have had fair weather for the expedition; still you must not imagine that the campaign will be an easy one. I recognize the magnitude of the difficulties you will have to face. You will meet in battle the fiercest foe you have yet encountered—a foe, too, that knows every foot of the ground; you will need to disembark in deep water, where it will be difficult for you to keep your footing. Everything must be done punctually and simultaneously, for naval evolutions, even more than other evolutions of war, require instant despatch. The land we are approaching is almost unknown to you; of this, however, rest assured, the inhabitants are brave, and will stubbornly contest every foot of our advance. You will, therefore, have to stand your ground, and exhibit that bravery which you have so often displayed in former battles."

EXERCISE LXXXIV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXV.

The ships of war were moored on the right of the enemy, and by their unusual form caused dismay to the barbarians, for they had never seen vessels so large. The vessels were then rowed forward, and the soldiers, along with the artillery, were sent ashore to dislodge the enemy from their position which they had taken up on the heights. When the Britons saw our men advancing, some of them came to a halt, others retreated. At first our men hesitated to leap down from the vessels, on account of the depth of the water, but the standard-bearer of the tenth legion, after uttering a prayer for the success of the enterprise, advanced against the foe. "Let us not," said he, "betray the eagle to the enemy, for this would be disgraceful to a Roman." Then all, with a cheer, leaped down from the ships and advanced against the enemy.

EXERCISE LXXXV.

Caesar, B. IV, Chapter XXVI.

The difficulty of disembarkation was very great, owing to the depth of water. Our men could not obtain a firm foothold, nor could they rally round their own standard, for they disembarked not in a body, but singly. The enemy, on the other hand, knew every foot of the ground, and, with their horses at full speed, attacked our men, who were hampered in their movements by the waves and by the heavy weight of their armor. Caesar at once despatched some ships manned with soldiers to the aid of the landing party. As soon as they reached the shore they attacked and put the enemy to flight. They were unable, however, to advance very far, owing to the want of cavalry, which latter had not made the island, owing to the storm.

EXERCISE LXXXVI.

Over this river there was a bridge, and beside the bridge the general resolved to post a garrison at once. He put in charge of this garrison a member of his staff (legatus), with instructions that it was of the utmost consequence to the safety of the country to hold out as long as possible. But the enemy were indignant that we should have the audacity to pitch a camp right in the heart of their country; and mustering their forces to the number of twenty thousand men, they proceeded at once to assault the place. The garrison held out with difficulty; nevertheless they did hold out; and after several days the enemy, losing hope of making a capture, withdrew from the field.

EXERCISE LXXXVII.

Caesar determined to cross over to Britain, because the Belgians of South Britain had sent help to their kinsmen in Gaul, with whom he was fighting. So he set sail to Britain with a small army. When the Britons, who were watching for him, saw his fleet draw near the shore, they came down and kept the Romans from landing, till a brave standard-bearer leapt from a galley into the water among the Britons. When the Roman soldiers saw him in the midst of their foes they followed him to save the standard, and at last made good their landing, and drove the Britons up into the country. Then 'Caesar marched through most of the people of Kent, fought several battles and forced the tribes near him to give hostages and sue for peace. But he was not able to profit by his success. He was afraid of the bad weather in the channel, for it was getting late in the year, so he went back to Gaul.

EXERCISE LXXXVIII.

The spring had not yet passed when the Roman armament sailed for Britain. Caesar took with him five legions and an equal (par) number of cavalry, the usefulness of which had been proved in the late expedition. These legions were left under Labienus to provide for the security of Gaul. The landing was effected, without opposition, at the same spot as in the previous summer; and Caesar, leaving two cohorts to protect his naval station, repaired with the main body to a spot not far from the shore, where he constructed a camp to which he might retreat in case of defeat. This, it is thought, is the foundation of the famous (celeber) station of Rutupiae, whose ruins attest to this day the greatness of Roman military works.

EXERCISE LXXXIX.

Having finished the German war, Caesar resolved, for many reasons, that he must cross the Rhine, a very broad, deep, and rapid river, which divides Gaul from Germany. His strongest reason was that seeing the Germans were easily induced to make inroads into Gaul, he wished to show them that the Romans had both the power and the courage to carry the war into their country. Accordingly he made the necessary preparations, and caused a bridge to be constructed over the river, by which to transport his troops.

EXERCISE XC.

Before the task was completed, a deputation of chiefs arrived, bringing word that their warriors were encamped in good numbers about eight miles distant, and desiring our general to appoint the time and place for a council. He ordered them to meet him on the next day near his camp. In the morning the little army moved in battle order to the place of council, and at the appointed hour the deputation appeared. The orator declared that the war had arisen without any fault of theirs; they desired that there should be peace between us and his people; and to show their good will, at once delivered eighteen prisoners whom they had brought with them, promising that we should receive the rest as soon as they could collect them.

LATIN PRONUNCIATION.

ROMAN METHOD.

VOWELS.

Letters.	Pronunciation.
A long as in cālo, mānāre, short as in cālor, mǎněo.	as Eng. a in psalm, salve. the same sound shortened. Both ǎ and ā are found in ǎhā! N.B. ā in Latin was never pronounced as in mate, nor ǎ as in man, mat.
E long as in nēdum, sēcēdo, diē. short as in něfas, sēcō, arcě.	as Eng. e in grey and skein. as Eng. e in sped and met. N.B. Lat. ē was never pronounced as Eng. ee in see .
I long as in sī, sīn, rīdēo. short as in sīne, sītīs, rīgīdus.	as i in machine, ee in feel. N.B. The Latin ī was never the i in fine. as i in fit, pin.
O long as in cōmīs, ōměn. short as in cōměs, ōpūs.	as o in bone, lone. nearest representative Eng. is o in not, rock.
U long as in ūnā, ūmōr. short as in ūtěr, hūmūs.	as u in ruin, rude. N.B. Lat. ū was never pronounced like u in acute, mule. as u in full, oo in foot. N.B. Lat. ū never as Eng. ū in but, cut.
Y long as in gŷrūs, Hŷdra. short as in cŷmbǎ, lŷrǎ.	as I long. as y in beauty, lady.

DIPHTHONGS.

Pronunciation of the diphthongs is best learnt by first sound-vowel separately and then running them together. Thus :

ae as ah-eh ; au as ah-oo ; oe as o-eh ; ei as eh-ee ; eu as eh-oo, and ui as oo-ee.

AE in taedae	either Eng. a in fare or as ai in aisle .
AU in laudo	Eng. ou in house .
OE in foedus	N.B. Avoid the pronunciation "feed-us."
EI in hei	Eng. ey in grey , ei in skein .
EU in seu, neuter	} The general rule, as given above, is a
UI in cui, huic

CONSONANTS.

C as in cāno, cēcīni, circā, condī- cio .	always as Eng. k ; never as s nor as c before e, i .
Qu in inquit .	as Eng. qu in quick .
G in gaudeo, gēnus, gīgās, agē .	always as Eng. g in got, get . begin ; never as j or g soft.
N before c (k, qu), g , as incīpit, inquam, congero .	as ng in sing . Thus : ing' ipi ingquam congero .
R in ringi, rārus, dator .	trilled r as in French or Sc.
S as in sūs, accūso, tristes .	always voiceless, as in hiss , never voiced as in has (h).
J or I consonant, as in iūgum, iācio .	as Eng. y . Thus : yugum, y
V or U consonant, as in uānus, uīs, seruo (i.e., vanus, vis, servo).	as Eng. w . Thus : wā wees, serwo .

N.B. There is no ancient authority for spelling i consonant or u consonant as v. The Romans used one symbol for vowel and consonant.

B, D, F, H, L, M, P, T	as in Eng. N.B. T is always the Editio is not to be pro edishio.
X as in saxum, exulto .	as Eng. ks (x). Thus : ea. not eggsulto .
Z as in gaza, Zephyrus .	Probably as dz in adze .

Double consonants should be carefully separated in pronuntiation, as ag-ger, pos-sum, pin-na.
